

ance of property or stocks, making express or implied agreements, refusing to sell to jobbers, or in any other way. Further opposition to the disintegration scheme was offered by Henry H. Hunter on behalf of the independent retail tobacconists of the country; Attorney General Williams, of Virginia, who spoke also on behalf of Attorney General Bickett, of North Carolina, and Attorney General Lyon, of South Carolina, and John W. Yerkes, representing the Independent Tobacco Manufacturers' Association.

Hunter declared that 600,000 independent retail tobacconists in the country, men seriously affected by the tobacco trust, saw in the plan of re-organization no assurance of ending the cruising system that had been grinding them. His clients, he said, urged the court to order a receivership to bring about "a fair and honest termination of the trust."

Attorney General Williams spoke for tobacco producers, whom he said insisted upon real competition. John W. Yerkes attacked the mutual stock ownership in re-organization plan and that it affords no protection to the independent manufacturers. The division of brands proposed to be placed in the separate companies projected, Mr. Yerkes described as an "adroit scheme of segregation absolutely destructive of competition between the four big companies." An argument of protest was filed late in the day by Felix H. Levy, in addition to that filed jointly by himself and Louis D. Brandeis, for the National Cigar Leaf Association and other concerns.

Mr. Brandeis addressed the court in support of objections to the re-organization plan filed by the National Cigar Leaf Tobacco Association; the Cigar Manufacturers' Association, and the Independent Tobacco Salesmen Association.

Mr. Brandeis said there was no difference of opinion as to the demand of the Supreme Court; that either the products of the trust be enjoined and a receiver appointed or a re-organization agreed upon.

He declared "the time for the disintegration of these companies—this trust—is the present time, today, if we are to have fair competition, have distinct ownership."

Representing the North Carolina Farmers' Union, Attorney Justice pictured the poverty of the tobacco growers of that State since the formation of the tobacco trust and destruction of competition.

"In proportion as those defendants have accumulated their vast fortunes which they call their vested right, in that proportion have the tobacco growers of North Carolina lost the accumulation of competitive times," said Mr. Justice.

He said the farmers saw nothing in the proposed plan that would change conditions.

"I have no doubt," he continued, "that these 29 defendants can appeal to common stockholders as successfully to secure elections of advantageous directors as they can now to assure election for themselves."

SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES.

Dr. Milton's Brother Died as Result of Auto Accident. A message received by members of his family here Sunday morning from Rev. Dr. Wm. E. Milton, rector of St. James' Episcopal Church, conveyed to them the sad intelligence of the death of his brother, Mr. L. T. Milton, which occurred Saturday as the result of an automobile accident in Jacksonville, Fla., Friday night. Dr. Milton left early Saturday morning to be with his brother, who never regained consciousness after the accident. The body was taken to Berryville, Va., where the young man's parents reside, for interment. Saturday's Jacksonville Times-Union gives the only details of the accident received here, as follows:

"The skidding of a big touring car on the east approach of the Adams street viaduct yesterday afternoon at about 4:30 o'clock, in which the machine side-wiped into a westbound Fairfield car, resulted in the death of Robert Van Ness, of Panama, and serious injuries to L. T. Milton, both automobile demonstrators. The men were rushed to St. Luke's hospital by Conant's automobile ambulance three minutes after the terrific crash, and all efforts set in motion for their aid. The possibility of serious internal injuries and the necessity of a considerable lapse of time before the extent of Milton's injuries can be ascertained, made the case one of a problematic sort for the physicians in charge."

"Both men, who are mechanics, are said to have been trying out a touring car which they had been at work upon yesterday. The machine was headed east on Adams street, and was coasting down the incline of the east approach at the viaduct, when a swing to the right was made to miss the Fairfield trolley car, which was climbing the steep grade at this point. The emergency brakes were applied to the trolley when the peril of the situation was taken in by the motorman. The trolley is said to have been at a complete standstill when the touring car slid into it with a deafening crash."

"The body of Van Ness was driven against the side of the trolley car in a fierce thrust, the impact of the blow also hurling Milton forward. Both fell limp to the pavement. The car men called physicians Conant's ambulance was soon on the scene, and the injured men were dispatched to St. Luke's hospital. Soon after the arrival there, the manager of the auto agency they worked for was at the institution exerting every effort in their behalf."

"The wet pavement yesterday afternoon is deemed to be the cause of the accident. The automobile is said to have been going at a moderate rate of speed when the accident took place. Both Milton and Van Ness were among the best known auto men of the city. The former is also prominent as an amateur in athletic circles and on a number of occasions has appeared in local glove contests. He is married and lives at Riverside."

"Van Ness was a newcomer in automobile circles and is a youth of only about 19 years. In spite of his powerful physique and constitution, he breathed his last at about 8 o'clock last night."

A MEMORIAL

At the regular meeting of the Grace Methodist Church Epworth League, October 29th, 1911, the following Memorial was adopted and the secretary instructed to spread a copy upon the minutes of the League, also to send copies to the bereaved family, and to the Wilmington daily papers and the Raleigh Christian Advocate for publication:

When one short week ago the Angel of Death came down from the regions of eternity, taking from our midst our friend and comrade, Leon Lewis Corbett, each member of the Epworth League of Grace Church realized as never before just what he had meant to us all as a co-worker and a personal friend.

How we shall miss his kindly smile and voice as we attempt to hold the broken chords together! We shall miss him in our League possibly more than in any other phase of church life, for his love here flowed outward in one boundless current of self-sacrifice and service.

CAMDEN MISS HELPED BY CARDUI

Miss Wilson Suffered for Nine Years, But Finally Obtained Relief by Taking Cardui

Camden, Miss.—"About five years ago," says Miss W. E. Wilson, of this place, "I had to undergo an operation, and after that it hurt me to stand on my feet or walk much."

"I had suffered, more or less, with womanly troubles, for more than nine years, and I was very weak and nervous. As soon as I commenced to take Cardui, I felt better. Now I am not taking any medicine, for I don't need any."

"Cardui has done me more good than anything I have ever taken. It is the greatest medicine for women that was ever made."

"This remarkable letter, from a lady who has actually tried Cardui, ought surely to convince you of the genuine merit of this successful medicine, and induce you to give it a trial for your own troubles."

Cardui is the ideal remedy for all weak, suffering women, young or old. Cardui acts specifically on the womanly constitution, preventing unnecessary pain, and building up strength where it is most needed. During the past 50 years, it has proven itself to be a reliable remedy for weak women. It has helped others, and should certainly help you. At all druggists. Try it.

(The Sunday School also observed Luther Day with special services, led by the superintendent, Mr. C. W. Polvogt. Emphasis was laid on home missions at this service.)

Rev. H. E. Beatty, pastor of St. Matthew's, Evangelical Lutheran Church, preached on "Truth of Repentance, the Moving Power of the Reformation," in the morning and at the evening service on "The Conversion of Luther." The choir rendered music appropriate to the Reformation season. All the services were largely attended.
