

PEACE UNDER KNOX PLAN
MAY GET HARDING'S O. K.

New President Will Hardly Try to Coerce Senate Majority and Knox's Resolution Only Needs a Majority, Not a Two-Thirds Vote—Harding's Own Plan to Be Disclosed in His Inaugural Address March 4

By MARK SULLIVAN
(WASHINGTON, Jan. 8.—If anybody heard from his recently ended conference with "best minds" is going to make distilled essence, so to speak, and that the distilled essence is going to be Harding's program with regard to the League of Nations, such an assumption is very wide of the mark. I have talked with many, perhaps most of the important persons who have discussed with Harding his plan for an association of nations as a variation or substitute for the League of Nations. On the basis of this information, I think it is safe to say that all that Harding has in mind is this. He is making a plan. The plan will not go into details. Harding does not intend to put that into details. It is merely a set of principles, so to speak, and he intends to restrict it to that. This plan he will disclose in his inaugural address on March 4. Within a week after March 4, he will put certain machinery in motion. As to what this machinery is, Senator Harding has made no greater disclosure of details than he has made of his plan for the League of Nations. I assume that this machinery will consist of a commission to negotiate with the leading nations of Europe. That is all that Harding has in mind. So much for that. Let us now consider the forces at work outside of Harding and to some extent antagonistic to Harding. The first thing to remember is that Harding can not make any plan that would affect foreign relations except "by and with the consent of the senate." So far as that is concerned, it would be contrary to everything we know of Harding. If he should try to do that, the prerogative of the senate is it is very decidedly to be believed that whatever plan Harding puts out will first have been shown to the senate and will have the assent of that body. He will do nothing until he is first satisfied it can be put through. The will of the senate is the measure of what Harding can put through. The difference between Harding and Wilson is that Wilson conceived a plan and then attempted to put that plan through against the senate's will. Wilson tried to get the public back of him and with that public backing tried to beat the senate down. Harding is not likely to do anything like that. Certainly not in the early stages of his administration. Harding is much more likely to conciliate the senate, to find out how far the senate is willing to go, and then adopt that as the maximum of his plan. Senate Anti-League Let us then see what the new senate is likely to do. The new senate is overwhelmingly Republican. What action it is to take about foreign affairs is most likely to be determined by the Republican majority. The prevailing drift of that Republican majority is markedly anti-league. The Republican majority in the new senate, in all probability, when the time comes will hold a caucus on this subject. Indeed, I suspect that informal caucuses are already being held by a group of senators who I think are likely to be dominant on this subject. I suspect, but can state it no more strongly than as a suspicion, that the plan which Senator Knox announced last week as an alternative to our entering the League of Nations was the result of just such an informal caucus of a group. It is fair to Senator Knox to say that he rather evaded admitting that Senator Knox certainly did not stand alone in such a sensational step as he took. Most of the old irreconcilables must have been back of him. And the irreconcilables in the new senate will be more numerous than in the last. That is incontestable. In the first place, most of the new Republican senators are irreconcilable in their leanings. I know this is so because I have been at pains to talk with some of them and correspond with nearly all of them. The bulk of the say they are opposed to the league, and practically all of them say they will be guided by attitude of the Republican majority or by the Republican caucus. Moreover, many of the hold-over senators who last winter were for the league with reservations have now moved closer to the irreconcilable position. Conspicuous among these is McCumber of North Dakota. Last winter he was the lone Republican who was willing to vote for the league without any reservations. Last week Senator McCumber called on Harding and notified him that he had abandoned his old position and had moved over toward the irreconcilable senators. Furthermore, Shields of Tennessee, have position. All in all, the new senate is much more likely to be dominated by the irreconcilables than by those who are friends of the league in any degree. Since Senator Knox's plan is one of the three acknowledged leaders of the irreconcilable senators, let us examine the plan which he formally laid before Harding last week. Senator Knox's plan leaves the league wholly out of consideration. His program is as follows: First, immediately after March 4 Senator Knox will introduce his resolution for a separate peace with Germany. This resolution will undoubtedly pass the senate. In fact, in substantially the same form it has already passed the present senate, but was vetoed, of course, by President Wilson. If the Knox resolution could pass the present senate, it would be the more readily pass the new senate. There can be no question about that. The passing of the Knox resolution will end the state of war with Germany and clean up everything connected with that. It will prepare the ground for the next step. The next step is really Senator Knox's equivalent for our entrance into the League of Nations. He proposed, either as a part of the resolution, to introduce the following: "It is the declared policy of the United States in order to meet fully and fairly our obligations to ourselves and to the world, that the freedom and peace of Europe being again threatened, it would view such a situation with grave concern as a menace to its own peace and freedom; will consult with other powers affected with a view to devising means for the removal of such menace, and will, the necessity arising in the future, cooperate with the friends of civilization for its defense."

That is Senator Knox's substitute for our entering the League of Nations. The extent to which it will be received as a satisfactory substitute depends wholly upon how those who receive it already stand on the League of Nations. If they are for a strong league, this will be very distasteful to them. If they believe in a general way with Senator Knox and the other irreconcilables, this will give them satisfaction. This Knox plan is not, of course, a league. It is not a treaty or anything else of the kind. It is a mere public official declaration of policy. It is an action taken by ourselves, without involving any agreement with any foreign nation. Senator Knox himself admits this. In arguing for the adoption of his public official declaration, it might prove worthy, I believe, to serve with the Monroe doctrine as a fundamental doctrine of American diplomacy. It entangles us in no way. Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Fardier and little daughter, Amelia Archer, spent last Sunday with relatives at Garland. Miss Bettie Cox has returned to Wilson after visiting relatives here. Mr. and Mrs. Will Bryan and little daughter of Folkstone, Mr. and Mrs. Jennings Williams and son of Durham, and Mrs. C. L. Holt, of Little Rock, Ark., formed a house party at the home of Miss Ella Williams last week. Miss Besie Barden went to Raleigh Tuesday to enter Peace Institute. Charles Carroll and Henry Newbury have returned to Trinity college; Walker Stevens to Chapel Hill; Misses Fannie Monroe, Julia Ricks, to Peace Institute, and Martha Gresham and Martha Best to St. Mary's college. F. J. Thomas returned the past week from a business trip to Richmond, Va. Mrs. Wilson Peirce spent Tuesday in Clinton.

At this point arises an interesting question. Does this proposal of Senator Knox, to which, I am satisfied, the Republican senate will attempt to restrict Senator Harding's plan—does it fulfill the repeated promise made in Senator Harding's campaign speeches that he would take steps to bring about "an association of nations," in the interests of permanent peace? If Senator Harding assents to this proposal from the senate, does not go to the senate, and then attempt to put that plan through against the senate's will. Wilson tried to get the public back of him and with that public backing tried to beat the senate down. Harding is not likely to do anything like that. Certainly not in the early stages of his administration. Harding is much more likely to conciliate the senate, to find out how far the senate is willing to go, and then adopt that as the maximum of his plan. MISS WOMACK HOSTESS AT SOCIAL IN WARSAW

Surprise Wedding of Miss Adkins and Mt. Chestnut

WARSAW, Jan. 8.—Miss Lenora Womack gave an informal card party at her home Friday evening. The rooms were attractively decorated with Christmas greens. The evening was spent in playing progressive bridge after which a salad course was served. A surprise marriage occurred Sunday evening, when Miss Nannis Lee Adkins and James Chestnut, Jr., were quietly married. The bride is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Adkins of this place, and is a young lady of attractive appearance. She graduated at the Warsaw high school last May. The bridegroom is one of the owners of the Swanetta hotel and Amuzu theater, and is a son of Mr. and Mrs. James Chestnut, Sr., of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Chestnut left on the evening train for New York and other northern cities.

The local chapter of the Junior order held a banquet Tuesday evening in the lodge room—a get-together meeting. Plans for future activities were discussed, and a pleasant evening was spent, at the close of which refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Barden and little son, Rob. Jr., of Tarboro, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Darden. Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Fardier and little daughter, Amelia Archer, spent last Sunday with relatives at Garland. Miss Bettie Cox has returned to Wilson after visiting relatives here. Mr. and Mrs. Will Bryan and little daughter of Folkstone, Mr. and Mrs. Jennings Williams and son of Durham, and Mrs. C. L. Holt, of Little Rock, Ark., formed a house party at the home of Miss Ella Williams last week. Miss Besie Barden went to Raleigh Tuesday to enter Peace Institute. Charles Carroll and Henry Newbury have returned to Trinity college; Walker Stevens to Chapel Hill; Misses Fannie Monroe, Julia Ricks, to Peace Institute, and Martha Gresham and Martha Best to St. Mary's college. F. J. Thomas returned the past week from a business trip to Richmond, Va. Mrs. Wilson Peirce spent Tuesday in Clinton.

The seven new wonders of the world are wireless, telephone, aeroplane, automobile, antiseptics and antitoxins, spectrum analysis and X-rays.

Parisian Sage Surprises and Delights. It Positively Does Not Change the Natural Color of the Hair. Beautiful hair is every woman's birthright and one of her greatest charms. It is the duty of everyone not only to preserve the natural beauty of the hair but to improve it. You cannot afford to neglect it, and just a little care will work wonders. If your hair is scanty, wispy, brittle, dry, losing its natural color and luster, and full of dandruff, it needs immediate attention. Don't wait, but begin now—tonight—to help it regain its life and beauty. Any good druggist can supply you with Parisian Sage, which is guaranteed to keep away all dandruff, stop falling hair, promote a new growth and beautify it, or money refunded. Parisian Sage is perfectly harmless. A clean antiseptic and daintily perfumed liquid—neither greasy or sticky—and easy to use. If you want a fresh, clean scalp, and a wealth of lustrous, live-looking hair that's easy to arrange attractively, try this simple home treatment. R. R. Bellamy will supply you and guarantee money refunded if not satisfied. (Adv.)
