MR. RANDOLPH TEACHERS HOST TO HIS OLD TIME FRIENDS Laurinburg, N. C., June 17.—On Wednesday of last week Mr. W. Randolph McEachern entertained a party of his old time friends at his Laurinburg home, and the gathering was indeed a notable one, says the Exchange this week. The party consisted of Capt. M. H. McBryde and Mr. N. L. McCormick, of Laurinburg; Messrs. W. H. McCollum, W. H. Graham and W. C. Williams, of Rowland. These gentlemen with Mr. McEachern are six of the twenty-six old veterans who are now living out of the 112 who composed the "Scotch Greys" a company formed here in what is now Scotland county and did valiant service in the War Between the States. The company was commanded by Captain McBryde.

This gathering was the first time these old Confederate soldiers had been together in more than fifty years and their coming together was a perfect love feast for them. The average of their ages is 76 years.

Mr. McCormick was wounded by sharpshooters near Kinston, and Mr. McEachern, who was next to him in rank at that time, had his leg slightly wounded in the same manner the day before. Mr. McCollum was also wounded, this happening at Fort Fisher, at which place twenty-two of the brave Scotch Greys gave up their life.

It was an occasion of much joy and happiness to these old vets and many a story of the terrible conflict was related.

That fate may be kind to each of them and that the highway that is leading them on to the Great River, where all must cross, will continue to lengthen their life and happiness yet to be theirs, is the sincere hope of all who know, and of course, honor and love these great and good men.

DR. STEPHEN J. HAWES WEDS A FAIR BELHAVEN BRIDE The Belhaven, N. C. Journal of the past week has the following which will be of interest to many friends in this section of the State:

"One of the prettiest weddings of the season was solemnized at the Methodist Episcopal church, South, on Wednesday morning, June 14th, when Miss Annie Lena White was united in marriage to Dr. Stephen James Hawes. "The church was a veritable bower of flowers and ferns. The festooning consisted of countless, clinging fingers of ivy, and the banking of long leaf pine. The color scheme, being pink and green, was accentuated by tapering candles and darkened windows which gave a soft and solemn glow to the occasion.

"Long before the hour set for the ceremony, the church was crowded with relatives and friends of the bride and groom. At 10 o'clock sharp a vocal duet was effectively rendered by Misses Mary Elizabeth Smith and Maude Bowen. Then amid a hush the beautiful strains of Lohengrin's wedding march was heard. All eyes turned then to the entering groomsmen who marched up the center aisle and took their places behind the chancel railing; Dr. E. J. Smith, of Atkinson, N. C.; and Dr. Ernest Dunn, of Newbern, N. C.; Dr. J. T. Hoggard, of Atkinson, N. C., and Mr. Nathan Richardson, of Dover, N. C.; Mr. Harvey Wadsworth, Cove City, N. C., and Mr. W. M. Bolger, of Atkinson, N. C.

"The bridesmaids beautifully attired in white net and tulle, with huge butterfly bows of pink mullin, and hats combination of leghorn and pink mullin, the bridesmaids, Mrs. J. C. Hines, of Killarney roses, and took their places behind the chancel railing just in front of the groomsmen: Miss Corrie Wilkinson and Miss Lydia Matyette; Miss Bessie Casin and Miss Rosa Mae Wooten.

"Then acting as matron of honor and becomingly gowned in point d'esprit and white satin and carrying bouquets of white roses, Mrs. S. J. Peele followed by Mrs. J. C. Hines, sister of the bride, who took their places just outside the chancel railing where a horse-shoe was formed after the rest of the party took their places.

"The maid of honor, Miss Julia White, then gracefully followed, carrying Killarney roses.

"The little page, Master Franklin Riddick, prettily attired in white, then took his place bearing the ring on a silver waiter.

"The groom, attended by his brother, Mr. E. A. Hawes, Jr., waited at the altar for his bride, who entered on the arm of her adorable grandfather, Mr. Joseph White. This was a picturesque scene indeed. She carried lilies of the valley, brides roses and orchids. She wore a going away suit of blue with hat to match. Miss Julia White, who preceded the bride, looked dainty and sweet indeed in white.

"Just as the last maid and groomsmen left the church after this couple was made man and wife, Mr. William Snell joined Miss Maude Baynor, who turned the music; and Mr. D. W. Richardson, of Dover, N. C., joined the organist, Miss Ruby Credie, and marched down the center aisle.

"The groom is a promising physician of note and wide popularity of Dover, N. C.

"The bride is the talented and beautiful daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. White. Dr. Hawes is indeed to be congratulated. No bride ever left Belhaven surrounded by as many friends and well wishers. The Journal joins in the extending of well wishes to the bride and groom. May their paths be strewn with roses of joy and success.

"Amidst a shower of rice they left on the eleven o'clock train for an extended tour through Canada."
