Red Devils' Last Game Tonight; Girls' Tournament Here Next Week

The Wake Forest Red Devils close their regular season play tonight as Smithfield invades the local high school gym. Tonight's battle of the Red Devils is a make-up game of a snowed-out contest. Game time is 8:30 for the boys' contest. The girls' preliminary game starts at 7 p. m. The same Smithfield team spanked the Wake Forest basketballers at Smithfield last Monday. The local girls fell to the second place Smithfield sextet, 43-25, while the boys could not catch the fast breaking Smithfield quint and fell 88-69.

"We were beaten by one of the best teams in the conference," said Wake mentor Jack Tesh, "yet we scored 69 points and made too many mistakes. I think it will be a different story when we meet them in our own backyard," added the coach.

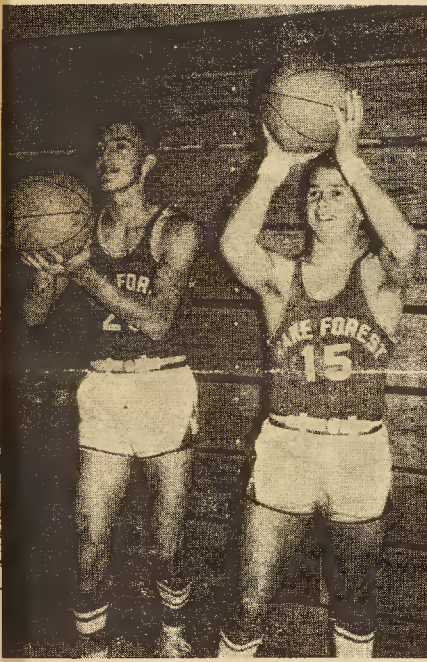

Last Monday's effort saw a balanced scoring attack for Wake Forest as Jimmy Tull had 12 points; Richard Lee, 11; Donald Pleasants, 10; and John Henry Denton and Mike Cruser, 9 each.

Also trying to stop the Smithfield scoring duo of Lansinger and Lassiter were Wake Foresters Eddie Warren with 6 points; Jimmy Perry, 4; Doug Keith, 2; Ben Aycock, 2; Sam Brewer, 2; John Byrne, 2.

Next week the Wake Forest boys will participate in the conference tournament at Smithfield on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday. The first round opponent for Wake Forest will probably be Smithfield or Cary, depending on the outcome of tonight's conference games.

The Wake Forest girls play host to the conference girls tournament here next Monday, Wednesday and Friday. Games Monday are at 4:00, 5:30, 7:00, and 8:30. Wednesday semi-finals are 4:30 and 7:00. Tickets are 35 cents for students and 75 cents for adults.

State high school regulations require that all tickets to tournament finals be $1 per ticket.

ROLESVILLE FIREMEN TAKE TRAINING

Firemen from the Rolesville, New Hope and Garner Fire Departments, received first-hand training experience in fighting house fires on Saturday when they deliberately set fire to a dwelling to climax a recent fire fighting course held at the Rolesville Fire House.

The dwelling which was located on Hwy. 401 near Neuse River, was set on fire several times and each time put out quickly and efficiently as firemen moved in with their hoses to douse the flames. Then when all firemen had participated in extinguishing the blaze, the house was set fire once again and this time, allowed to burn down. Firemen report that two men from the New Hope Fire Department received minor burns but none serious.

On hand giving instruction to the core of men were: Sherman Pickard, Chief Instructor; Elwood Inscoe, Jim Penning, Jerry Grimes and Roy Denning, all with the N. C. Fire and Rescue Division of the Department of Insurance.

Rolesville firemen participating in the training were: Duke Perry, Bill Mitchell, Neal Mitchell, John Champion, O. R. Freeman, A. T. Lassiter, Clifton Merritt, Mike Mitchell, Kenneth Pearce, Bobby Jackson Pulley, C. F. Tharrington, Jr., and Wade Young, Fire Chief.

The Rolesville Department wishes to thank the Wakette Fire Department for standing by to help and sending a truck over to Rolesville, while they were out of the district for this fire-fighting experience.

Community Readiness on VD Education Set Mar. 9

A community readiness meeting for a proposed VD Education program has been scheduled in Wake Forest on March 9 for parents and other interested adults.

Officials at the State Board of Health are alarmed at the increase in venereal diseases especially among young people.

Because of this increase the Wake County Board of Education recently endorsed a mandatory public school program of education about VD.

The meeting in Wake Forest will be to inform parents about the type program the schools will offer. A film will be shown at the meeting. This meeting will be held in the Wake Forest High School gymnasium March 9 at 8:00 p. m. "Kids in school just don't know about venereal disease," says William G. Stoshak, district epidemiologist with the State Board of Health. Yet in Wake County he estimated, roughly 90 per cent of the recent cases of venereal disease have been persons between the ages of 12 and 22.

Stoshak is frankly alarmed.

In 1957 newly discovered cases of infectious syphilis in Wake County totaled only seven. Last year there were 83 new cases of syphilis in the infectious stages.

Last month nine new cases of syphilis were detected in the county.

There were 173 new cases of gonorrhea diagnosed in Wake County last year.

These are just the "reported" cases, Stoshak emphasized. He feels many more may be treated by private physicians and not reported.

In a 1963 survey by the U. S.

Department of Health, Education and Welfare many doctors admitted they reported only a few of the VD cases they treated, despite the fact law requires VD cases be reported to public health authorities.

North Carolina physicians who responded to the survey admitted treating 358 cases of infectious syphilis, yet reporting only 60. They admitted treating 5,369 cases of gonorrhea, but reporting only 194.

Another illustration by Stoshak also tends to indicate there's more venereal disease than is reported.

Neighboring Durham County, he pointed out, reported 1,706 new cases of gonorrhea last year, compared with Wake's 173. He's convinced gonorrhea is not that much more rampant in Durham County than in Wake.

The difference, he suggested, could be that Durham's 28 hours a week public venereal disease clinic time is more successful in ferreting out undetected cases than Wake's 4½ hours weekly clinic.

With more convenient clinic hours, people in Durham County are more likely to come in for diagnosis and treatment than in Wake, Stoshak feels.

Despite the indications that many cases of venereal disease go unreported, it far outranks other communicable diseases in the number of reported cases in North Carolina.

In 1963, there were 9,185 cases of gonorrhea reported in the state and around 3,500 cases of syphilis in both infectious and non-infectious stages.

Measles — the disease that placed third — totaled nearly 2,000 reported cases.

Education Essential

Stoshak, along with health department and school officials, feels education — especially among teenagers — is essential in keeping VD under control.

People in Raleigh and outlying towns of Wake don't believe there is a VD problem here, Stoshak said. "But we find cases in every town all the time. And you can't expect these people to wear a sign," he added.

The VD education program should not be a sermon on morality, he said. "But we've got to do more to teach people about the disease, their danger, and how to detect them," Stoshak added.

Consolidated High Nears Completion

The new Vaiden Whitley Consolidated High School for eastern Wake County will be completed in June, according to Fred Smith, superintendent of the Wake County Schools.

At the present time, the exterior of the school is almost complete and work is being concentrated on the inside. One of the first sections of the interior to be completed will be the office of Stanley Dail, who has been appointed as principal of the new school. Dail is already at the County Office in Raleigh, where he is working with county officials in employment of the staff and making other preparations toward the beginning of a new school.

The Wake County School Board appointed a five-member Whitley School committee in early January. Dr. Clifford Horton of Wendell was appointed for a three-year term; C. S. Williams of Knightdale for a two-year term, Mrs. B. L. Cousins, also of Knightdale, for a one-year term; June Privette of Rolesville was appointed for a two-year term and Harold Jones, also of Rolesville, for a one-year term. As was set up by the County Board, the present Rolesville five-member committee will become a three-member advisory committee in July of this year when two members terms expire. The Wake Board of Education will seek legislation which will authorize an increase in the Whitley School committee from five members to not less than six and not more than nine so that each district will have equal representation.
