military and naval war insurance during the war, who is recognized as an authority on mutual fire insurance, will spend next week in North Carolina with Secretary Leonard. They will all engage in a number of eastern Carolina towns, including Kinston, Wilson and Washington. Mr. Leonard left this morning for Asheville, where he goes for a conference with association officials residing in the mountain city.

HORSE OR TRACTOR?

On farms averaging 258 acres in size, the tractor has displaced 2.2 horses, according to an inquiry made by the government in Indiana, Ohio, and Illinois. On these farms the operators kept one head of work stock for each 28 acres of land before they bought the tractor, and afterward they kept one head of work stock for each 38 acres, omitting minor fractions. Last year it cost $134 to feed a horse and therefore the tractor saved about $75 worth of horse feed. This year it will cost only about $100 to feed a horse. As the government figures it, the cost of plowing with tractors runs a little more than $2 an acre, while the cost of plowing with horses ran nearly $3 an acre. But these figures are offset by the fact that it costs a little less to disk, or to cut grain, with horses. Taken all around the figures indicate that there is not a great gain in the matter of economy by the use of tractors. The advantage lies in getting a larger amount of work done in a day during the busy season, and in getting, perhaps, a better seed bed by the use of the tractor. On the other hand the tractor makes no manure for the increase of fertility—and furnishes no market for the feeds raised on the farm. The matter seems to break about even between the tractor and the horse. But we still believe that the future lies with power farming, because the power machine may be expected to become not only more economical, but more efficient—while the horse has reached the height of his efficiency.—Farm Life.

VICTOR MURDOCK WILL LIKELY MAKE ADDRESS

Federal Trade Commissioner Invited to Speak to the State Merchants

(Special to The Star)
STATESVILLE, N. C., April 29.—An invitation to Hon. Victor Murdock, of the Federal Trade commission, to address the convention of the North Carolina Merchants association in Greensboro, June 21-23 was dispatched today by Secretary Paul Leonard, of Statesville. The invitation will be backed up by Senators Simmons and Overman. Mr. Murdock was to have addressed the merchants at their convention two years ago, but was unable to attend at that time. It is hoped he will accept the present invitation. Mr. Leonard is asking that he discuss the government's relation to business and the elimination of trade evils through government regulation.

R. R. Clark, former editor of the Landmark and now Statesville's postmaster, has accepted an invitation to address the merchants' convention on the newspaper and its relation to the merchant and business man. George W. Coggin, of the state department of public instruction, who is supervisor of trade and industrial education, will be on the convention program to advise the merchants as to the opportunities afforded for schools in retail salesmanship. Agricultural development and its relation to the business of the towns and cities of the state will be discussed by Clement S. Ucker, of Baltimore. The convention committee expects to secure acceptances from a number of the executives of some of the biggest and best known retail stores in the country, for talks on store management and other subjects of vital interest to the North Carolina merchants. The members of the convention committee—C. H. McKnight, of Greensboro; J. Frank Morris, of Winston-Salem; and Elmer Oetting, of Wilson—will meet at an early date to complete the convention program. Interest in the convention is growing daily, according to the state secretary, C. F. Nesbit, of Washington, former insurance commissioner for the District of Columbia, and commissioner of
