"Oh Daddy"-Academy.

It is a long time since any com- with today's chapter which gives you pany has elicited such a uniform flood an insight into the start if you missed of praise from the press as that accorded the big musical comedy which will come to the Academy of Music tonight in "Oh Daddy." Its story has a humorous appeal with complications that involve uproariously funny situations. The action is rapid and is filled W. H. Thayer, of Wolleston; H. W. with snappy dialogue and tantalizing Croft. of Oakmont, and Lou Hamilton, music, with lively bunches of young and of Garden City, at Pinehurst today pretty girls, who really can sing and and won by one up.

is opening at the Victoria tomorrow. Allan Dwan closely followed the book so as to preserve in full all the dramatic, romantic and adventure situations related in the story. Norman Kerry and Anna Q. Nillson, principals in this photoplay, are admirably suited for the parts in which they have been cast.

"Soldiers of Fortune" through its many thrilling episodes and abundance of action lends itself admirably to photoplay interpretation. It was Augustus Thomas who first produced this story for the stage at Charles Frohman's Savoy theatre, New York, March 17. 1902, with Robert Edeson in the star role. The success experienced by the dramatized version was equal to that of the book. In offering the story as a film play, Mr. Dwan has been able to present it in more vivid colors and with much broader strokes than the limitations of the spoken drama would permit, and has even add-ed to the delight of the tale by bring-ing it up to the present time. But he appears to have adhered to the main story so as to hold all of the original romantic charm with which it abounds.

Probably one of the most pathetic characters worked into a photoplay of recent months is that of Mirlam Kirkstone, played by Jane Novak in "The River's End," a Marshall Nellan pro-duction written by James Oliver Cur-wood and distributed by First National Exhibitors' Circuit, which will close its engagement at the Victoria theatre longet tonight

O N the edge of civilization there are no traditions. Men meet life with all the strength of soul within them. That is why the greatest stories have always been written, not of the atrophied emotions of society, but of the virile people nearest the great outdoors. There men may be good-or bad-but whatever they are, they are strong.

"THE RIVER'S END" is a story of the Royal Mounted Police-a story of adventure and a story of a wonderful love. It is Mr. Neilan's best and Mr. Curwood's finest novel.
