Creedmoor Lodge 499 Opens School Cornerstone

A group of Creedmoor Masons, headed by Brother John Stallings, Master, opened the tin-plate-covered cornerstone of the Creedmoor Elementary School on January 14, 1970. The building had been destroyed by fire.

The cornerstone was laid August 14, 1908, by the Grand Lodge of North Carolina. M. W. Brother Samuel M. Gattis, Grand Master, officiated at the ceremony.

According to the Grand Lodge Proceedings, the following articles were deposited in the cornerstone: Holy Bible by M. L. Winston, three-cent coin by I. E. Harris, corn (57 years old) raised by W. E. Bullock, twenty-five-cent coin by J. M. Neathery, penny by E. Parjaisson, history by Dr. J. T. Sanford, advertisement by Dr. J. F. Sanford, penny by B. Marse, British coin (50 years old) by J. R. Neathery, and $10,000 check by Dr. Nathan Rosenstein.

Upon opening the cornerstone all the above items were found except the corn and the $10,000 check. The contents are now displayed under glass at the Masonic Lodge in Creedmoor.
