Priest-Delegate At U.N. Dies

Amsterdam, The Netherlands —(NC)— Father Leo J. C. Beaufort, O.F.M., legislator of the Netherlands, died (June 9) at the age of 75. He had been a member of the Netherlands delegation at every session of the General Assembly since the establishment of the United Nations 20 years ago.

Father Beaufort had been a professor of international law at the Catholic University of Nijmegen for 19 years. Since 1953, he had also been a member of the European Commission for Human Rights.

In public life Father Beaufort retained his baptismal name. But

PEACE EFFORTS PRAISED—Msgr. Alfred A. Schneider of Green Bay, Wis., (right) and Father James Clark of Fall River, Mass., have been praised for their relief work in the strife-torn Dominican Republic. The apostolic nuncio, Archbishop Emanuele Ciriaco, who was in Rome to brief Pope Paul on the nuncio's peace-making efforts in the island, lauded the two priests who have assisted him in his work. Msgr. Schneider heads Catholic Relief Services-NCWC activities throughout Latin America; Father Clark has helped him distribute thousands of tons of food during the Dominican crisis. (NC Photos)

Jews in Spain Enjoy New Legal Standing

MADRID — (NC) — The new legal status granted earlier this year to the Jewish minority in Spain annulled a decree of expulsion promulgated nearly 500 years ago.

The decree of 1492 had compelled the Jewish people either to become Christians or to leave Spain. Many went into exile, but some stayed. Today there are many Spaniards of Jewish descent who are Catholics.

Until the end of the 19th century, Jews were not allowed to return to Spain. The 5,000 living there now came mostly after that time from Spanish Morocco.

The new legal status, approved especially for the Jewish community in Madrid, applies to all other communities in the country. It grants them full religious and cultural freedom. They can establish their own schools, synagogues, social and charitable services and community centers.

The Madrid weekly, Signo, organ of the Spanish Catholic Youth, stated that the new legal status marks a historic event. This "new attitude toward the Israelite people, in whose heritage we are deeply rooted, frees us from a number of prejudices contradicting the program that the [ecumenical] council has enunciated with the beautiful word — ecumenism."

Says Religious Belief Still Strong in Russia

MUNICH, Germany — (NC) — A Soviet scholar says religious believers constitute a large percentage of the Soviet population and that this percentage shows no tendency to decline.

Nadezhda A. Teodorovich made this statement in a paper written for the Institute for the Study of the USSR, a corporation of scholars who have left the Soviet Union. Miss Teodorovich, who worked for psychiatric institutions in the USSR, was active in church affairs there during a time of intense persecution. She is currently a member of the research section of the Institute for the Study of the USSR, here.

Although official Soviet propaganda contends that religion is practically non-existent among the young people, Miss Teodorovich recounts a not uncommon "split" in the spiritual life of a young Russian citizen. Valya Shurtakova was known at her job in Moscow as an active, effective communist. At home, 25 miles from Moscow, she was an open believer and an active parishioner. Until she was badgered by the press, Valya managed to play the two different and fundamentally incompatible roles.

Though she warns that the present Soviet leadership is as unalterably opposed to religion as ever its predecessors were, Miss Teodorovich says recent events in the world communist movement have had a favorable effect upon the position of the church and of believers in the Soviet Union. Among these are the revision of the Italian and French communists' previously inimical attitude towards religion, the exclusion of a paragraph from the rules of the Communist party of Yugoslavia on the incompatibility of party membership and religious affiliation and amnesty for political prisoners in Rumania, including Catholic priests.

A favorable influence has also been exerted by efforts of various international organizations, eminent social figures and representatives of the sciences and arts to promote religious freedom in the Soviet Union, Miss Teodorovich said.

Papal Medal Awarded Retiring Police Chief

New York — (NC) — The Benemerent I Medal, a papal decoration, was presented to retiring Police Commissioner Michael J. Murphy by Francis Cardinal Spellman of New York at a ceremony in the cardinal's residence.

The medal was awarded by Pope Paul VI, the cardinal said, in recognition of Murphy's service and leadership and was also "a recognition of the work of the police force for law and order and decency in the life of the city."
