

CEF Will Support Johnson Bill Only If Some Changes are Made

Washington — (NC) — Citizens for Educational Freedom told Congress the Johnson Administration's aid to education bill leaves much to be desired, but it will support the measure if some changes are made.

the non-denominational national association dedicated to equal treatment of all school children by government, testified (Feb. 1) before the House General Subcommittee on education.

HUBBELL, a Traverse City, Mich., attorney, said CEF would prefer to see legislation patterned after the G. I. Bill of Rights. Such a bill, he said, would give a flat Federal grant to each school child or his parent to be used at the school of their choice.

But he said CEF will support the Johnson bill "as a bona fide effort in the right direction" if provisions are written into the measure stipulating that there be participation in local planning by non-public school authorities.

THE PRESIDENT'S proposal is to spend $1 billion to aid underprivileged children. The money would go to public school districts. Children in non-public schools would be included through extension of shared services or dual enrollment programs.

In addition, the bill proposes $100 million to establish a network of joint public-private educational centers offering special

Subscribe Today to The North Carolina Catholic

Raleigh—The 1965 drive for renewals and subscriptions to THE NORTH CAROLINA CATHOLIC culminates this Sunday, as the newspaper begins its nineteenth full year of publication.

The official newspaper of the Diocese of Raleigh reaches some six thousand homes each week, "thus lending encouragement to all of us, as we read of the good works performed by priests, brothers, sisters and laity in other parts of the Diocese."

IN HIS LETTER urging that the paper's circulation be extended to reach all ten thousand homes in the Diocese, Bishop Waters emphasized the importance of the Sunday Visitor complement, which provides excellent documentation as well as special features for young and old alike.

Founded in 1946, THE NORTH CAROLINA CATHOLIC has received first prize in all the major categories of the competition sponsored annually by the Catholic Press Association: best front page, best news story, and best editorial. In the year ahead the newspaper will benefit from the contributions of the six associate editors recently appointed to its staff by Bishop Waters.

OUTSTANDING in support given to the diocesan weekly are the following twelve churches, in which every family subscribes: Annunciation, Albermarle; St. Joseph, Burgaw; St. Catherine, Elizabeth City; St. Francis, Franklin; Holy Redeemer, Kill Devil Hills; St. Joseph, Leaksville; St. Francis, Lenoir; St. Francis, Lumberton; St. William, Murphy; Our

Ground Broken for Church in Wallace

Construction has begun on the new church for the Mission of the Transfiguration in Wallace, N.C. The edifice, which will have a seating capacity of two hundred, is being erected on East Main Street.

The church in Wallace is a mission of our Lady of Guadalupe Parish, Newton Grove. Mrs. Carl Orr, oldest parishioner in Wallace joined Father Robert McMahon, Newton Grove pastor, in turning the first shovel at the groundbreaking ceremony.

Lady of Guadalupe, Newton Grove; St. Mary, Shelby; and St. Anne, Smithfield.

Subscription envelopes should be returned this morning at the rate of $4.00 for one year and $7.50 for two years.

New Books Will Provide Further Changes in Mass

VATICAN CITY — (NC) — New standard liturgical books soon to be published provide for the first part of the Mass, the Liturgy of the Word, to be celebrated at the lectern or pulpit instead of at the altar.

With this provision, the priest would preside from his chair, and not ascend to the altar until the Offertory, beginning the Liturgy of the Eucharist. The new Mass books also will direct that the missal remain in one spot on the altar from the Offertory until the end of Mass — being placed to the left of the celebrant and kept there, instead of being moved from right to left and back.

ANOTHER INNOVATION will be the omission of the genuflection during the Creed, except at Christmas and the feast of the Annunciation. Instead of genuflecting at the words, "... and was made man," the priest and congregation will bow.

These new changes were revealed here in an article in L'Osservatore Romano (Jan. 28) by Father Annibale Bugnini, C.M., secretary of the postconciliar liturgy commission and newly appointed undersecretary for liturgy of the Congregation of Rites.

Father Bugnini disclosed information concerning new editions of several liturgical books which are to be published imminently by the Vatican Polyglot Press. Among them is one intended to provide guidelines for national bishops' conferences for the general framework of the common prayer or prayer of the faithful. This litany-type prayer is to come into general use immediately before the Offertory with the changes of March 7, the first Sunday of Lent.

Father Bugnini said that the first of the revised books to be issued will be the Ordo Missae, the section of the missal comprising the Ordinary and Canon of the Mass.

Declaring that the revisions in this volume "have changed nothing substantially," the priest added: "The tone has changed but the melody remains as before, as always. Even in its retouching, everything was delicately and attentively examined with heart, rather than mind, to harmonize the rite with the wise and precise norms laid down by the council's document (Constitution on the Sacred Liturgy)."

OFFICIAL

The following clergy appointment is announced by the Most Reverend Bishop through the Diocesan Chancery, effective Wednesday, February 17, 1965:

The Reverend John J. Carr, newly ordained, is appointed to the Diocesan Missionary Apostolate at Our Lady of Guadalupe Church, Newton Grove.

James E. McSweeney
Chancellor

FATHER BUGNINI recalled the provisions of the Holy See's liturgical instruction of last Sept. 26, to go into effect on March 7, which will require that some Mass prayers hitherto recited in a low voice will be sung or recited aloud. Among those are the secret prayer or prayer over the offerings, the doxology at the end of the Canon,

BISHOP'S RESIDENCE
600 Bilyeu Street
Raleigh, North Carolina

January 25, 1965

My dear Brethren:

In this era of progress and change, it is impossible to keep duly informed of the developments in the Church through newspaper bulletins and television reports. The alert Catholic will want to have at hand the complete texts of the Holy Father's pronouncements and the decrees of the Council.

Such documentation is available to all of us in the Sunday Visitor supplement of our diocesan newspaper. For example, in the year just gone by, Our Sunday Visitor provided the full texts of Pope Paul's first encyclical and the Declaration of the American Hierarchy on Liturgical Renewal.

Our own NORTH CAROLINA CATHOLIC mirrors the life of the universal church, and, in particular, the life of the Diocese of Raleigh, thus lending encouragement to all of us, as we read of the good works performed by priests, brothers, sisters, and laity in other parts of the State.

I have recently added to the newspaper staff six priests who will serve as associate editors and thus help us give greater variety to the news accounts and editorial commentary.

It is my earnest wish that the head of every family will bring the good influence of this Catholic weekly into his home by subscribing to THE NORTH CAROLINA CATHOLIC on Sunday, February 7th.

With sincere appreciation for the support which the priests and laity have given to our diocesan newspaper in the past, and with the hope that its circulation will show a significant increase in 1965, I remain

Gratefully yours in Christ,

Vincent Waters

Bishop of Raleigh

In Jacksonville Two Members of Parish Get Community Awards

JACKSONVILLE — Albert J. Ellis was honored with the Community Award and Miss Adelaide McLarty was recipient of the Community Woman Award presented to them at the annual banquet of the Junior Chamber of Commerce held recently at City Hall auditorium. Both are members of the Infant of Prague Church here.

Mr. Ellis, prominent local attorney, and outstanding participant in community affairs, is also a member of Father William O'Byrne Council 3574, Knights of Columbus, while Miss McLarty, recognized for her community activity, is County Librarian, a member of the Catholic Daughters of America Chapter, and immediate past president of the Jacksonville Women's Club.

Mr. Ellis, who was nominated for the award by John D. Warlick, Jr., and Mrs. Dolly S. Burton, was recognized for his overall work for the community during the past year. In particular, he served without compensation as chairman of the joint city-county Airport Commission at hearings recently before the Civil Aeronautics Authority held in Washington, New Bern and Jacksonville.

He has served for years as Chairman of the USO Committee for the Onslow County-Camp Lejeune area; has served as President of the Law Alumni Association of the UNC School of Law for the past year, and is a member of the Onslow County Morehead Scholarship Committee. Likewise he is a member of the Cardinal Club, which presently is working to secure a football stadium for Jacksonville High School; has devoted extensive time in furthering the Onslow County 4-H Club activity; is a member of the Kiwanis and Moose Clubs and other civic organizations as well as the American Legion; and has either served as a President or Chairman of practically every organization to which he has belonged.

As an attorney he has been
