ston Journal. -In the city this week are Measra. Wade B. Leonard, of Dallas, Tex., and Mr. John B. Leonard, of Kinston. N. C. They are visiting their sister. Mra S. D. Swain. Mr. Wade B. Leonard is an investment broker, of Dallas, and is especially interested in coal mine stocks, and other mining stocks. He told The Dispatch man that he had discovered unmistakable signs of a deposit of coal on Main street, below the railroad bridge. In the second cut from the bridge there is a vein of dark material about two feet wide, ex-actly like the out cropping at the Jellico mines and around other coal mines. He said that, of course, it might amount to nothing at all, but it looks like it is worth investigating. There might be a considerable deposit of coal a few feet down. Celebrated Farms at Anction.
