Graham says that the division for supplying the legume for inoculation to the farmers of the State is now entering on an especially busy season with orders for the legume coming in by every mail. The price for this material has just been reduced by the department from 50 cents per acre to 40 cents per acre. It costs when purchased commercially $2. per acre. The indications are that far and away the biggest volume of orders for the legume inoculation will come in this season, which continues well into November, this season rounding out the first year of the work of this division of the work of the department in furtherance of the interests of the farmers of the State.
