Greensboro 'Talent Teen Show' Acclaimed, K. of C. Cosponsor

Greensboro — Two one hundred dollar war bonds were awarded to first prize winners in Group and Single competition at the 4th annual Teen Talent Show held here recently. "The Mussetes," a group of young women of Smith High School took first prize in their competition. Warren Jones, a piano soloist of Allen J. High School took the top prize in the single competition group.

Harry Golden Hits Racism at Seminary Speech, Moral Issue

Saginaw, Mich. —(NC)— Condemning racism as a "vicious, terrible disease" Jewish editor-critic Harry Golden said here that the U.S. Negro in 1968 must receive a subsidy, a crash-program to bring him into the mainstream of American life.

Golden told 1,000 persons at St. Paul seminary that this crash program should see to it that Negroes are placed "in all areas of employment — at all levels of responsibility."

The long-time publisher of the former Carolina Israelite held that the Negro is still looked on as a race apart from the rest of the population — and he pointed to recent riots as a "result of endless experience of continuous indignities." He warned that "our cities are sitting on volcanoes because of this racism — smoldering volcanoes."

Golden saw no hope for racial peace in such anti-riot measures as more police weapons. The need, he said, is more help for the Negro—in getting a job, in getting an education. "Nothing short of a Marshall Plan will do it," he asserted. "It will be well worth it."

Progressive legislation was seen by Golden as "the big answer" to America's racial plight. "Morals follow the law," he held. "The law is the important thing."

Golden wasted little praise on the Churches' role in the struggle to bring racial justice to America. He charged that churches (Catholics, Protes-

Woman Burned In Ship Blaze

Waynesville — Mrs. Raymond C. Lane of Lake Junaluska, a member of St. John's parish, is being treated at the Public Health Service Hospital in New Orleans, La., for second and third degree burns on hands and arms sustained when the cargo ship African Star collided with two oil barges in the lower Mississippi River on March 16.

Among the persons listed as missing is Mrs. Lane's sister, Mrs. Courtney L. Fowler of Houston, Tex., who was also a passenger aboard the Star and a frequent visitor to Lake Junaluska and Waynesville in past years.

Mrs. Lane and Mrs. Fowler were headed for a two-week ocean voyage to Sidney, Australia.

The show was held in the Greensboro War Memorial Auditorium and approximately 1400 were in attendance. There were 22 programs featured in the evening contest.

The show is sponsored by the Piedmont Council of the Knights of Columbus in cooperation with the Greensboro Youth Council.

Mr. Charles (Buddy) Page, chief talent scout for the Ted Mack Amateur Hour, attended and said that Miss Audrey Levine, who took second honors in the single competition as a vocal soloist, would appear on the national TV show in the near future. Mr. Page said that the show displayed "much good talent" and that some of the other contestants would appear in his national program before the year is over.

Second prize was won by a dance group called "The Dudley Modern" from a high school by that name. A third prize was taken by a boys group of the same school known as "Dukes of the Soul."

Benjamin Bradham of Smith High School took third prize with a piano solo.

The Knights expressed appreciation to Don Bonnet who co-directed the production. The program incorporated six city high schools and one student from UNC-G. Publicity was given by all the local television and radio stations, the newspaper, the parks and recreation department of the city, St. Pius X School and the First Presbyterian Church.

tants, Jews) "did nothing until the march on Washington (1963) woke them up." The moral leadership, he said, "has been very weak."

In the view of the Negro, Golden said, there is racism in both the North and the South—but with a difference. In the North the Negro is told to "go as high as you want, but don't come close," while in the South the admonition is "come as close as you want, but don't go up."

Heads 'Wilkes Boys Town' Study

North Wilkesboro — Three tracts of land, one containing six hundred acres, was offered here to a Steering Committee for a proposed Boys Town in Wilkes County. Various phases of the proposed institution were discussed at a meeting presided over by the Reverend Gerald L. Lewis, pastor of St. John's Church and Chairman of the Committee. Thirteen committee members represented six churches, Welfare Department, civic groups and Wilkes Community College. It was settled that the name of the institution will be "Wilkes Boys Town." Another matter settled was that it will be locally founded and operated. The purpose is to provide a home and activities for boys who may need direction. Present at the meeting were representatives of industry, law enforcement, the medical profession and state and federal probation departments.

Parish honors CCD Teacher Couple

Salisbury — Mr. and Mrs. Edward Murphy, who have served the youth of Sacred Heart parish here as teachers of religion in the CCD program, were honored by the parish during a St. Patrick's Day dinner. The Rev. Cletus Helfrich presented an engraved silver bowl to the couple in the name of the 125 members who attended. Carroll Fisher directed the program and Mrs. Jerry Zumbunnen presented a humorous skit for the occasion.

Writes of 'Same Communist Tactic

Raleigh — The Rev. Corbin W. Ketchersid, a priest of the diocese who is also a Chaplain in the Armed Forces in Saigon, wrote recently that he hopes for a visit with Father James Keenan, another priest with similar affiliation. In his letter to Bishop Waters, Father Ketchersid said that there has been a number of priests who have sustained serious injury in the fighting there. At present he is assigned to placing Chaplain personnel. The red tactic has ceased hopes of winning the people of the south by goodwill and are now in full terrorist efforts, instilling fear among the citizens. "This is still the same old Communist tactic," said the priest in his letter.

Mary or Merry Missioners

Winston-Salem — The young women who are affiliated with the Confraternity program and who are known as Mary Missioners, now have a new name—Merry Missioners. The four reside at the center behind the convent of the Mission Helpers of the Sacred Heart. They have become folk singer vocalists and have entertained at the Catholic High School and various nursing homes and church groups.

the opportunity she could have accomplished this long ago but it would have meant an empty classroom for a few years when pressures demanded a teacher.

Bishop Shannon, a moderator of the press department of the U.S. Catholic Conference, says it is desirable to have a regional press which is indigenous to a particular region. He sees this effort as highlighting "quality and strength."

In the light of the recent Council with all the development in speculative theology and scripture studies, the knowledge of these matters are put against the development, tensions and movements of our times.
