SAVE GAME WITH PRINCETON ONLY THROUGH ALERT DEFENSE AND ABILITY TO QUICKLY SOLVE TIGER ATTACK

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 11.-By the the relative attacking strength of the sau land in many seasons and it was only the extremely alert defense and tack that saved Harvard from a noscore tie, if not defeat.

Princeton launched its hardest attack against the Crimson without finding a unsuccessful attempt to kick goal. weak point in the Harvard armor, whereas the Haughton-coached mato sweep aside the Orange and Black present, line with an impetuousness that made the kicking of a field goal by Horween a simple piece of the play. The struggle was witnessed by the largest assemblage of football enthusiasts that has attended an eastern game this auturn. Close to 40,000 specttaors filled the great horse shoe stadium and overflowed into the temporary stands at the open end of the structure. Princeton adherents were present by the thousands and the Orange and Black were almost as conspicuous as the Harvard Crimeon. The game was played under almost perfect weather, the high wind alone bothering the players in the for Love, Folger for Coleman, Watkins handling of punts.

Har- ford. ing duel between Driggs and Horween Paisley for Gray. reached a stage when the Princeton fullback kicked almost from his own goal line into the wind and the ball went out of bounds on Princeton's

Quarterback Murray turned loose Harvard's hardest drive on the Princeton line and Horween smashed and Casey skirted to the Tigers 20 yard Here Coach Rush sent Winn to replace Moore at right half back for Princeton. Winn carried a message for Captain Hogg and in his eagerness to deliver it forgot to report to Referee Langford, and the Tigers were penalized 15 yards. It was Harvard's ball on the first down on Princeton's 5-yard

Horween and Murray battered out three yards in two plunges. Then the Crimson forwards were held in their anxiety to score and the team was set back 15 yards. Horween, standing on burg 37; Washington and Jefferson 0. Princeton's 26-yard line and directly in front of the goal posts then lifted of Maine 3. a drop kick across the bar for the only score of the contest.

Harvard did not show as much in the way of varied or novel attack as Princeton, but the victors were extremely active and followed the ball equally as well as the Tigers.

Driggs runs from kick formations behind excellent interference gained ground for a time, as did a new play uncovered by Princeton for the first time this sason.

It consisted of sending a half back far out beyond the end and having him come in toward the center of play on the run as the ball was snapped as an interferer or receiver of the forward pass. The Harvard defense soon solved this play, however, and Princeton appeared to be left with little or no further attack,
