Editors Stress Need of Dialogue within Church

NEW YORK — Church authorities must encourage intelligent and responsible participation by the faithful in the Church's development and growth, a bishop said here.

And, added an editor, this can be accomplished largely through the development of public opinion within the Church by the Catholic press.

Both Bishop Ernest J. Primeau of Manchester, N.H., and Father Roberto Tucci, S.J., editor of Rome's Civiltà Cattolica, spoke (May 18) at one session of the 7th World Congress of the Catholic Press on "The Relationship of Freedom and Authority." The congress incorporated the 55th annual national convention of the Catholic Press Association of the U.S. and Canada.

NEARLY 800 representatives of the Catholic press in the United States, Europe and elsewhere attended the congress, whose theme was "Truth in the Pursuit of Liberty."

Both Bishop Primeau and Father Tucci, who was detained in Rome, but whose paper was read to delegates, mentioned "tension" in the Church today between authority and freedom.

But both also said such tension is nearly inevitable in times of review, renewal and reform. They stressed the need for dialogue between those in authority and their followers, noting this appeal in the Constitution on the Church adopted by the Second Vatican Council:

"The laity . . . should openly reveal to them (their pastors) their needs and desires with that freedom and confidence which is fitting for children of God and brothers in Christ. They are, by reason of the knowledge, competence or outstanding ability which they may possess, permitted and sometimes even obliged to express their opinions on those things which concern the good of the Church."
