A daughter here was Mrs. i niversity of North Carolina, a grand-There were numerous other relatives from Franklin, Granville, John-ston and other counties, besides the immediate families of the sons and daughter of the honored Winston sire. Governor Craig's address paid high tribute to Patrick Henry Winston, the distinguished line of ancestry through whom he came and the posterity that has followed him. Preceding him were distinguished Englishmen of noble lineage and such colonists and other Americans as William Winston, colonel of the Colonial Army; Patrick Henry and his cousins, Joseph Winston, here of King's Mountain and Guilford Court House; Dolly Madison and William Winston Seaton, famous journalists, and Anthony Winston, Governor of Alabama, who was a brother of Patrick Henry Winston, whose portrait was presented. The Governor declared that "To be ranked among the noblest of our State, to live after death in this our Panthenon of History, is a distinction he has

Throughout his address he scattered story and humor that held the close attention of his audience and made the lessons he imparted stand out with great clearness

At 2:30 the declamation contest was held, participated in by ten boys and girls selected from the intermediate grades of the county schools. Forty-three certificates of promotion to the High School grades were presented to pupils who successfully passed the examination.

Likeness of Patrick Henry Winston To Ascertain if Inheritances of Real Estate Are Subject to Inheritance Tax Under Law.

Now the Corporation Commission district attorney, and Judge Robert W. as State Tax Commission has investigated the matter and is convinced S. Spruill , from Rocky Mount; also that the ruling that real estate was Prof. Patrick Henry Winston, of the not liable under the act was an error and will take steps to have collections made throughout the State where there have been inheritances that have thus far escaped this tax through the ruling of the Attorney General. It is probable that the test case will be made up in Wake county Superior court, there being several large estates that will be liable to this "back tax" if the Corporation Commission is sustained in its view. There are the Tucker estate and the Raney estate and a number of others. One or another of these will probably be selected for the litigation that will try out the test case.

Model Rural Community in Sampson. L. C. Brogden and S. S. Alderman, of the State Department of Education, Mrs. Chas. McKimmon and T. E Browne, of the State Department of Agriculture, have gone to Sampson county for the purpose of taking a hand in establishing a "rural community" along the co-operative idea that is being especially exploited by the State Department of Education for the public schools to be the center of the educational and social life of the community. The first "community" instituted was one in Granville county some weeks ago. The Sampson county movement is the second for the State.

Record Catches the Rule, Not Exception.
