LUMBER DECISION WILL HELP FIGHT

Government Prepared To Take Action Against Number Of Combinations.

tion were placed in the catagory with cision in the hardwood lumber case at Memphis announced tonight its intention to proceed against all commercial groups conducting operations similar to those of the hardwood lum-

While the lumber case was of a civil character, Assistant Attorney General Ames, who directed the prosecution, declared it had clearly established the law's application. It was on this basis, he said, that the government would direct the prosecution of corresponding trade bodies believed to have operated in combination to restrict trade.

It was understood that the department had under consideration data concerning more than thirty such

Mr. Ames said that no trade organization could feel immune from the anti-trust statutes through having filed with the department papers defining its operations. He made it clear that the department had not thus committed itself to show them leni-

The Memphis decision was the first of its kind and is viewed as having given the government new capies to develop in the campaign against the high cost of living. A hint was given that the department expected to start soon seeking evidence against trade bodies composed of dealers in food-

The Memphis decision also was said to have furnished a basis for an attempt to end the exchange of trade information with respect to prices and stocks by injunction methods.
