The Messiah

The "Messiah" oratorio, a Christmas tradition, was composed by George Friderick Handel in only 25 days, according to World Book Encyclopedia. It was first performed in 1742 in Dublin. A year later King George II set the custom of standing during the oratorio's "Hallelujah Chorus."

FTA Organized At Vaiden Whitley

On November 17, the members of the Vaiden Whitley High School Future Teachers of America Club held their organized meeting. The main order of business was the election of officers. The sixty-five members of the club elected Frances Tunstall, president; Becky Liles, Vice president; Marty Allan, secretary; Evelyn Strickland, treasurer; and Gwendia King, reporter. These officers will serve the remainder of the school year.

The second meeting was held December 2. A program on the qualities of a good teacher was presented by the Vice President. After discussing the criteria for membership, the club approved several suggestions for projects. The projects that the club elected to carry out this year consist of assisting teachers, helping in library, preparing the library bulletin board, and decorating the school with flowers on special occasions.

Let's Face It, Dad - You've Had It!

Might as well face it, men - you've been had. And along about midnight Christmas Eve, unless you smarten up fast, you're going to be had again. Look sharp, or once again you will stumble into bed at 5 A. M. Christmas morning, a haggard, red-eyed victim of that annual horror, the unassembled toy.

In olden times parents had two ways of getting toys to give their children for Christmas. They could buy something at the store or make something at home. But American business ingenuity—that good wide-awake, mass-producing American enterprise—has come up with a third choice: toys you buy at the store and make at home.

Watch Out Christmas Eve

The scene is really too familiar to need description. Here it is Christmas Eve, and the decorated tree twinkles and glitters with the joy of the season. The kids have finally been coaxed to sleep. Mom and Dad have filled the stockings, wrapped the last-minute gifts, heaped the packages high beneath the tree.

With all else ready they bring Junior's $40 fire truck, the coveted treasure, to take its place of honor. When the crate is opened, what do they find? No fire truck, but a box full of loose metal and stern injunction from the factory to get busy and make a fire truck. If they are lucky, it is done by dawn.

So prepare for the ordeal this way. Get everything possible done earlier. Leave Christmas Eve for the tasks that unavoidably last-minute.

Round Up the Troops

Rally reinforcements. Invite those bachelor uncles and childless cousins over to sip eggnog and beam at the kiddies toddling off to their visions of sugarplums. Then thrust hammers into their hands and set them to work.

Don't forget out-of-town entries. Aunt Nell, in Tulsa, was acting in good faith when she phoned the department store to charge and ship one doll-house. But you know perfectly well what the department store has probably sent. And you know who will put it together.

Check the old toolbox. Make sure that everything is sharp and ready to be worked with. See that you are equipped with all the common, everyday tools that are ordinarily required for toy assembling—pliers, hammer, socket wrenches, offset screwdriver, rat-tail file, etc. Check the Band-Aid supply.

At present that is about all that can be done to ease the agony.

Someday Congress will wake up and pass a law. It will authorize the victim of any unassembled toy, when his work is complete to submit to the so-called manufacturer a bill for time and materials. Wages will be prevailing union rates, computed of course, at time and a half. The charges for a single Christmas Eve will bring the industry to heel.

Until then you can only proceed, forewarned and forearmed, to fight the good fight. Merry Christmas!
