LAVENDER
LAVENDER
That makes your linen sweet;
The hawker brings his basket
Down the sooty street.
The dirty doors and pavements
Are shimmering in the heat.
He brings a dream to London,
And drags his weary feet.

Lavender, lavender,
From where the bee hums,
To the loud roar of London,
With purple dreams he comes.
From ragged lanes of wild flowers
To ragged London slums,
With a basket full of lavender
And purple dreams he comes.

Is it nought to you that hear him?
With the old strange cry
The weary hawker passes,
And some will come and buy.
And some will let him pass away
And only leave a sigh,
But most will neither heed nor hear
When dreams go by.

Lavender, lavender!
His songs were fair and sweet,
He brought us harvest out of heaven,
Full sheaves of radiant wheat;
He brought us keys to Paradise,
And hawking them thro' the street;
He brought his dreams to London,
And dragged his weary feet.

Lavender, lavender!
He is gone, the sunset glows;
But through the brain of London
The mystic fragrance flows.
Each foggy cell remembers,
Each ragged alley knows,
The land he left behind him,
The land to which he goes.

—Alfred Noyes.

Poppy Ball is Valentine Fete

For the sheer beauty of it one should read about this Poppy ball. This description was cut from Tuesday's New York Tribune:

"Many entertainments were given last night in celebration of St. Valentine's day—luncheons, dinners, dances and affairs for charity—taking place in private homes and the fashionable hotels. The most picturesque affair of the evening was the Poppy ball, held at the Hotel Plaza, under the auspices of the American legion, for the benefit of the children of liberated regions of France. The ballroom was transformed into an old-fashioned French garden, with hundreds of poppies decorating the room and a quaint little bower tables were placed where the guests entertained parties at supper. Most of those who attended the ball wore poppies sold by a bevy of pretty girls, dressed in fluffy costumes literally covered with these flowers. They wore wreaths of poppies and carried long staffs topped with huge bunches of poppies.

The dancing did not begin until 10:30 o'clock and this was an informal feature of the early evening. The ball was opened officially half an hour later by the poppy girls, led by Miss Reba Owen, in a grand march. They were followed by gaidard bearers and then came the queen, Miss Eva Burnside. They formed a circle in the center of the ballroom and inside this a quadrille was danced, the young women taking part being dressed as poppies and the men in Louis XIV costumes. At its conclusion the circle formed by the queen and her attendants merged into a huge living old-fashioned bouquet of poppies.

ASK SPEEDY HEARING ON RATES PETITION

City Attorney Instructed Bring Tidewater Request Before Commission

Advocating action to the end that a speedy hearing might be given by the state corporation commission on the application for increased rates for electricity, gas and car fares in the city, Mayor P. Q. Moore yesterday submitted a letter to the city council, in regular session, in which it was urged that the city attorney take the proper steps to secure a hearing on the application of the Tidewater Power company as quickly as possible. Compliance to the request on the part of the council was immediate.

City Attorney Ruark stated yesterday that there has been some little discussion as to what he considered his instructions were from the councilmen and that for the information of the council and the public, he understood the instructions to mean that in the event it was found the Tidewater Power company was not justified in asking for higher rates for its commodities of sale, he would oppose the application. He is also said to have stated that he will argue that the rates should not be increased, but should be reduced to the former prices or less, and that residents receive a rebate on the amount they have paid for gas at the new schedule. Mr. Ruark will leave tomorrow for Raleigh, where he will confer with the mayor of Raleigh and the former mayor of Charlotte, after which he will probably request an immediate hearing.

The letter of Mayor Moore, which precipitated action, follows: "It is my understanding that the city of Wilmington has been in readiness for the hearing of the petition of the Tidewater Power company for an increase of rates for some time, but has been delayed in urging a speedy ruling in the matter by the other cities with whom common cause has been made."

"It does not seem reasonable to me that the interests of the people of our city should be held in abeyance by the unreadiness and procrastination of other towns. We are entitled to know, without unnecessary delay, whether we are to be made to pay the present high rates for gas, and whether the burden of increased street car fares is to be put upon us. The matter should be decided, and permit us to turn our thoughts to other affairs."

"MURDERING" COTTON ACREAGE

(Special to The Star)

GREENVILLE, S. C., Feb. 16.—Farmers in the lower part of this state are not merely "cutting" cotton acreage, but are "murdering" it, according to W. H. Keith, prominent Greenville citizen and chairman of the diversification committee of the chamber of commerce, who has just returned here after a visit to his former home. Mr. Keith is urging planters of this section to do their part in making the acreage reduction movement a success.

An Odd Window Treatment

For the long inset window, the divided curtain breaks the height of the window by being divided across the middle of the sash. Such curtains can be attractively made of the Amerex or filet net. The overdraperies, with bands of contrasting colored material, may be of any material that hangs in graceful folds. As this treatment does not call for shades, the overdrapes should be made to cover the window opening when drawn.

Save With a Purpose

Many depositors open savings accounts for a special purpose. For instance, some call their accounts "Life Insurance Funds" out of which they pay their annual premiums as they fall due. Others call their savings accounts "College Funds," because the money thus accumulated is to be used, eventually, for the education of the children.
