SURGEON KILLED WHILE ATTENDING MORNING SERVICE

As He Was Taking Up Collection In Fashionable New York Church

PERSONAL PHYSICIAN TO PIERPONT MORGAN

Murderer Captured After Chase And Is Now Being Held For Investigation

New York, April 13.—Dr. James Markoe, a well known surgeon, was shot and killed today while taking up the offering at the morning service in the fashionable St. George's Protestant Episcopal church, 15th street and Stuyvesant place, in the old aristocratic district of New York.

PERSONAL PHYSICIAN TO PIERPONT MORGAN

The assailant was captured after a short chase by a group of parishioners. The prisoner gave his name first as Thomas W. Simpson. The police said he told them he had escaped Thursday from the eastern state hospital for the insane at Williamsburg, Va.

Choir Continued to Sing

The church was crowded with parishioners, many of them representatives of the wealthiest families in New York, when Dr. Markoe was walking down the left aisle taking up the collection while the choir was singing an anthem. As he reached the twelfth pew from the rear and leaned over to pass the plate, Shelley, who was seated next to the aisle, suddenly sprang up and fired a bullet which struck Dr. Markoe in the left eye and he fell back in the aisle.

Several Women Screamed and Men

Several women screamed and men rushed from their seats, some to the aid of the physician and others in pursuit of the assailant. Shelley, who was in the pew next to Dr. Markoe, was the only one who remained in his seat. He was the only one who remained in his seat. He was the only one who remained in his seat.

Caught in Stuyvesant Square

Shelley then ran from the church in the direction of Stuyvesant square. He was the first to read him. He grabbed the man's arm but Shelley managed to wriggle himself loose long enough to fire another shot which grazed Dr. Brewer's thigh. By that time several other members of the congregation had thrown Shelley to the ground and he was being held by a policeman. He was handcuffed and taken to the police station.

Carried Radical Literature

Search of a suit case Shelley had checked at the Pennsylvania terminal revealed to the police say, several radical papers and pamphlets. He also had a draft card showing he had registered, September 12, 1918, under the name of Thomas W. Simpson, 203 Fourth street, Sauk City, Wisconsin.

Told A Rambling Story

Shelley told detectives he had been given the literature by a man named "Miller," whose first name he could not remember. "My memory is very bad," he said. "Are you an I. W. W.?" he was asked.

RAILROAD STRIKE AFFECTING NATION REACHES AN END

Bulk Of Men Who Followed John Grunau Have Returned To Their Tasks

SUBSTANTIAL PROGRESS IN CLEARING FREIGHTS

Outlaw Union Heads Will Meet Today To Consider Plans For Future

The nation-wide railroad strike apparently has collapsed. Except in a few isolated sections, railroad officials reported last night the bulk of the men who followed the leadership of John Grunau, a Chicago trainman, had returned to work.

Normal passenger service was virtually restored, they said, while substantial progress had been made in moving the vast amount of freight that has been accumulating throughout the country, especially in the east, during the past three weeks.

Many of the strikers went out without presenting any grievances and later announced that failure to receive increases in wages granted to other railroad men prompted their action. The strikers, who acted in defiance of the railroad brotherhood chiefs, have generally returned without any definite promises of more pay.

Board Will Consider Case

In many cases, however, they have been assured their demands will be presented to President Wilson's labor board, which is empowered under the federal transportation act to settle disputes between the railroads and their men. The board is now sitting in Washington.
