England—By high taxation has succeeded in making its budget balance. Its currency is well on the way to rising to par with the dollar. But there are still about 1,300,000 persons out of work, for whose unemployment doles added taxes had to be raised. The number of jobless is a good indication of how heavily her export trade has fallen off and how hard her great industries have been hit.

Eventually a light taxation has succeeded in making its budget balance. Cechoslovakia—In itself a healthy state, but disturbed by the presence of 3,000,000 Germans who long for union with Germany.
