

Chords and Discords

In October, the frost is on the punkin, and the fiddler's in the shock, sings the poet, which being interpreted in plain language means that October has come. Poets have found much joy in singing of the charms of this month, which to many is one of the most beautiful of all the year. It is then that the trees begin to turn to the most beautiful red and gold. And then, too, the sunsets with their tints and colors are the most charming of all the seasons.

Yes, October is here, reminding us that life at its best is short and soon passes. But living is worth while so long as we can enjoy the myriad beauties that nature has provided.

James Whitcomb Riley, the Indiana poet, in his own inimitable style, sings of this month of months:

"I love old October so
I can't bear to see her go;
Seems like I lost some
Old home, relative, or chum,
'Pears like sorto, settin' by
Some old friend 'at sigh by sigh
Was a-passin' out o' sight
Into everlasting' night."

Playing Chess.
He who would play chess must have patience. It is a game that appeals to those of mathematical turns of mind but not to those of impulsive temperaments. It possesses a fascination that appeals strongly to those who would feel the joy of strife of the battlefield without being subjected to its dangers.

Time is an important element in chess and he who would be an expert in this ancient of games must give to it days of laborious thinking. It is not a game for the lazy man or for the laggard but it has little fascination for the man who wants to see something doing every minute.

It is said that when recently a man came to Wilmington and saw two leading professional men poring long and intently at a chessboard without ever making a move of any kind, he wanted to know if they were sick or just ordinary fools. The men beyond him understood that they could find any fun in simply doing nothing.

The Man of Interest.
She didn't deceive him except to say that he is the man of interest. She had survived many courtships of a more or less serious nature but whether she considered this a courtship or not she didn't say. For her, however, he was at the time the man of interest and she was finding much interest in studying him.

Doubtless the man didn't think of it that way. He may have been one of those serious minded mortals who find little in life of interest unless it concerns his own welfare. He probably was serious in his intentions but for her he was just another one of the species.

Some times men—poor mortals—seem to be deadening uninteresting but by looking beneath the surface it may be possible to detect something out of the ordinary that helps to relieve the monotony.

The man of interest may not always be interesting except as another species of men. But it's some consolation to a man to know that he may even be considered worthy of attention as a specimen if that and nothing more.

The Changing Fashions.
Not long ago a North Carolina editor wrote that he had decided to take back all that he had said about the new fashions for women after having inspected the new styles prescribed for the men. And truth to say, the men have become about as fastidious as the women. It wasn't so long ago when a man could dress the same year in and year out and still be in style but that time has past.

The makers of clothing, hats and shoes, have discovered that by putting out an entirely new set of styles once or twice a year, they can induce a great many men to make purchases, who would not otherwise do so. Nobody—not even the men—wants to be considered a back number when it comes to clothing.

Being a mere man, we desist from making any remarks about the styles for women although it seems that the originators of the new fashions are still determined to limit the supply of material as far as possible. The same is true of the men. But there is not so much said about it in the latter case.

"Down by the Silvery Sea."
It remained for the telegraph editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, who evidently is of a poetical turn of mind, to give Wilmington a new designation. In sentimental tenderness, suggested no doubt by the days when he wrote love letters, he denominates these environs as "down by the silvery sea." Well, old son, you may say it if you want, although you have never visited this garden spot of the earth you have by your fine regard for the eternal fitness of things, made those fortunate ones who have the privilege of living in the city by the sea feel that they, too, would like to become sentimental and forget the humdrum toil of daily tasks and brask in the moonlight of these beautiful fall nights.

We are right fond of our ocean and while perhaps it has become so common to us that we cannot appreciate it as we should, we are glad to have some of its beauty suggested to us by outsiders who care like a sweet morsel to a hungry man is the descriptive phrase so tenderly bestowed upon our city by one who pictures in his mind the beauty of the silvery sheen of the rolling waters when the rays of an autumn moon is showered down upon them.

Her Point of View.
A well known Wilmington physician likes to tell his friends about a certain old colored woman whom he used to visit. She had been ill for a number of years and this physician made it a rule to call on her regularly to see that she was being properly cared for and to give her any medicine she might need. However, he never got anything for his trouble.

"Do you know Auntie," he remarked one day when he was making a regular call, "that if all my patients treated me like you do that I wouldn't be able to make a living practicing medicine. What would I do, if they all treated me like you do?"

"Well, doctor, I s'pose you'd jest haf ter go ter work like de res' of us do," she replied.

Things As They Are.
A Wilmington man, who isn't in the newspaper business, has promised some of these days to write a book on things as they are and he is of the opinion that it will be interesting reading. It will. But if he writes it, he will have to be sure that it is about things as they are, and not else. If he wants folks to read it here. Not that Wilmington is a bad place. There are many who believe it to be the best spot on earth for pure unadulterated happiness.

But folks don't want to know the truth about themselves. If they did they would not be so much fiction read. Life has enough of the humdrum about it without our having to be told more about things that are out of gear. We'd rather hear something about the romantic and the unreal. We want to forget about our troubles and the sorrowful affairs with which we have to be concerned most of the time.

CARTER-ADAMS WEDDINGS.
Marriage of Popular Young People at Wallace.

(Special Star Correspondence.)
Wallace, N. C., Oct. 13.—One of the most brilliant events of the season was the wedding of Miss Ethel Mae Carter, the lovely and attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Z. J. Carter, of this place, who became the bride and Mr. Charles Bladen Adams on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock, in the Presbyterian church.

The church was most elaborately and artistically decorated in cascades of ferns, goldenrod and candles, the color scheme of yellow and white was carried out most effectively.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Lucile Malette, of Wilson, rendered a beautiful musical programme. To the wedding march from Lohengrin the bridal party entered. The ushers, Messrs. Carey and Almon Carter, brother and nephew of the bride; Ben Leonard, of Wilmington, N. C., and Luke Boney, of Wallace, N. C. They were followed by the groomsmen, Messrs. Bert Taylor, Pearson Harris, William Landis and James White, all of Oxford; and the bridesmaids, Misses Margaret Bells Leonard, Edna Griffith, of Richmond, Va.; Jessie Fleetwood, of Jackson, and Jettie Charles, of Bladenboro, all being attired in quaint white satin dresses, with an overdress of tulle and silver, and a long white tulle scarf caught in the hair with pearl ornaments carrying yellow chrysanthemums. Next came the bridesmaids, Mrs. Luke Boney, of Wallace, N. C., sister of the bride, and most charming in a white bride's satin train, trimmed in lace, pearls and rhinestones, and carrying yellow and white chrysanthemums. The maid of honor, Miss Lillie Carter, sister of the bride, was most exquisitely gowned in a Paris creation of yellow satin and gold lace, extending from the French bow in her hair was a soft flow of yellow tulle, and carrying white chrysanthemums, indeed made a lovely picture.

Just preceding the bride were the two little flower girls, Dorothy Westcott Carter and Annette Carter Boney, nieces of the bride, dressed daintily in white accordion pleated crepe de chine, carrying miniature bouquets of yellow chrysanthemums.

Leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. N. H. Carter, who gave her in marriage, came the beautiful young bride. Never did she look more lovely than in the wedding robe of duchesse satin, which set off to perfection her dainty loveliness, it being trimmed in real lace, rhinestones and pearl ornaments, and carrying a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white chrysanthemums. The only jewel she wore was a platinum la valiere inlaid with diamonds, a gift of the groom.

The groom, with his brother, Mr. W. A. Adams, of Oxford, as best man, and officiating minister, the Rev. C. V. Brooks, pastor of the Baptist church, entered from the vestry and met the party at the altar, the full ring service being used. The bridal party left the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march. Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Adams left at 8:15 for an extended northern trip. The bride's going-away gown was a very smart suit of raspberry douventyne, trimmed with moles, with hat and gloves to match.

The bride of last evening is of the blonde type, has a most fascinating and charming personality, and is admired by a host of friends for her sunny nature. Mr. Adams is one of Oxford's most successful young business men, being prominent both in business and social affairs, being secretary and treasurer of the W. A. Adams Tobacco Co., of that place.

At the lovely country home of the bride, known as "The Elms," on Wednesday evening following the rehearsal, an informal reception was given. On Thursday at high noon a five course wedding breakfast was served, given the bridal party, the color scheme of yellow and white being most effectively carried out.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Adams were the recipients of many handsome and beautiful gifts, which came from all parts of the State, they being very popular in a wide circle of friends.

Kinston, N. C., Oct. 16.—Theodore Partrick, a newspaperman of Clinton, will make an address in St. Mary's Episcopal church here tomorrow. The pastor, Rev. John H. Griffith, will preach the regular sermon to the students of the University at Chapel Hill in the morning, and to a mixed congregation in the University town at evening.

DEATH AT MOUNT OLIVE.
Mrs. Frances Hubbard Passes Away After Several Months' Illness.

(Special Star Correspondence.)
Mt. Olive, N. C., Oct. 15.—Following several months' ill health due to a complication of internal disorders, Mrs. Frances Hubbard, about 55 years of age, died at her home here this morning about 3 o'clock. One daughter, Miss Beattie Hubbard, who resided with her mother; one son, James Hubbard, and other near relatives, most of whom reside near Warsaw, survive her. The remains were interred this afternoon.

Wilson, N. C., Oct. 16.—The Atlantic Coast Line will erect a new freight depot immediately and the plans are ready. The building will be 470 feet long and 60 feet wide and will extend from Barnes street to Smith street and will be located on the west side of the railway right of way. The old loading shed will be torn away.

DOUBLY PROVEN
Wilmington Readers Can No Longer Doubt the Evidence.
This Wilmington woman testified long ago.
Told of quick relief—of undoubted benefit.
The facts are now confirmed.
Such testimony is complete—the evidence conclusive.

It forms convincing proof of merit. Maggie Riverbark, 105 Dock St., Wilmington, says: "I suffered from a constant, dull ache in my back and loins. Some days, I could hardly get about the house. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and highly colored. I had no strength, and mornings felt tired and languid. I used several medicines, but nothing gave me much relief until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Bellamy's Drug Store. They proved to be just what I required. They cured the backaches, cleared up the kidney secretions and regulated the action of my kidneys." (Statement given February 25, 1908.)

On April 8, 1915, Miss Riverbark said: "Whenever I notice any signs of kidney disorder, I take a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills and they never fail to do me good."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy, get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Maggie Riverbark had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Small-Size Tires Enlarged 20%

Sizes 30 x 3 1/2 and 30 x 3

Goodyear tires won top place by giving more than others. For that reason alone these tires for years have outsold any rival.

This year we are giving to users of small tires three more costly extras. Now Goodyear tires in these sizes, more than ever before, excel any like-size tire.

3 More Extras
We have added 20 per cent to the air capacity. Added size, as you know, adds mileage. We have added 30 per cent more rubber to the side walls—to the part above the rim. That's where constant bending breaks a thin-walled tire.

We have made new molds of a new design which adds endurance, we have found.

Lower Prices
These new extras alone, on this year's output, will cost us $317,000. They will save our users ten times that, perhaps.

Yet this year we made another big price reduction. It was our third in two years, totaling 45 per cent. That's one result of mammoth output—a value no one else can give.

Even in size 30x3, in Goodyear tires, you get a four-ply tire. In our All-Weather tread, you get a double-thick anti-skid. Now you get this extra size and extra strength. More than ever you owe yourself the use of Goodyear tires. No other make compares with them in low average cost per mile. A half-million users have proved that.

HAD PELLAGRA; IS NOW CURED

Hillsboro, Ala.—J. W. Turner, of this place, says: "I ought to have written you two weeks ago, but failed to do so. I got well and then forgot to write you. You ought to see me run around and tend to my farm. I can go all day just like I used to. I am so thankful to know there is such a good remedy to cure people of pellagra."

There is no longer any doubt that pellagra can be cured. Don't delay until it is too late. It is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn. It is your duty.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off, sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red, with much mucus and choking; indigestion and nausea, ether diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope; get Baughn's big Free book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., box 2997, Jasper, Ala. Remembering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure. Advt.
