Back Him Against Senator Simmons

> Morning Star Bureau, Yarborough Hotel. By R. E. POWELL

RALEIGH, Feb. 5 .- Eastern men this general assembly are willing to for his life. lay a wager that Josephus Daniels will do battle in 1924 with Senator Simmons unless the senior senator surprises his close friends and contents himself with the laurels already won.

Half of the session has passed and it has been fraught with an abundance case. of political gossip. There has been evident at times a smattering of partisan politics but all through the workings of the law-makers has been drawn a line between the progressives and in the jury box. reactionaries inside the Democratic party.

No one is authorized to say for Mr. Daniels that he will oppose Senator Simmons for the nomination four years hence. One would be foolish to suggest that such a thing is in the secretary's mind, for he has repeatedly said and his paper has printed his personal declaration, that he seeks no further political honors. "Eight years in Washington is a long time to be away from North Carolina," he said in his address here a few days ago, and "North Carolina is the best place in the world

Public servants, his friends argue, are never controlled by personal ambitions and desires and if the populace clamors for Mr. Daniels to get in the race and go back to Washington as George successor to Senator Simmons there is nothing left for him to do but to yield | charm. to their importuning. Eastern men want him ready to take the nomination if Simmons steps out and if the senior senator is not ready to do any stepping, they are willing to back Daniels against him.

One hears such suggestions as Wil-Max Gardner taking up the toga Oversurrender when his present term expires. Easterners and westerners alike believe Gardner will be the gubernational neminee in 1924 or retire from politics. There is reflected among the legislators enough sentiment to break the tradition upon which so much is
