When the President referred to the suffragettes a titter went over the audience. He said in reference to them: "I know there are some who live in Frazier. this city and think that in some way or other it has a local quality; that they being free born American citizens ought to have an opportunity to vote. I don't sympathize with that feeling at all. If they want to vote they ought to move over to Maryland, or Cincinnati, or to some other good place. They ought to understand that by living in Washington they are enjoying a privilege which is furnished to them at the expense of the entire nation, and that they are living in the Capital city which is under the care, control and direction of all the people of the United States through their representatives in the House and that subservient body, the Senate of the United States."
