Charlotte Catholic High

MOREHEAD SCHOLARSHIPS

William Sabates, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Sabates, and Joseph Treacy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Treacy, students at Charlotte Catholic High School were chosen as finalists in the annual competition for Morehead Scholarships to the University of North Carolina. During the latter part of March, they will undergo the final screening at Chapel Hill, along with the four other delegates from Mecklenberg County.

William Sabates is president of the Student Council at Charlotte Catholic, a member of the Youth Council for the city of Charlotte, serves on the yearbook staff, and is a two-sport letterman — in football and basketball. He is the top student in his class.

Joseph Treacy likewise is one of the best students in his class and has earned his varsity letters in football and basketball. He participates in numerous school activities and is looked upon as one of the finest organizers in the senior class.

The Morehead Award is a grant of money to finance the undergraduate's study at the University of North Carolina and is given, not on the basis of need, but on outstanding merit of the person receiving the grant. Academic standing, character, leadership and ambition are criteria upon which a decision is made to grant this or that high school graduate a Morehead Scholarship.

REGIONAL SCHOLARSHIP AWARD

Paul William Gaffney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gaffney of Charlotte, and a student of Charlotte Catholic High School was one of five students from Mecklenberg County who won the regional competition for scholarships administered by the National Society of Professional Engineers. As a winner of the Southern Piedmont Chapter, Paul will receive an award of fifty dollars in February or March at a chapter meeting at which time he and his family will be guests. In further competition in the state finals, Paul did not succeed in winning a scholarship. However, the fact that he was a regional winner does credit both to him and to his school.

Urge Liberal Liquor Law

ASHEVILLE, N.C. — (RNS) — The Episcopal Diocese of Western North Carolina has called on the state legislature to legalize consumption of liquor outside the home.

The State Supreme Court recently ruled that under existing laws liquor can be consumed legally only in one's home.

At its annual convention here, the Episcopal diocese adopted a resolution which stated that "in the interest of responsible citizenship seeking laws that are reasonable and enforceable, be it resolved that this convention petition the Legislature of the State of North Carolina to legalize consumption of liquor outside the home and transportation of liquor for the purpose of consumption, and that adequate means be provided for proper enforcement." The resolution, introduced by the Rev. P. F. DeSaix of Asheville, was recommended to the convention by a committee on Christian social relations.

Carolínians Oppose Death Penalty

RALEIGH, N.C. — (RNS) — Clergymen and laymen here formally organized as "North Carolínians Against the Death Penalty" and pledged to press for abolition of capital punishment during the session of the state legislature.

Efforts to obtain such legislation have failed during past sessions.

The Rev. W. W. Finlator, pastor of the Pullen Memorial Baptist church, where the meeting was held, said "this is to be an unstructured and democratic organization and everyone is welcome to join."

Klan Appears at Unity Services

Rev. J. L. Creel of Our Lady of Fatima Parish in Winston-Salem gave the Sermon at the Christian Unity Service held at the Madison-Mayodan High School on Jan. 22. The service was sponsored by the Western Rockingham County Ministerial Association. Various members of the Association read the Lessons and gave the invocations at the service, which was part of the Church Unity Octave Celebrations.

About twenty members of the Klu Klux Klan appeared outside the auditorium; seven of them wore the Klan regalia but were not masked. They had a tape recorder with them but otherwise caused no trouble. They were greeted by some of the ministers and responded politely. The Unity Service was integrated which perhaps prompted their presence. They identified themselves as the United Klan of America.

Snow's great for kids... but it doesn't get the laundry done.

There's a crunch under foot. The wind ruffles the leaves and a fine powder of cold, white crystals sprays the air and stings the face. It's a beautiful day for doing the laundry... if you have a flameless electric dryer. Electric dryers make any weather drying weather and any time drying time. Two quick steps from your washer to your dryer and the chore's done. Remember the low cost of electric drying, too. An average load can be dried for a nickel or less. That kind of economy is hard to beat. Make a clean break with the past. Buy an electric dryer. See all the new models at an electric appliance store.

It's Drying Weather Anytime with a FLAMELESS ELECTRIC DRYER.
