

HOME-READING COURSE FOR CITIZEN-SOLDIERS

(Issued by the War Department and all rights to reprint reserved.)

This course of daily lessons is offered to the men selected for service in the National Army as a practical help in getting started in the right way.

THE TEAM LEADERS.

Most of the men in the Army are private soldiers. Their work is of the greatest importance and deserves all the respect and praise which it receives.

Next above the captain is the major, whose proper command is a battalion. Above him is the lieutenant colonel, the commanding officer of a regiment.

One general, however, serves as Chief of Staff of the Army. As such he supervises all troops and departments of the military service.

The chain of authority reaches in an unbroken line all the way from the President in any way affects the recruit, it passes through the Secretary of War, Chief of Staff, major general, brigadier general, colonel, major, captain, sergeant, and possibly corporal until the recruit is reached and the order obeyed.

Ordinarily only the most general instructions are issued by the higher officers. The manner in which these instructions shall be carried out is left to the judgment of officers in closer contact with the troops and with a more intimate knowledge of the conditions under which they are working.

Next above the corporal in rank is the sergeant. There are usually three sergeants in a company. Unless a sergeant has some other duty assigned to him he is normally the leader of a platoon.

Next above the sergeant in rank is the sergeant major. He is usually assigned to special duties constantly in the company. The sergeant major is in Army slang, the "top sergeant", for example, keeps certain company records, forms the company in ranks, transmits orders from the company commander, and performs many other important tasks.

Sergeants and corporals are known as noncommissioned officers, because they are appointed by their regimental commanding officer. Officers of higher rank are known as commissioned.

Lowest in rank among the commissioned officers is the second lieutenant. Above him comes the first lieutenant and above him the captain. These are the three "company officers."

Early yesterday morning, late Wednesday night ten trains of Pennsylvania National Guard troops were routed through Fayetteville to their camp at Augusta.

ARMY AND NAVY CLUB AT SOUTHPORT IS NOW OPEN

Through Attend Ceremonies at Opening of Home for the Soldiers and Sailors.

(Special Star Correspondence.) Southport, N. S. C., Aug. 31.—The recently fitted up rooms on the entire first floor of the Masonic lodge building on Nash street were thronged last night by the soldiers from Fort Caswell and invited guests, who had been asked to attend the occasion of the opening of the Army and Navy Club.

These rooms being dedicated to the soldiers for their use whenever they may be in Southport, as a place where they may feel perfectly at home, to read the periodicals of the day, write letters, play games, smoke and generally come and go as they please.

A step higher is the lieutenant colonel, the commanding officer of a regiment. Lieutenant colonel ordinarily assists the colonel and in his absence takes the command and the colonel is disabled or absent, the senior major takes the command.

The suggestion of such quarters for the soldiers and sailors came from the ministers here, and immediately found response and action at the hands of the business men and citizens, the result being the Army and Navy Club, with the rooms as noted above.

For the occasion, permission to attend was given to about fifty men from each company at the Fort, also the Fort's band, adding greatly to the spirit of the night's program, the following being the order of exercises observed, held in the beautiful front yard, the speakers making their addresses from the spacious front porch of the Lodge building.

Introduction—Fort Caswell band. Address—The Reason of the Gathering; Its Purpose—Hon. E. H. Cranmer. Address—Objects and Work of the Brunswick Council of Defense—Hon. C. Ed. Taylor, chairman local council.

Address—Local Red Cross Work—Miss Kate Stewart. Musical Selection—Fort Caswell band. Address—Presentation of the Quarters to the Soldiers and Sailors—Maj. Joseph W. Ruark, in behalf of Southport citizens.

Address of Acceptance of Quarters—Lieutenant Moore, for the soldiers. Music Selection, "Dixie"—Fort Caswell band. At the conclusion of the program, which was both enjoyed and enthusiastically received, refreshments were served by the ladies, thus completing the successful opening of the Army and Navy Club, which cannot fail to prove a means for the comfort and pleasure of those for whom it was designed.

THEATRICAL

After the distinct hit of yesterday, patrons of the Grand will again flock to that theatre today when told that another great Gladys Hulette, feature is on, "Her New York."

This little actress is going to be one of the biggest stars in America. She is already well on the way and she gets better with every picture. "Her New York" is probably the best yet. This is a chance for you to identify her with your theatre and make her your star and clean-up.

"Her New York" has more thrills and dramatic action than any of Gladys Hulette's former pictures. It was written by Phillip Lonergan and produced at the Thauhouer Studios under the direction of Eugene Moore. Mr. Lonergan's vehicle gives the star many an opportunity to put her attractive personality across," says the Motion Picture News. "Her New York" entertains quite as fully as did its predecessors. "Her New York" is characteristic of the type of play the public has learned to expect from Miss Hulette, whimsical, humorous and dramatic, all at once.

"Her New York" is characteristic of the most compelling story from beginning to end and it gives Gladys Hulette a wonderful opportunity for her delightful chaperonizations. Nell, while William Parke, Jr. does splendid work as Jack Monroe. Helen Badgley, the cute little Thauhouer child actress, is as pretty as ever. The role of Nell's little sister. Other members of the strong cast are J. H. Gilmore and Thos. A. Curran.

The Bijou will present one of the biggest shows of the week for the big week-end crowds today. Of course, the bill is headed by a mammoth L-Ko comedy scream, "Rough Stuff," is the title and it's everything that the title would suggest—and a little bit more.

Yells of laughter will greet this L-Ko stunt comedy, featuring the imitable Dan Russell in the leading role. With Gladys Faraday and Walter Stephens. The fun rages fast and furious in a hotel lobby, and at a fashion show, where Dan gets close to the beauties on parade. Walter is the belly and introduces rough stuff that will send you into paroxysms of hilarity. It's a roar, in two reels.

Nestor day also today and Eddie Lyons, Lee Moran and Edith Roberts in "The Rushin' Dancers" pull a bunch of new stuff. The dancing craze furnishes them with a novel plot. All the ladies are dance crazy and the men have to do the housework. They import a female dancer (no they say) but in reality the bunch make Lee the goat, and it's a scream.

Current Events is also on today's big bill with some new official French war pictures.

FEAR THE ETERNAL TRIANGLE.

So Wives of English Farmers Object to Women Laborers. (Chicago Tribune.) England has mobilized several thousand women for farm work, but although the nation faces the greatest crisis in its history, comparatively few have been sent to the farms. Yet the crops are near the harvest. The chief obstacle has been the farmers' wives.

Letters received at the Labor Bureau in London are mostly from the husbands. Usually they are reserved and evasive as to the real reason why they refuse the tender of women help, for which, in some cases, they had asked months ago.

But a few letters from the wives themselves and the discoveries of some of the landholders disclose a fear of crisis in the labor force if the eternal triangle, quadrangle or polyangle may endanger their control over their spouses.

"I told one of my best men," said a Yorkshire landowner, "that if he would plant the most of his meadows in potatoes I would obtain labor for him for cultivation and harvest. Registered at the Labor Bureau I found an adequate supply of women labor, many of education and standing, who hoped thus to serve their country. I wrote my man that six women would be out in a few days.

"I visited his house a few days later and his wife was crying and holding my hand. I evidently arrived at the end of a domestic storm. She told me she wished I would keep my fingers out of their domestic affairs. My protest was of no avail.

"She had enough trouble keeping her man," she said, "without a lot of women around."

TO OUR MUNITIONS MAKERS. (By Alexander Louis Fraser of The Vigilante.) While you toil on, far from the blood-red field, Believe that every blow your tired hands give, Forges yet stronger than resistless shield Behind which Liberty alone can live.

And as you tend the fires both noon and night, This, honest toilers, I would have you learn: Without your aid, in freedom's home, the light Our father's kindled soon would cease to burn!
