Bullish Effect.

New York, April 20 .-- Cotton receivmany brokers thought that his country should be forced would be more bullish than otherwise, as it would be expected to stimulate the demand for cotton duck, ossibly cause a scarcity of labor Southwest. At any rate, after early irregularity the market generally steady and closed at a net gain of from 6 to 11

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to an advance of two points on better cables than due on Saturday's Ne wYork break. There were a good many over-Sunday selling orders around the ring, and offerings ders around the ring, and offerings ders around the ring, and offerings also were encouraged by the favor-able week weather forecast, but after showing a net loss of two or three points the market rallied. Houses with Liverpool connections seemed to buying a comparatively small int of May offered for sale, while the larger local houses was credited with buying July for certain local and Southern bulls. Reports of heavy rain in the central belt on Sunday may also have encouraged some scattered buying of new crop positions in the face of daily forecasts and warm weather and as worked higher recent sellers cover. Active months sold to 15 points net higher in consequence, with July relatively firm, on rumors that strong interests were accumulating that delivery at prevailing discount. Prices were 3 to 4 points Schr. William Thomas Moore, Jones, 261 tons, Maffitt & Wood. Futures closed steady.
