BUSINESS COURSE FREE IN THE FAIRFIELD HIGH SCHOOL

The Commercial department of the Fairfield High School has enrolled a large class in shorthand, bookkeeping and stenographic course. The school opened with sufficient number of high school pupils to make it an accredited high school.

Those taking high school work and the commercial course are expected to complete the commercial course in two years; those giving entire time to business course, in one year.

New pupils may enter any time. New pupils are entering each week. Out-of-town pupils can find boarding places here.

Miss Emily English, the teacher of this course, is a graduate of Bowling Green Business University, Bowling Green, Ky. She comes to us an experienced teacher well qualified to teach this course.

Pupils may complete their high school course and take this business course at the same time and be ready to take a position on completing high school course.

The course, if taken in the Fairfield school, will mean a saving of from $200 to $300 or more as compared with the same grade of instruction elsewhere.

This course is being taken by the most progressive class of people. For further information write Prof. J. W. Heath, Fairfield, N. C.

We invite you to come and worship with us. "Come thou with us; we will do thee good." Ps. 84.

BIRTHDAY OF MRS. KIT SPENCER

It was the pleasure of the editor and writer while in Engelhard during the revival meetings, to share in the birthday dinner of Mrs. Kit Spencer, who was 78 years old on September 7. We wish for her many more happy years. She expressed her deep interest and love for her children and grand-children. She expressed her deep anxiety in seeing them all Christians and living for the Lord.

Once a city man out of work had hired out to a farmer. At four o'clock in the morning he was called to breakfast. A few minutes later the old farmer was astonished to see the man walking off down the road.

"Say! Come back and eat breakfast 'fore you go to work!" he yelled.

"I ain't goin' to work," the man called back. "I'm goin' to find a place where I can stay all night."—Everybody's Magazine.

A MODERN STILL

A big modern distillery was found in Surry County the other day. The trouble with such a distillery is that the liquor is modern, too.

Too modern. It's worthless. The old-time, well made liquor was bad enough, but it wasn't as bad as this modern stuff.

The modern stuff is hot, too hot. It is rotten, too rotten. It is made of corn and adulterated with concentrated lye, soda, soap, chewing tobacco and some other substances; people who have found stills say things that are not mentioned in polite society.

It is made fast—it kills fast.

It is made cheaply—it sells high.

It is made under cover—and puts many a man under cover, under the daisies, with a nice tombstone over him. It is made in the dark of the moon—and sold in the dark, by people who prefer darkness to light.

It is made for a big profit—and causes big loss.

It beads when the bottle is shaken—and the fool who drinks it has his brains, stomach and whole body shaken by it.

It couldn't win a prize at a pure food show, but it takes the prize as the right arm of the Devil.

A man gets liquored up, and then he gets down, in finances, self-respect, character, reputation, everything worth while.

Men laugh when they drink it, but it is the laughter of unsuspecting fools, little knowing that they are drinking poison.
