CASE OF MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

Colored Workman Repaired Wrong House and Collected His Money.

It was told on the streets yesterday how one of Wilmington's most prominent citizens lost $100 a few days ago. According to the report it occurred in this way: The citizen had a tenement house in need of repairs preparatory to occupancy by a person to whom it had been rented. A colored workman was employed and sent to do the necessary work. A few days ago the negro appeared at the place of business of his employer stating that he had completed the work at a cost of approximately $100. The citizen had the utmost confidence in the workman and paid over the amount without going to see for himself that the work had been done. A day or two later another well known citizen of the city went to the place of business of the man who had the work done and tendered to him sincere thanks for his generosity in having his sister's house repaired, speaking of the act as a premature Christmas gift. The citizen who had just a day or two ago paid out the money to the workman did not understand. His caller then explained that a house belonging to his sister had recently undergone considerable repairs without her knowledge or consent and that he had just learned that the citizen he was then addressing had employed a man to do the work and paid for it. The man whose house needed repairing then realized that the negro had made a mistake and repaired the wrong house. So the citizen is out approximately $100 and another workman will be given a job. The house that was repaired really needed no repairs, or at least no repairs were contemplated, hence the person who paid out the money will have to stand the loss, according to the report on the street.

PROMINENT VISITORS HERE.

Ex-Governor John G. Brady, of Alaska; Mr. Berry and Mr. Neill.

A party of distinguished visitors, including ex-Governor John G. Brady, of Alaska; Mr. Albert Berry, of Fairbanks, Alaska, and Mr. R. L. Neill, the celebrated cotton statistician of the celebrated cotton in the city yesterday, visiting this city in a prospecting tour through the South, the latter gathering information as to the cotton crop and the distinguished gentlemen from Alaska looking into general development in this section. Mr. Neill, while here, called at the office of Messrs. Alex. Sprunt & Son and in the afternoon with the other distinguished visitors were guests of ex-Mayor William E. Springer for an automobile drive through East Wilmington during which they were greatly interested in the remarkably fine cotton and other crops that are being raised there.

Ex-Governor Brady is a gentleman of prepossessing appearance and talks interestingly of Alaska. He is a native of New York City and a graduate of Yale. He was appointed Governor of Alaska in July, 1897, by the late President McKinley and served a term of four years during which he became thoroughly conversant with the possession and its ultimate development. At the expiration of his first term he was re-appointed Governor by President McKinley and was re-appointed for a third term by President Roosevelt and served until May, 1906, when he resigned to engage in mining and business enterprises in the territory. He gives a wonderful account of the resources of Alaska, particularly as to its mineral products, including probably the richest gold producing area in the civilized globe.

Mr. Berry is located in the rich mining region known as the Fairbanks district, where he has several placer mining claims which were recently consolidated with other claims and incorporated. He has come to the States to promote his mining interests.

WATSON CREATES A STIR.

Urges Democrats to Disregard Nomination of Smith—Rule of Ruin.

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 21.—To disregard the nomination of Hoke Smith for Governor on the ground that Democrats are not bound by the primary which chose him, because of the methods by which the primary was conducted, was the advice of Thomas E. Watson, once populist candidate for the Presidency, in a speech at a mass meeting called by himself here tonight. He urged Democrats to vote for Governor Joseph M. Brown for another term, although Brown is not a nominee, declaring that voters are free to treat the Smith nomination as null and void.

What Watson called "bossism" and the alleged use of "money and whiskey in elections and the securing of nominations by fraud and deceptions," were the reasons he gave for insuring against the regular Democratic nominee. Watson referred to Smith's statement of $17,500 campaign expenses, declaring that this did not cover more than half of the total expenses from other sources. He objected to the use of so much money in campaigns as a dangerous tendency. He claimed that in the nominating convention the representatives of 92,000 Democrats, who voted in the primaries for Brown were "reduced to silence" by the convention rules; and that then the representatives of the 97,000 who voted for Smith "were subdued by those new rules into a state of speechless imbecility."

The uproar which cut short the previous speech here, Watson charged was instigated by what he called the "Rule or Ruin" clique which dominated the nominating convention. Speaking further of this interruption Watson said:

"Although no such idea was in my mind at the time, I have been firmly convinced by subsequent developments that some of the rioters had assassination in mind."

"The situation in Georgia bears a striking resemblance to that which existed in Tennessee just before Carmack was killed."

Watson charged that vote bartering existed in the highest legislative offices of the country. He predicted that unless "this spirit of lawlessness" is checked, "our wives and daughters will be subject to insult wherever they appear alone on a side street."

He advocated remodeling the National Democratic Convention so as to give full representation to those States which go Democratic and proportional representation to those which do not, a move which he said would be the South's first step to recover her ante-bellum power in the Union."

ACADEMY

Tonight one of the brightest and merriest musical comedy hits of the past two seasons, "The Newlyweds and Their Baby," comes to the Academy. No musical show, in which are appearing several stars, including Master Rosen, who was first seen in Wilmington in "Buster Brown," and the Countess Olga Von Hartzfeld, a favorite in this city, is being given a massive scenic production. The company numbers over sixty. Seats on sale yesterday at Plummer's and already indications point to a packed house.

"The Newlyweds" played Durham Monday night and the press of that city was lavish in praise of the swell attraction. The Durham Sun pays it big tribute and declares that above all it is a clean show. But here is The Sun's criticism on the performance:

"The Newlyweds and Their Baby played at the Academy last night to a very good house. The show was one of the best musical comedies that has been put on here and the universal sentiment of the play goes was favorable.

"Jimmy Rosen, the midget, who has pleased Durham before was the baby in the cast and also played the part of Major Not Much. In both characters he pleased and from his first entrance on the stage kept the house in a continual roar. Few better dialect men have played here than Mr. George P. Murchey, the waiter. He did the foreign stunt to perfection, and though one or two of his jokes were old, they were so well gotten off that one almost hurt oneself laughing at his performance. The part of Mrs. Newlywed was taken by Countess Olga Von Hartzfeld and her husband was Mr. Leo Hays. The lady has been here before in the Little Dutchess and at her part last night was even more pleasing than her other performances. She is musical, graceful and pretty, a combination that takes in musical comedy.

"The music was catchy and well executed. The costumes were all that the advance notices said they would be, the chorus was composed of about as good looking and musical girls as have ever appeared on the Durham stage and the staging was excellent. And above all, the performance was clean, not a single dirty suggestion being made during the two long acts."

Dixon's New Play.

Norfolk, Va., Sept. 21.—Thomas Dixon's recent production, that his latest play, "The Sins of the Fathers," would be his greatest dramatic effort was verified by its production for the first time on any stage in the Academy of Music tonight. Every seat in the immense auditorium was sold out several hours before the rise of the curtain.

It was estimated that at least 3,000 persons were turned away. Ticket speculators reaped a rich harvest, they placed their premiums as high as $5 a seat and anxious purchasers were eager to comply with their demands. In "The Sins of the Fathers," Mr. Dixon has sounded a new note on the race problem which will be echoed for many years to come. Tonight's big audience was thrilled before in the history of Norfolk. As the play unfolded itself the auditors gripped their seats and at the conclusion of each act applause was most enthusiastic and long continued. Mr. Dixon has built his theme on the evils resulting from the intermingling of the black and white races. The heroine is suspected of having the negro taint in her veins and the complications that ensue are woven into a story of tremendous strength and intensity. Interspersed with the liveliest variety of burlesque comedy, wherever it is produced it is certain to create a sensation equal if not exceeding the now historic "Clansman." In a speech tonight at the conclusion of the second act, Mr. Dixon expressed his confidence in the success of the appeal contained in his new play to the manhood and womanhood of the South. He had endeavored in "The Sins of the Fathers" to point out the greatest menace to the life of the Republic. The lesson in the play, he said, he had learned from his own mother and he wanted to convey this message to every home in his native South. In an interview Mr. Dixon announced his intention to make the Southern trip with his company, which includes several actors of prominence. It may be necessary to curtail the tour to permit of a return to his home in New York. No less than three offers from New York theatres were received by wire tonight by Manager George H. Brennan. J. ARNOLD DALBY.

The former is a drama depicting the permit of young society women in the ensnaring of an unsophisticated young backwoodsman, who falls a victim to her alluring game of the moth and the flame, in which he plays the moth. The second shows "Grandmother" at her best and will be found interesting.

WOMAN DID THE SHOOTING.

More Light on the Brunswick County Shooting Affair. Millie Holden, colored, one of the negroes arrested Monday in connection with the shooting of Walter Thornwell, colored, at Town Creek, Brunswick county, Sunday night, made a statement yesterday in which she said that she fired the shot that seriously wounded the Thornwell negro. According to her statement she had one pistol and Sam Butler, who was arrested a few days ago, had another. She said that Elizabeth Williams, colored, who was also arrested Monday, and gave bond pending further developments, was connected with the affair. In view of the statement of the woman, Justice J. Johnson issued commitments and sent both the negro women to jail at Southport. Mr. Robt. Willet was deputized to take the negroes to jail. The Williams woman, said that while in jail she would take the whole affair to Jesus and felt confident that she would be given her freedom at the trial. Brunswick Superior Court begins next Tuesday with Judge Oliver H. Allen presiding. A report from Town Creek last night was to the effect that Thornwell is improving, but yet unable to give an intelligent account of the shooting.

MAY FREE CHARLTON SOON.

Attorneys Will Move For Dismissal of Case Tomorrow.

New York, Sept. 21.—When Porter Charlton, the young man charged with having murdered his wife and thrown the body in Lake Como, appears before Judge Blair, in Court of Oyer and Terminer in Jersey City, Wednesday his attorneys will formally move for the dismissal of the case on the ground that the Italian government has made no formal demand for him.

The treaty expressly provides that no citizen of the United States shall be returned to Italy for trial without a formal demand on the State Department by an authorized officer of the Italian government. This demand, they are convinced, has never been made.

Inquiries at the State Department for the past six weeks have produced only evasive replies. If the demand has not been made, Charlton is practically a free man, for the treaty also provided that the papers shall be filed with the State Department within 49 days after the date of the arrest.

The attorneys say that the State Department has committed several blunders, and that through these blunders the Italian government will try to extradite Charlton, ignoring certain important provisions of the international treaty.
