ROTARIANS ENTERTAIN THE COTTON MILL MEN

At Big Barbecue at Cedar Point, on Masonboro Sound.

Trip Down Cape Fear on Seminole Concluding Feature of Convention. Visitors Highly Pleased With Entertainment.

Members of the North Carolina Cotfriends as well as a large number of people from Wilmington were enterbarbecues at Cedar Point on Masonboro Sound, yesterday afternoon. The showterfered somewhat with the pleasure of the event, but when the party of erly butchered and handled, it seldom more than 200 reached the scene they occurs. quickly forgot whatever trouble they may have had in reaching the place. Special cars were furnished for the manufacturers and their friends to take them to Wrightsville station, where they were met by automobiles in which they were speedily transported to the spot made famous by barbecues and oyster roasts from the days that run back to the time to which the memory of most men in this section run not to Music. The affair was entirely informal and was not even marked by any speech making further than that the visitors were told to help themselves. After they had done this, there was much more left than the proverbial twelve baskets. While the guests were enjoying the splendid dinner provided for them, the Hanover concert band reniered selections. As soon as the barbecue was finished, the visitors were hustled into automobiles and brought to the city for the trip down the river on the coast guard cutter Seminole.

Capt. Preston H. Uberroth had everything in readiness for the trip and little time was lost in getting aboard. Promptly at 3:20 o'clock, the big boat swung away from her wharf with utmost ease and hardly before to having seen him take the suit case. the visitors knew it, they were doing down the river at a rapid pace.

Owing to the rather rough sea, it was not thought advisable to attempt an inspection trip over Fort Caswell, and the Seminole after making a circuit of Southport harbor returned to Wilmington. An interesting feature of the return trip was the race between the Seminole and the steamer Wilmington, which was returning from Southport. For six miles or more the Seminole and the Wilmington ran neck and neck and then the engineer of the for- atory to leaving the train, and that number of songs and solos of a most mer thought he would show what his boat could do when she was a mind to. He put on extra steam and let her go pass the Wilmington. The visitors enjoyed the little race hugely and none more than the genial Capt. John W. Harper, master of the Wilmington, who has taken many hundreds of people on trips down the river.

PETITION FOR UNION-MADE BOOKS HAS MANY SIGNERS

And Document Will Be Forwarded to State Commission Today.

With a view to inducing the State Text Book Commission at Raleigh, which is now engaged in the task of choosing texts for use in the public schools of the State to select school books manufactured in union shops, a petition has been gotten up by the Wilmington Typographical Union, which will be sent to the Commission tonight. This petition already has more than 100 signers from among the business and professional men of the city and this number will be considerably increased before the petition is forwarded. Accompanying the petition is brief explanatory state signed by "R. J. Villere, president, and H. D. Stanland, secretary, of the Wilmington

Typographical Union, No. 556, as fol-"The several unions of the printing trades throughout this country have been the means of vastly improving the conditions of workers of that important industry, and have succeeded in placing the business on a higher plane; and while looking carefully after the material welfare of the workers they have, through educational work and the securing of improved sanitary surroundings, greatly decreased the death rate. "Two of the unions have provided splendid homes to care for the aged or incapacitated tubercular afflicted members, while one has established and maintains an old age pension system, and that these unions have, through their educational systems, not only elevated their own membership and all others engaged in the printing industry either as workers or employ-

"The unions have also used their nfluence in manifold ways for the advancement and betterment of humanity. It is one of the prime objects of the union printing shops to produce better and more permanent and standard work than the non-union shops. "In view of these facts, as the State Text Book Commission is now engaged in the task of selecting text books for RATTLER IN BERRY PATCH the public schools of North Carolina, the undersigned hereby memorializes said commission, in making the selection of the books, to give preference to those which are produced under union conditions and to require that books for future use shall be so produced."
