

THE ADVENTURE OF THE SPECKLED BAND

"No."
"It was clamped to the floor. Did you ever see a bed fastened like that before?"
"I cannot say that I have."

CHAPTER VI
There was little difficulty in entering the grounds, for unrepented breaches gaped in the old park wall.

"My God!" I whispered, "did you see it?"
Holmes was for the moment as startled as I. His hand closed like a vice upon my wrist in his agitation.

"The least sound would be fatal to our plans."
I nodded to show that I had heard.
"Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength Othine; it is this that is sold on the money-back guarantee."

"You see it, Watson?" he yelled.
But I saw nothing. At the moment when Holmes struck the light I heard a low, clear whistle, but the sudden glare flashing into my weary eyes made it impossible for me to tell what it was at which my friend lashed so savagely.

"What can it mean?" I gasped.
"It means that it is all over," Holmes answered. "And perhaps, after all, it is for the best. Take your pistol, and we will enter Dr. Roylott's room."

With a grave face he lit the lamp and led the way down the corridor. Twice he struck the chamber door without any reply from within. Then he turned the handle and entered, I at his heels, with the cocked pistol in my hand.

lantern with the shutter half open, throwing a brilliant beam of light upon the iron safe, the door of which was ajar. Beside this table, on the wooden chair, sat Dr. Grimesby Roylott clad in a long gray dressing-gown, his bare ankles protruding beneath, and his feet thrust into red heelless Turkish slippers.

"It is a swamp adder!" cried Holmes; "the deadliest snake in India. He has died within ten seconds of being bitten. Violence does, in truth, recoil upon the violent, and the schemer falls into the pit which he digs for another. Let us trust this creature back into its den, and we can then remove Miss Stoner to some place of shelter, and let the county police know what has happened."

Such are the true facts of the death of Dr. Grimesby Roylott, of Stoke Moran. It is not necessary that I should prolong a narrative which has already run to too great a length, by telling how we broke the sad news to the terrified girl, how we conveyed her by the morning train to the care of her good aunt at Harrow, of how the slow process of official inquiry came to the conclusion that the doctor met his fate while indiscreetly playing with a dangerous toy.

"I had," said he, "come to an entirely erroneous conclusion which shows, my dear Watson, how dangerous it always is to reason from insufficient data. The presence of the gypsies, and the use of the word 'band,' which was used by the poor girl, no doubt to explain the appearance which she had caught a hurried glimpse of by the light of her match, were sufficient to put me upon an entirely wrong scent. I can only claim the merit that I instantly reconsidered my position when, however, it became clear to me that whatever danger threatened an occupant of the room could not come either from the window or the door. My attention was speedily drawn, as I have already remarked to you, to this ventilator, and to the bell-rope which hung down to the bed. The discovery that this was a dummy, and that the bed was clamped to the floor, instantly gave rise to the suspicion that the rope was there as a bridge for something passing through the hole, and coming to the end of the idea of a snake instantly occurred to me, and when I coupled it with my knowledge that the doctor was furnished with a supply of creatures from India, I felt that I was probably on the right track. The idea of using a form of poison which could not possibly be discovered by any chemical test was just such a one as would occur to a clever and ruthless man who had had an eastern training. The rapidly with which such a poison would take effect would also, from his point of view, be an advantage. It would be a sharp-eyed coroner, indeed, who could distinguish the two little dark punctures which would show where the poison fangs had done their work. Then I thought of the whistle. Of course he must recall the snake before the morning light revealed it to the victim. He had trained it, probably by the use of the milk which we saw, to return to him when summoned. He would put it through this ventilator at the hour that he thought best, with the certainty that it would crawl down the rope and land on the bed. It might or might not bite the occupant, perhaps she might escape every night for a week, but sooner or later she must fall a victim."

"I had come to these conclusions before ever I had entered his room. An inspection of his chair showed me that he had been in the habit of standing on it, which of course would be necessary in order that he should reach the ventilator. The sight of the safe, the saucer of milk, and the loop of whipcord were enough to finally dispel any doubts which may have remained. The metallic clang heard by Miss Stoner was obviously caused by her stepfather hastily closing the door of his safe upon his terrible occupant. Having once made up my mind, you know the steps which I took in order to put the matter to the proof. I heard the creature hiss, as I have no doubt that you did also, and I instantly lit the light and attacked it."

"With the result of driving it through the ventilator."
"And also with the result of causing it to turn upon its master at the other side. Some of the blows of my cane came home, and roused its snakish temper, so that it flew upon the first person it saw. In this way I am no doubt indirectly responsible for Dr. Grimesby Roylott's death, and I cannot say that it is likely to weigh very heavily upon my conscience."

THE END
A hot July sun focused its rays through a flaw in the window pane upon the bed on which a seven-months-old child was sleeping in Benwood, West Virginia. The bed was set afire and the baby burned to death.

SCORES OF MANUFACTURERS IN CAROLINAS TO EXHIBIT
CHARLOTTE, Aug. 20.—More than 150 manufacturers of North Carolina and South Carolina already have contracted for exhibit space in the big brick, steel and concrete building erected especially for the Made-in-Carolinas exposition which will be held here September 12 to 29 to give the people of these states opportunity to familiarize themselves with the great diversity of Carolina manufactured products. Executive Secretary Patton said today only a relatively small amount of space for exhibits remains unleased and most of this is covered by options.
"At the last minute, we expect, we will find ourselves embarrassed by being forced to deny exhibit space to manufacturers who delayed in reaching a decision," Mr. Patton added.

REO
New Prices $1794 Delivered
Here's the news you have been waiting for. For months past the one query most often propounded in motoring circles has been, "What is Reo going to say—and when?"
Here's the answer:
New Closed Models—4-passenger Coupe and 5-passenger Sedan—are now available.
New prices on touring and roadster models effective August 1.
Story is too long to tell here. 'Twould take a page to tell you about one model alone. Suffice to say, all passenger car models have that wonderfully silent, sweet-running, amazingly powerful Reo Six Motor—the greatest motor in the world of its size and for its purpose.
In every genuine advance in automotive science—in all that makes for greater motoring satisfaction—this Six upholds Reo traditions of leadership and merits the title, "The Incomparable—the Six of Sixty Superiorities."
The epitome of Reo engineering experience—the last word in coach building. In that mighty Reo Speed Wagon we now have something sensational to offer you.
Nobby Cord tires all 'round and—a greatly reduced price—also effective August 1.
This Speed Wagon dominates the field regardless of carrying capacities. Wherever Motor Trucks are known this Speed Wagon is known as the best. It fits every business—meets every carrying need.
Range of usefulness is practically unlimited—most versatile as well as most dependable.
Always the lowest priced commercial car of its carrying capacity, this Speed Wagon is now a better buy than ever.
When you've seen these new Reos and heard the new prices, you'll say, Reo is today, more than ever, "The Gold Standard of Values."
Come in and see and hear the whole story.
