

THE MORNING STAR Published by the WILMINGTON STAR COMPANY, Inc. MEMBERS THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Subscription prices: By mail, postage paid, 1 yr. $3.00, 6 mo. $1.80, 3 mo. $1.00.

ABOUT SABBATH OBSERVANCE The question of relaxing in some degree the laws bearing on Sabbath observance in this city is up again and as usual there is much said and much that can be said on both sides.

WARNING OF ADMINISTRATION DESIGNS. Why Judge Hughes' warning of government designs, seconded by the New York Herald, which ought to know better? The Herald reprints this extract from a speech recently made by Judge Charles E. Hughes in New York city:

LAST OF BUIE TWINS DIED SATURDAY NIGHT Were Famous Confederate Soldiers and Noted For Their Age—Other Robeson News. By F. GROVER BRITT. Lumberton, Dec. 3.—The last of the noted Buie twins has passed away.

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 4, 1918.

TOP OF THE MORNING. Beautiful hands are those that do work that is noble, good and true; busy with them the long day through.

How would you like to be mistaken for the Kaiser in disguise? The girls and boys can tell you who's coming three weeks from to-day.

All belligerents except the republicans have abandoned warlike movements. The Kaiser is less concerned about losing his imperial crown than about losing his head.

Things are in a tangle in Europe, and if the people in the various countries haven't got the wisdom to untangle them, any league of nations that might be created will have a mighty big job on its hands.

The evidences are accumulating that the world war is really at an end. A New York paper on Sunday contained nearly a quarter of a column about Harry Thaw. Maybe Villa will soon get another showing.

There will now be war books galore, including one by former Secretary of State William J. Bryan under the title of "Why I Left the Cabinet." Of course, the book will give the reason why he would not remain in the cabinet.

Perhaps the Bolsheviks in Russia can deny the charge that they have made a failure of their regime. They may be able to prove that their plans are succeeding—viz: To kill off all opposition so there won't be any at all.

Automobilists are to be warned by the weather bureau of approaching storms. Better furnish pedestrians some kind of warning of approaching automobiles, especially when they skim along too fast on the narrow streets of Wilmington at a speed that makes life dangerous.

The little nations which have come to life out of the European debacle should be warned to let each other's territory alone till the peace conference can make arrangements to have a survey made defining their territorial limits. The new nation of Poland isn't letting any grass grow under its feet in its claims on territory.

If republican contentions are right, Vice President Marshall would be president till the President Wilson gets back from Europe. The republicans are not making trouble for the sake of the vice president, but for the purpose of embarrassing the president. They are not a bit grateful for what President Wilson has done for America since our country got into the war nearly nineteen months ago.

Since we haven't got any need of having the biggest navy in the world, nobody will worry about Great Britain's insistence on naval supremacy, provided she makes as much use of it for civilization as she did during the past four years or more. Since we don't care to be mistress of the seas, the next best thing for us is to let John Bull be it.

In 16 sales days on the tobacco market at Greenville, N. C., $2,539,416.30 was distributed among the tobacco growers of the Greenville section. The farmers marketed 5,313,200 pounds of leaf tobacco and received on an average of $48.68 per hundred pounds. To November sales must be added the sales of previous months. No doubt we have witnessed the greatest yellow leaf tobacco year in the history of the industry in eastern North Carolina.

The Richmond Journal says reproachfully: "Apparently, there are other news associations than the United Press of a too confiding disposition. The former Kaiser's abdication, for example, was heralded in Associated Press papers more than three weeks ago, but it now transpires that his act of renunciation is dated November 28. People who live in glass houses should exercise restraint in hurling rocks." Even now nobody knows for certain all about the Kaiser's abdication. It does not make much difference if he hasn't abdicated. He can wait till he is de-throned and dehorned, if he likes. Besides, the Associated Press did not "herald the abdication more than three weeks ago." It carried Prince Maximilian's statement, which said: "The Kaiser and King had decided to renounce the throne." That was November 8.

But it is futile and foolish to attempt Puritanical-Sabbath observance in this day. It is equally foolish to think that certain classes by reason of the refinement of their recreations, made possible by wealth and position, can enjoy themselves without "breaking" the Sabbath, while certain other classes without means of "refined" Sunday pleasures, cannot indulge themselves in humble amusements and recreation without despoiling the Lord's day of its holy character.

If you ask us, we are prepared to say that it is no more of a violation of the Sabbath in morals or law, for a workman, to take his brood and fare forth to a park with reasonable means of amusement and recreation, than it is for a well-to-do professional man to motor with his family to the beaches or chase the festive golf ball on the green. The Puritan Sabbath cannot, simply cannot be observed nowadays.

The upper classes of people with means for holidaying, will holiday to their hearts' content. This being so, those classes which do not have the facilities at hand for "refined" Sabbath pleasures, must be allowed such pleasures as come within their reach. They do not have opportunity or means to secure the varied amusements of the week, available to others. Sunday is pre-eminently their day. It must be allowed them or they will take it sooner or later and in the taking, the Sabbath will lose something it ought to retain, something it could give without being damaged, but which if not given, will be taken with injury all around.

A loud, coarse, brawling Sunday park is wanted, we take it, by none. In a sober community it will not be tolerated. But an open Sabbath afternoon for wholesome recreation and amusement is not to be longer denied those who would enjoy it.

The question is insistently coming up. Of course, there is always commercialism in it. Parks do not grow naturally. They must be created and that takes money. A liberal attitude and a final satisfactory decision, once for all, is needed. People ought to be able to attend the duties of the Sabbath and enjoy recreational pleasures without harm to themselves or anybody else.

THE SENATE LEFT ON THE SLOB JOB. The nose of the United States senate is out of joint, especially the republican part of its nose. President Wilson has gone off to Europe to attend the peace conference and America is to have only five delegates to participate in the work of arranging peace for the world. Three of the delegates are democrats and two are republicans, but when the president prefers to be non-committal on questions, the delegates will be a tie as to politics, but what in the world has American politics got to do with peace for the world?

The president has left the senate on the job at home, but the senate wanted to go to Paris, or at least wanted to be represented in the peace delegation. It has been said that it has been proposed for the whole senate to go over to Paris to supervise the peace conference but that has never been a joke. Nevertheless, it is no joke that Senator Cummins (Republican) of Iowa, introduced a resolution proposing to send a committee of eight to Paris to keep the senate advised of the progress of the peace conference. In the House of Representatives Representative Rodenburg (Republican), of Illinois, had introduced a resolution proposing that Vice President Marshall take over all executive functions upon the departure of President Wilson from the country. Over in the senate yesterday, Senator Sherman (Republican) of Illinois, on yesterday introduced a resolution similar to that of Representative Rodenburg, excepting that his resolution went a step further and declared the office of president vacant.

One republican senator proposes to take the functions and duties of the president away from him till he comes back, but Sherman proposes to get rid of President Wilson altogether by declaring his office vacant because the president felt that it is his solemn duty to attend the peace conference and aid in securing peace for the world.

This shows that there are always plenty of fools who are ready to start something when the opportunity presents itself. While the world wants peace and the president has gone to Paris to help to get it for all humanity, including our own people, some so-called American statesmen are ready, Johnny on the spot, to set the whole peaceful nation by the ears. Buncombe is no name for what some mountebanks would propose in an hour already sufficiently grave. The people elected President Wilson and it is a rather startling idea that a United States Senator should undertake to unseat him. The nerve of him!

The hungry millions in Europe expect more from Herbert Hoover than they do from any of the great generals of the war.

The government at Washington is too indifferent to such insinuations as that thrown out by Judge Hughes, instead of immediately giving the people to understand that there is no warrant for attributing ulterior purposes to the democratic administration. If there is a reasonable suspicion in the mind of Judge Hughes himself he also needs assurance himself that the government is not up to any such tricks that he ascribed to "ulterior purposes"—the equivalent of dark designs, against which the people need to be "warned" in speeches by such eminent men as former Associate Justice Hughes.

President Wilson's address to congress on Monday is all the assurance that either Judge Hughes or the people or the press need that such warnings are both superfluous and absurd.

THE PRESIDENT'S TRIP AGAIN. The treaty-making powers of the government are given the president and the senate. The president is charged with the negotiations, the senate confirms his bargains, or rejects them. President Wilson is now off on a business trip for the American people. He will negotiate for them. When he completes his task, the senate, notwithstanding the presence of some jackasses among its personnel, will consider the result of the negotiations and place on it the seal of its approval or disapproval.

The senate has neither part nor parcel in the negotiations which the president and his state department will conduct. The senate is comparable, in this instance, to an appellate court, or court of final resort, which reviews the conduct of the primary court, or the president, in this case. Yet in spite of these facts of the constitution, there are senators who would thrust themselves into the primary court proceedings and try the case, and later arrange their flowing togas along the bench of the appellate court and review their own conduct of the case. And those who would do this are loud-voiced in their condemnation of the president's decision to go abroad, because, they allege, is not provided for in the constitution.

The president is charged with the negotiations. The constitution does not say when or where he shall negotiate. He is going, in this instance, to Europe to conduct them. While no president has ever before absented himself from his official residence for so long a period as the president will be away, and while no president has ever gone so far from Washington as President Wilson is going, there is no prohibition in the constitution regarding it, and the republican senators who are cutting capers over it are doing nothing more than barking at the heels of a big man and a busy man, on a high mission.

The people have been frankly skeptical of this trip of the president, but with the light now dawning before them, they understand that what they paid for with much treasure and priceless blood demands the presence of their president around the council board, lest something of the fruits of their great sacrifice be lost. With this understanding, the masses of the people undoubtedly are approving of the voyage now begun, and they must feel a degree of contempt for the carping critics in the most august body on earth, some of them all but lost in the voluminous folds of togas originally out for men of heroic size.

When President Wilson addressed congress on Monday and explained that he felt that it was his duty to attend the peace conference, the Democrats applauded him. The republicans remained in a quiescent state, "because they disapprove of the president's trip to Europe." Had the president announced that he would not attend the peace conference, the republicans would have accused him of leaving Lloyd-George and Clemenceau the bag to hold in the matter of restoring peace to the world. Republicans refuse to be satisfied at anything when it is so much easier to make political capital out of what is going on, either one way or another.

Small Little Woodrow Keanan Dead. Mount Olive, Dec. 3.—Woodrow, the five-year-old son of Mrs. J. E. Keanan, died at their home here Saturday night at 12 o'clock, after having been painfully scalded when he fell in a tub of boiling water Saturday morning. The body was interred in the local cemetery Sunday afternoon.

Loan to Belgium. Washington, Dec. 3.—Belgium was given another credit of $12,000,000 by the treasury today, making her total loans from the United States $210,120,000 and the total of all the allies loans $2,196,376,666.

AMERICAN CASUALTY LIST. Washington, Dec. 3.—The following casualties occurring before cessation of hostilities and reported by the American commander in France were given out today for publication:

Table with columns: Name, Status, Date of Death. Includes: Killed in action (110), Died of wounds (220), Died of disease (14), Died of accident and other causes (14), Wounded severely (406), Wounded (degree undetermined) (405), Wounded slightly (119), Missing in action (208).

It is a war, not a prohibition measure, appears to sum up the opinion of brewing interests regarding the agricultural bill, which became effective Monday, stopping the brewing of beer by prohibiting the use of foodstuffs in the process. Most of the brewers had accumulated a six months' stock of the beverage at the time that the ban will be removed.—New York Herald.

It is intimated from London that to avoid unpleasantness over distribution of all the surrendered German war vessels will be sunk. This seems like a scrap of good material, for, even as the ships would be a lot of scrap, the destruction suggested is cheap if it saves trouble between friendly nations.—Montreal Gazette.

The release of some shipping enables England to draw on Australia to supplement the supply she is producing from the United States. Australia has a surplus of wheat because of the war, and is able to market it while all the available cargo on hand has been tied up tight in the shorter haul traffic during the war. Now that an easier situation begins to be felt in some of the Australian wheat markets, some of the wheat begins to move toward England, for several reasons. One is that the wheat is in imperative demand. It is a case of get it to aid in preventing the starvation now threatening all of Europe. It is also possible that Australian wheat, on which a yet to minimum limit of price is fixed, may be deliverable in Europe for less than American grain can be put down there until the fixed price made the farmer price by the government of the United States. And there comes in an interesting problem. The crop of wheat to be made next season is guaranteed in the guarantee is safe, for the prospects are that with all the wheat that can come from Australia and Argentina the world will still be short this winter and next summer, and possibly, the winter following, but if by any possibility the shortage should let up to an extent that prices will be affected the price fixed by this government must still stand to the farmers of the United States. The effect of that fixed price is one that is to be determined by the experiment. Perhaps the minimum to which American wheat can go may hold American wheat from the market if foreign wheat should show a disposition to go below that figure. The anticipation of an increased foreign crop may lead the farmer to watch his acreage, for he will figure that if he has $2.50 wheat and there is no market for it he will be no better off than if he has cheaper wheat and a demand. Until the Australian wheat arrives in market and shows its presence there that it is to have any effect at all on prices it is hardly worth while for the American farmer to be disturbed by the situation. Since the war started it has been a question of disposing of surplus wheat, but of getting enough wheat from any source. It is not likely that the empty warehouses of Europe are going to fill up with the first ship load of grain that comes from Australia.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Current Comment. "It is a war, not a prohibition measure, appears to sum up the opinion of brewing interests regarding the agricultural bill, which became effective Monday, stopping the brewing of beer by prohibiting the use of foodstuffs in the process. Most of the brewers had accumulated a six months' stock of the beverage at the time that the ban will be removed.—New York Herald.

It is intimated from London that to avoid unpleasantness over distribution of all the surrendered German war vessels will be sunk. This seems like a scrap of good material, for, even as the ships would be a lot of scrap, the destruction suggested is cheap if it saves trouble between friendly nations.—Montreal Gazette.

The release of some shipping enables England to draw on Australia to supplement the supply she is producing from the United States. Australia has a surplus of wheat because of the war, and is able to market it while all the available cargo on hand has been tied up tight in the shorter haul traffic during the war. Now that an easier situation begins to be felt in some of the Australian wheat markets, some of the wheat begins to move toward England, for several reasons. One is that the wheat is in imperative demand. It is a case of get it to aid in preventing the starvation now threatening all of Europe. It is also possible that Australian wheat, on which a yet to minimum limit of price is fixed, may be deliverable in Europe for less than American grain can be put down there until the fixed price made the farmer price by the government of the United States. And there comes in an interesting problem. The crop of wheat to be made next season is guaranteed in the guarantee is safe, for the prospects are that with all the wheat that can come from Australia and Argentina the world will still be short this winter and next summer, and possibly, the winter following, but if by any possibility the shortage should let up to an extent that prices will be affected the price fixed by this government must still stand to the farmers of the United States. The effect of that fixed price is one that is to be determined by the experiment. Perhaps the minimum to which American wheat can go may hold American wheat from the market if foreign wheat should show a disposition to go below that figure. The anticipation of an increased foreign crop may lead the farmer to watch his acreage, for he will figure that if he has $2.50 wheat and there is no market for it he will be no better off than if he has cheaper wheat and a demand. Until the Australian wheat arrives in market and shows its presence there that it is to have any effect at all on prices it is hardly worth while for the American farmer to be disturbed by the situation. Since the war started it has been a question of disposing of surplus wheat, but of getting enough wheat from any source. It is not likely that the empty warehouses of Europe are going to fill up with the first ship load of grain that comes from Australia.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Small Little Woodrow Keanan Dead. Mount Olive, Dec. 3.—Woodrow, the five-year-old son of Mrs. J. E. Keanan, died at their home here Saturday night at 12 o'clock, after having been painfully scalded when he fell in a tub of boiling water Saturday morning. The body was interred in the local cemetery Sunday afternoon.

Loan to Belgium. Washington, Dec. 3.—Belgium was given another credit of $12,000,000 by the treasury today, making her total loans from the United States $210,120,000 and the total of all the allies loans $2,196,376,666.

AMERICAN CASUALTY LIST. Washington, Dec. 3.—The following casualties occurring before cessation of hostilities and reported by the American commander in France were given out today for publication:

Table with columns: Name, Status, Date of Death. Includes: Killed in action (110), Died of wounds (220), Died of disease (14), Died of accident and other causes (14), Wounded severely (406), Wounded (degree undetermined) (405), Wounded slightly (119), Missing in action (208).

It is a war, not a prohibition measure, appears to sum up the opinion of brewing interests regarding the agricultural bill, which became effective Monday, stopping the brewing of beer by prohibiting the use of foodstuffs in the process. Most of the brewers had accumulated a six months' stock of the beverage at the time that the ban will be removed.—New York Herald.

It is intimated from London that to avoid unpleasantness over distribution of all the surrendered German war vessels will be sunk. This seems like a scrap of good material, for, even as the ships would be a lot of scrap, the destruction suggested is cheap if it saves trouble between friendly nations.—Montreal Gazette.

The release of some shipping enables England to draw on Australia to supplement the supply she is producing from the United States. Australia has a surplus of wheat because of the war, and is able to market it while all the available cargo on hand has been tied up tight in the shorter haul traffic during the war. Now that an easier situation begins to be felt in some of the Australian wheat markets, some of the wheat begins to move toward England, for several reasons. One is that the wheat is in imperative demand. It is a case of get it to aid in preventing the starvation now threatening all of Europe. It is also possible that Australian wheat, on which a yet to minimum limit of price is fixed, may be deliverable in Europe for less than American grain can be put down there until the fixed price made the farmer price by the government of the United States. And there comes in an interesting problem. The crop of wheat to be made next season is guaranteed in the guarantee is safe, for the prospects are that with all the wheat that can come from Australia and Argentina the world will still be short this winter and next summer, and possibly, the winter following, but if by any possibility the shortage should let up to an extent that prices will be affected the price fixed by this government must still stand to the farmers of the United States. The effect of that fixed price is one that is to be determined by the experiment. Perhaps the minimum to which American wheat can go may hold American wheat from the market if foreign wheat should show a disposition to go below that figure. The anticipation of an increased foreign crop may lead the farmer to watch his acreage, for he will figure that if he has $2.50 wheat and there is no market for it he will be no better off than if he has cheaper wheat and a demand. Until the Australian wheat arrives in market and shows its presence there that it is to have any effect at all on prices it is hardly worth while for the American farmer to be disturbed by the situation. Since the war started it has been a question of disposing of surplus wheat, but of getting enough wheat from any source. It is not likely that the empty warehouses of Europe are going to fill up with the first ship load of grain that comes from Australia.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Small Little Woodrow Keanan Dead. Mount Olive, Dec. 3.—Woodrow, the five-year-old son of Mrs. J. E. Keanan, died at their home here Saturday night at 12 o'clock, after having been painfully scalded when he fell in a tub of boiling water Saturday morning. The body was interred in the local cemetery Sunday afternoon.

Loan to Belgium. Washington, Dec. 3.—Belgium was given another credit of $12,000,000 by the treasury today, making her total loans from the United States $210,120,000 and the total of all the allies loans $2,196,376,666.

GOODMAN'S The House of Fashion and Quality Ladies' Garments THE HIGHER TYPE ONLY A SHOWING OF HIGH-CLASS FURS. We have just received a Shipment of High-Class Furs. A call will be very Much Appreciated. Furs of the Higher Type at Prices Most Reasonable. GOODMAN'S

AMERICAN CASUALTY LIST. Washington, Dec. 3.—The following casualties occurring before cessation of hostilities and reported by the American commander in France were given out today for publication:

Table with columns: Name, Status, Date of Death. Includes: Killed in action (110), Died of wounds (220), Died of disease (14), Died of accident and other causes (14), Wounded severely (406), Wounded (degree undetermined) (405), Wounded slightly (119), Missing in action (208).

It is a war, not a prohibition measure, appears to sum up the opinion of brewing interests regarding the agricultural bill, which became effective Monday, stopping the brewing of beer by prohibiting the use of foodstuffs in the process. Most of the brewers had accumulated a six months' stock of the beverage at the time that the ban will be removed.—New York Herald.

It is intimated from London that to avoid unpleasantness over distribution of all the surrendered German war vessels will be sunk. This seems like a scrap of good material, for, even as the ships would be a lot of scrap, the destruction suggested is cheap if it saves trouble between friendly nations.—Montreal Gazette.

The release of some shipping enables England to draw on Australia to supplement the supply she is producing from the United States. Australia has a surplus of wheat because of the war, and is able to market it while all the available cargo on hand has been tied up tight in the shorter haul traffic during the war. Now that an easier situation begins to be felt in some of the Australian wheat markets, some of the wheat begins to move toward England, for several reasons. One is that the wheat is in imperative demand. It is a case of get it to aid in preventing the starvation now threatening all of Europe. It is also possible that Australian wheat, on which a yet to minimum limit of price is fixed, may be deliverable in Europe for less than American grain can be put down there until the fixed price made the farmer price by the government of the United States. And there comes in an interesting problem. The crop of wheat to be made next season is guaranteed in the guarantee is safe, for the prospects are that with all the wheat that can come from Australia and Argentina the world will still be short this winter and next summer, and possibly, the winter following, but if by any possibility the shortage should let up to an extent that prices will be affected the price fixed by this government must still stand to the farmers of the United States. The effect of that fixed price is one that is to be determined by the experiment. Perhaps the minimum to which American wheat can go may hold American wheat from the market if foreign wheat should show a disposition to go below that figure. The anticipation of an increased foreign crop may lead the farmer to watch his acreage, for he will figure that if he has $2.50 wheat and there is no market for it he will be no better off than if he has cheaper wheat and a demand. Until the Australian wheat arrives in market and shows its presence there that it is to have any effect at all on prices it is hardly worth while for the American farmer to be disturbed by the situation. Since the war started it has been a question of disposing of surplus wheat, but of getting enough wheat from any source. It is not likely that the empty warehouses of Europe are going to fill up with the first ship load of grain that comes from Australia.—Raleigh News and Observer.

Small Little Woodrow Keanan Dead. Mount Olive, Dec. 3.—Woodrow, the five-year-old son of Mrs. J. E. Keanan, died at their home here Saturday night at 12 o'clock, after having been painfully scalded when he fell in a tub of boiling water Saturday morning. The body was interred in the local cemetery Sunday afternoon.

Loan to Belgium. Washington, Dec. 3.—Belgium was given another credit of $12,000,000 by the treasury today, making her total loans from the United States $210,120,000 and the total of all the allies loans $2,196,376,666.

AMERICAN CASUALTY LIST. Washington, Dec. 3.—The following casualties occurring before cessation of hostilities and reported by the American commander in France were given out today for publication:

Table with columns: Name, Status, Date of Death. Includes: Killed in action (110), Died of wounds (220), Died of disease (14), Died of accident and other causes (14), Wounded severely (406), Wounded (degree undetermined) (405), Wounded slightly (119), Missing in action (208).

FORD AND ADVISERS SAID TO SEEK RE-COUNT OF VOTES. Detroit, Mich., Dec. 3.—Steps to obtain a recount of the ballots cast at the senatorial election last month are under contemplation by Henry Ford and his advisers, it was said here today on reliable authority.

The official tabulation of the vote showed that Ford, running on the democratic ticket, was defeated for the election by Lieut. Commander Truman H. Newberry, republican, by 7,567.

War Contracts Cancelled. Washington, Dec. 3.—Cancellations of war contracts since the armistice was signed were estimated by Secretary Baker today to aggregate $2,600,000,000.

Convolve Reichstag Soon. Paris, Dec. 3.—The German reichstag will be convoked shortly according to newspapers in south Germany, says a Zurich dispatch to L'Information.

YOUR DUTY TO BE ATTRACTIVE Have Pretty Dark Hair "La Creole" Hair Dressing is the original hair color restorer, and not dye. Applying it to your hair and scalp revives the color glands of nature, and restores your hair to a beautiful shade or to its natural color. It is the only hair color restorer that will gradually darken all your gray or faded hair in this way. No matter how gray, premature gray, faded or lusterless your hair might be, "La Creole" Hair Dressing will make it beautifully dark, soft and lustrous. "La Creole" Hair Dressing will not stain the scalp, wash or rub off, and is easily applied by simply combing or brushing through the hair. Don't be misled into buying some cheap preparation. USE "LA CREOLE" HAIR DRESSING for gray or faded hair and retain the appearance of youth. Also used by gentlemen to impart an even dark color to their gray hair, beard or mustache. Sold and recommended by Jarman & Futrelle Drug Co., Wilmington, N. C. Mail orders promptly filled upon receipt of regular price, $1.20. "La Creole" Hair Dressing is sold on a money back guarantee.—adv.

NEW ARRIVALS Walking and Street Boots BROWN CALF Combination of calf and Astor Buck and Black Russia. New military heels. Dress Boots In fine French Kid in Brown, Field Mouse, Dark Gray, Black, with pretty Louis heels. All sizes and widths.

Peterson & Rulfs "Home of Good Shoes." Image of a brown calf boot.

DR. M. BUETTNER Chiroprapist The Orton. Private Office. Hours: 8:30 a. m., 6:30 p. m.

MADAM LOTTIE & SISTER WORLD'S GREATEST PALMISTS Wish to advise public that they will only be here for a short time and those who have not had the opportunity to consult them should do so at once. Scientific palmists, known from coast to coast as wonderful life readers. This may be your last opportunity. Come early to avoid rush. Many hearts made glad by their truthful predictions. Office Hours: 10 A. M. to 9 P. M. 122 1/2 Princess Street. UPSTAIRS.

SHINGLES! SHINGLES! SHINGLES! CYPRESS AND JUNIPER Also slate surfaced asphalt shingles. See samples at our office, 206 Princess Street. ROGER MOORE SONS & COMPANY Wilmington, N. C.