THE DOOM OF DER TAG.

They raised their banners in a night. They laughed all past to scorn; For this, they wanted, this great day.

On Belgium and France "Der Tag," A fiery brand they placed; For this, they said, is our great day—

They stole the brains of better men And turned them to their craft; They launched their fleets of submarines,

O, yes, they laughed upon their day, And now their day is done! Free fly the flags of every land

SCHWAB PROMISES TO VISIT WILMINGTON YARDS He and Charles Piez are Expected Here in December. Local shipyard officials have been expecting to receive a visit from Charles M. Schwab, director general of the Emergency Fleet corporation, for several weeks. Mr. Schwab has already inspected shipbuilding plants on the Pacific coast and those in the New England states, and shipbuilders along the south Atlantic coast have felt for some time that a visit from him is also due here.

Before the armistice was signed, "Uncle Charlie," as the shipbuilders around Philadelphia and Hog Island call him, promised shipbuilders here that he would visit Wilmington November 20, which is generally understood to be the coming of peace and the necessity for readjusting the shipbuilding program Mr. Schwab was forced by the press of business affairs at Emergency Fleet corporation headquarters to postpone his trip to southern shipyards.

No definite date for a future visit to Wilmington has been set by Mr. Schwab, so far as local authorities know, but it is generally understood that shipyard officials here received assurance yesterday that he and Charles Piez, vice-president of the Emergency Fleet corporation, will arrive here on a tour of inspection in December.

As general manager of the steel division of the United States shipping board and director general of the Emergency Fleet corporation, Mr. Schwab has supervision over practically every large shipyard in America, thereby virtually directing the nation's shipbuilding industry. That local shipbuilders are eager to "take a look" at the world's greatest shipbuilder, and to hear him deliver one of the stirring addresses that have made his name a family word among shipbuilders of the north, goes without saying. When "Uncle Charlie" comes down into this neck of the woods, Wilmington will have "some company," and the occasion will demand an extra-special brand of welcome from the shipbuilders and from the city in general.

OFFICERS COULDN'T FIND STILL GODWIN REPORTED

Made a Thorough Search Yesterday Morning Without Result. As the result of the accusations of O. D. Godwin that Lubie Byrd had been operating an illicit distillery near his home, which is about a mile below the yard of the Carolina Shipbuilding corporation, Deputy Sheriff W. H. Howe and R. L. Harker, accompanied by Godwin, went to the place designated by the accuser and searched the swamps for two or three miles in every direction but they were unable to locate any still. Neither did they find any place where one had been operated recently.

The accusation of Godwin was made shortly after he and Byrd had a bloody physical encounter and while Godwin was said to have been in a drunken condition, it is possible that he made the report without having the best of foundation for it. However, the officers are thoroughly convinced that there is no still in the vicinity designated by Godwin. It was stated that Godwin held firmly to his statement of the previous day that he had seen Byrd operating a still but he was unable to lead the officers to the spot where it was located.

CARNIVAL IS SENT TO HEALTH BOARD

(Continued From Page Five.) before the board of health, if necessary, to register this protest and seek community relief at their hands. "Members of the committees expressing themselves were under the impression that the city council had gone on record against the appearance of carnivals in Wilmington and had taken official action in regard to the matter."

The council chamber was well filled with men and women, the majority of whom were there to enter protest against the attraction and to give moral support to the spokesmen. Following Secretary Cowan, Mrs. J. M. Solky protested in behalf of the Sorosis society, stating that she heartily endorsed every word contained in the preceding communication. Mrs. S. Solomon, interested in the Mothers' Boys' work, and Mrs. W. B. Cooper, representing a reasonable number of women against the coming of the carnival.

W. H. Sprunt and J. Allan Taylor were among others who voiced their disapproval of having such an attraction visit the city at this time. Mr. Taylor argued from a health standpoint and said that no business interest should be taken into consideration when it was a matter of public health. He stated that how the disease could be easily spread through the congregating of people in carnival tents and on the grounds.

But as he considered it a matter of public health that should be passed upon by experts, Mr. Taylor recommended that it be left with the board of health to decide if the carnival should fill the engagement next week. Upon this recommendation a motion was made referring the matter to the board of health with request that a special meeting of that body be called to pass on it.

Among those who spoke favorable for the carnival coming here were J. H. Stone, local organizer for the American Federation of Labor, and a representative of the company that is to show here. The latter stated that the engagement had been made transportation arranged for and that from a business standpoint he felt that his company should be allowed to fill the engagement. He also explained the sanitary conditions of his shows and invited the health authorities to make a general inspection, and the police authorities to arrest any person engaged in a business at his carnival that was conducted in violation of state or city laws.
