TEDDY WITH MINERS

Ex-President Spends Day in Social Study—Incidents of Trip. Scranton, Pa., Aug. 2.—Theodore Roosevelt spent the day among the workers in the heart of the Pennsylvania mining region. And he talked with the men who dig in coal as they came from the mines, black with grime. He talked with them about their homes, their children and their manner of living. He talked with their wives and their children, and learned from their own lips how they lived at life. He climbed to the top of a coal breaker and spent half an hour there in the stifling coal dust, so that he might see what the boys who work there have to do. He spent another half hour in a silk mill, talking with the girl workers. He visited to people in their homes and saw how they lived. He plodded two miles through the dust up hills and in all manner of places and he returned to Scranton late today, black with grime but smiling with delight at his experiences. The best part of all, he said, was that he was able to meet the people as a private citizen and talk with them as man to man.

Many of the toilers had no idea of the ex-President's identity which he took care to conceal when possible until after he had finished his talk. Others who knew who he was treated him, he said, not as a former President, but as a plain man who had come to see them, to talk and learn their condition. It was close to noon today when Col. Roosevelt, Lawrence Abbott, who is associated with him in editorial work in New York; Miss Fannie Cochrane and Miss Florence Lucas Sayville, of the Consumer's League of Philadelphia, started away from Scranton. The party motored through Scranton to the North and up the Lackawanna Valley road, winding in and out past mines and breakers and clusters of miners' homes. Four miles the party proceeded without a stop until the village of Dickson City borough was reached. It is a typical mining town of a few hundred inhabitants. The automobile labored until it could go no further in the hills and the colonel and his fellow investigators, stepped out and walked.

Col. Roosevelt walked on the dust until he met a diminutive girl clad in a blue dress, her hair tied with pink ribbon. He stopped her and asked her who she was. She answered by giving her name as Annie Tryowski, and said that she was a winder in a silk mill. The colonel asked how long each day she worked, how she liked it and what she had in the way of amusement. His chief object of the day was to learn what the people had for diversion and how their amusements fit in with their lives. After timidly answering his questions, the little silk-winder walked on home, without the least idea with whom she had been talking.

Jake Kavanagh, a miner, was walking down the street just then. He had just emerged from the shaft and he was as black as man could be. Col. Roosevelt stopped him. Kavanagh did not know who he was but he was willing to talk with the pleasant man. He talked in such an interesting way of life in Dickson City borough as viewed by a miner that the ex-President took him by the arm and they walked down the street.

"I want to go home and talk with you," he said, and Kavanagh agreed. They walked up a side street to a small frame house with most of the paint worn off. They went inside and brought out on the porch Mrs. Kavanagh and the two little Kavanaghs. The former President went inside the house, looked at the small, neat rooms and complimented Mrs. Kavanagh on her proficiency as a housekeeper. Then all hands went back to the porch where the talk concerned the amusements which Dickson City borough provided for the young folks. Everybody agreed that dance halls run in conjunction with saloons are a bad thing. "But, it is important that the young people be allowed to dance, under proper conditions," said Col. Roosevelt.

"Sure, sure, it is," said Kavanagh. "You're right." Col. Roosevelt nodded his approval and still unrecognized, walked back up the main street. As he passed the house of John Pressman, a venerable man who used to be a miner, Pressman looked intently at him and said, "That was Roosevelt, wasn't it?" Some one in the party told him that it was and he retired into the house to put on a collar, saying that he was going to shake hands with the ex-President. He shook the hands of his neighbors and the tidings began to spread around the village.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 2.—Lacking but three more days to complete a term of three months for pointing a gun, Jim Edwards escaped from the Oubakhs jail last night. Three days before his brother, Dick Edwards, who was serving a life term for murder, escaped from the prison farm at Rankin.

DAVIDSON COLLEGE

Fall Outlook Bright—Old System of Monitors—Notes. Davidson, Aug. 2.—Inquiry at the office of the president of the college as to the prospects for a large attendance of students next year, brings forth the reply from the secretary in the president's absence that those seem to be very bright and that at least 125 new men should be enrolled. Of course at this date there is no certainty and figures are proverbially misleading, but if one may compare this year with last, those who the middle of the present month sent in applications for rooms were, first year matriculants were not far from twice as many as had made similar application a year ago at this date.

The old system of class monitors, so long in vogue here and which worked admirably when the classes were a mere fraction of what they are in size now, is to be abolished and paid monitors or markers of absences from morning chapel will be appointed. This means that the back of each bench will be marked off with certain numbers and each member of the class will be assigned to a certain position; the official marker, as he goes up or down the aisle, notes the vacancies and registers these by number only, later making his weekly report according to the name represented by this number.

Dr. and Mrs. John Wilson McConnell, who have returned from their vacation trip North, will on Monday move into the Worth residence, which they will rent during Mrs. J. M. Worth's two-years' sojourn in Europe.

AN AMERICAN WELCOME

Feature of Mexican Centennial Celebration, Which Begins Soon. Mexico City, Aug. 6.—Plans by members of the American colony in Mexico City to give a big banquet in honor of the American delegation to the Mexican Centennial Independence celebration in September are now being discussed.

While the Americans here are more than willing, really anxious, to show extended attention and courtesies to the delegates from the United States, it is understood that their time will be so much occupied in attend Centennial functions that only one day can be set apart for a colony reception, or banquet.

The American delegates will be housed in the Cobian place, on Calle Bucarell, according to present arrangements. They will live in spacious and luxuriously furnished apartments. It is expected that they will arrive in time to attend a big reception that will be given to the visiting delegates from all of the nations to be represented, by Enrique C. Ceroi, formerly Mexican ambassador in Washington, and now minister of Foreign Relations in the Diaz cabinet.

This function will be a brilliant one, as members of the entire diplomatic corps will be invited, also government officials and prominent men.

WATSON SLAYER AT LARGE

Search for Murderer of West Virginia Attorney Fruitless. Parkersburg, W. Va., Aug. 2.—The murderers of former Judge James A. Watson, attorney and oil man, who was found dead on his front doorstep last Friday morning, are still at large. Developments before the coroner's jury today were not such as to warrant any arrests.

It is now regarded as a certainty that Judge Watson was murdered by strychnine poison administered to him, after which he was robbed of more than $2,000. The coroner's inquest will continue tomorrow.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 2.—Revenue receipts for last month show that the use of beer and snuff stamps are on the increase in Tennessee. The total collections through the internal revenue office for July were $203,765.23, which is a gain of $39,348.40 over the receipts for July, 1909.
