The Odd Fellows' Home at Goldsboro will be one of the matters to rereive attention at the convention and the discussion relative to this splendid will be led by Orion Lodge No. 67, Mr. L. W. Moore, of this city, talked interestingly yesterday of the institution and of the fine work it is doing. Wilmingtonians have a peculiar interest in the institution, which was founded by the late and lamented Nathaniel Jacobi, of Wilmington, in 1892, with 20 acres of land and one small building. In the collection to be shown at the High School all stages of art are represented, beginning with Egyptian architecture and coming down to modern American art. The pictures are all the most careful and faithful reproductions. The architectual subjects are reproduced directly from the originals, and the reproduction of the paintings are from the original canvasses. Wilmington people generally will no doubt embrace this opportunity to see the collection.
