Various of the large employed groups will be canvassed specially. In the postoffice department, Warren Elwell, the postmaster, has appointed Oscar C. Hill for this purpose. Chief Cashwell has appointed Sergeant W. R. Appleberry to handle the police department. Marsden Sellers, of the street cleaning department, will look after the members of that department. In the fire department, Chief Scholten is making similar arrangements. Steps have also been taken to give the teachers in the schools adequate opportunity to subscribe. Many of the employers of the largest groups in town have expressed confidence that they will have practically a 100 per cent response from their employees. This is true notably of the A. C. L., Belk-Williams, Wilmington Printing Company, Futch's, Woolworths, Kress, J. H. Rehder & Company, Efrid's, Southern Bell Telephone Company, A. Sprunt and sons, Western Union, Postal Telegraph Company, the Tide Water Power Company. In the latter case, after a conference with

County Government Planning To Erect Annex to Present Court House at An Early Date

Tentative plans for the erection of an annex to the county courthouse to take care of the congestion now existing, are being formulated by the board of commissioners.

A two-story annex between the present courthouse and the jail is proposed, with provisions for increased vault space for the clerk of the superior court and the recorder's court, and facilities for the recorder's court. Accommodations for other county officers will also be included in the building. Members of the board yesterday said that plans have not yet been sufficiently developed to warrant an estimate of the possible cost of the structure.

The New Hanover courthouse has been greatly outgrown by the business handled in recent years, and in several departments, particularly those of the clerk and register, relief is imperative. Room for the recorder's court, another necessity that has made itself felt in recent months, especially in inclement weather.

The only space available for the recorder now is the main court room, which, of course, must be vacated when superior court convenes. The recorder is forced to adjourn to the basement annex, but the congested condition of this room makes this also a matter of considerable inconvenience to court and witnesses.

As the bill adjusting the judicial districts in the state now seems likely to pass both houses of the general assembly, the need for a recorder's court room will be accentuated. The commissioners will probably take action on the proposed building at an early date.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS TO MASONIC TEMPLE TO BE STARTED SOON

Rooms Will Be Re-arranged and Made More Convenient for Lodge Uses.

Plans have been prepared and contracts are now being let for extensive improvements to the Masonic temple, the interior of which has for many years been inadequately arranged to suit the purposes for which it is used. Several thousand dollars will be expended in the work.

Although a considerable portion of the money to be spent will be used for improvements on the second and third floors, the majority is to be invested in the arrangement of the fourth floor by their affiliated organizations. It has been stated by an official of one of the lodges that the Masonic membership in this city has expanded so greatly during the past few years that the central lodge room on the fourth floor of the temple has become too small to be conveniently used.

Not only will a considerable amount of the money be used for the changing of rooms, but much money will be spent in the purchase of curtains used in the lodge room, also for extensive beautifying in order that it may, when completed, be one of the most beautiful lodge rooms in the state of North Carolina.

Charles B. Newcomb, prominent Mason of this city, has the contemplated work in his charge and is being aided in the work of letting the contracts by a committee. It is understood that the last contract is to be awarded in the near future and that the actual work will be started immediately thereafter and completed as soon as possible.

Dr. John B. LeGwin Dies At Hospital

Dr. John B. LeGwin, prominent physician of the name Walker Memorial hospital last night at 11:30, following a lingering illness, which became acute three weeks ago. He was 39 years old and a graduate of the University of North Carolina and Tulane university. Funeral services have not been arranged. Surviving are his widow, nee Miss Mary McCullen; parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. LeGwin; two children, John and Mary; three sisters, Mrs. Blake D. Applewhite, Mrs. Douglas Prewatte and Miss Emmie Belle LeGwin, and one brother, James LeGwin. Dr. LeGwin has been in failing health since his discharge from the army, in which he served during the war as a medical officer.

A trial will deceive those who think they will need a bucket to carry their winnings away from a bucket shop—American Banker.

The officials, Messrs. Windle and Rice were appointed to canvass their employees. The committee is confident that a sum close to $60,000 will be subscribed. Daily meetings of the workers will be held at 1:15 o'clock at the Boys' Brigade building each day of this week, commencing Monday, when reports will be given by each team and division of the subscriptions which they have secured up to that time. The chairman announces that it is of the utmost importance, not only to these eight agencies, i. e., Salvation Army, Travelers' Aid, Y. M. C. A., Community Service, Boy Scouts, Y. W. C. A., Kennedy Home and Girl Scouts, but for the welfare of Wilmington as a whole that the campaign shall be a success.

TURN HAIR DARK WITH SAGE TEA

If Mixed With Sulphur It Darkens So Naturally Nobody Can Tell.

The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage. Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product, improved by the addition of other ingredients, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft, lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.—adv.

Dr. George Alex. Graham

Dr. George Alexander Graham, after a lingering illness of three years, which for the last two confined him to his room, died here on the afternoon of February 1, leaving a widow, Mrs. Cora James Graham, and the following sisters: Mrs. Mary Stevens, of Council Station, and Mrs. Janie Russ, of Wilmington.

Dr. Graham was born February 28, 1852. Dr. and Mrs. Graham were married January 4, 1877, having lived together 46 years. Mrs. Graham was a Miss Cromartie, and a native of Bladen county. Elizabethtown has the unique honor of sending out in four ways of earth men of distinction in many worthy callings and of giving as much to her sister towns as she receives, not only in wealth, but in aims and ideals espoused by noble citizenry. Chief among her laurels is the birth of this highly esteemed physician, Dr. Graham, over three scores and ten years ago; most conspicuous among her milestones of pride and promise is that the very dwelling whose windows let in the beautiful sunshine on the newborn babe of Dr. Neill Graham and the happy young mother of little George Alexander, is still standing there with its windows staring out across the pretty lawn, as if in sad silence recalling the happy by-gone days which are now history. The old home in Elizabethtown, where the lullabies rang out through bed-room and hall, and the merry prattle of little George first gladdened the innermost souls of two hopeful and ambitious parents!

When yet he was but a mere tot with his first pantalooned legs, brown legs and lined cheeks, Dr. Neill Graham moved away to the old Whitehall community about 11 miles from Elizabethtown, on the Cape Fear river. Amid the picturesque surroundings of this new habitation the noble man that was to be, the skilled physician that later would administer to the suffering for half a century, the modest man of unvaried integrity and texture of mind, grew up in close communion with the designer of all lovely things, the God who planned and brought into the fiercely fascinating outdoors. Fashioned after the song of the brown thrush in the green and blossoming hedge, trained up in sight of the wonders of the blue sky, the stars of the calm night, and the brilliant moonday never departed from them, but grew greater in the estimation of his closest acquaintance, and taller in the stature of godliness among his most intimate friends. Ideals vied with each other in obtaining the chestnut, the expansive soul, and others stood in the crowded gallery of his busy everyday life, impatiently waiting their turn to be admitted into the threshold of his splendid career.

Touched to the point of suffering, facing the obstacles of half a century ago which loomed large in the pathway of most youths in the rural southland, and particularly of those of the eastern counties of the Carolinas, he learned early not to be a rash experimenter. Yet withal, a greater lesson to him, that all struggles in this life are but transitory, and mere stepping stones to permanent success to him who grips the present without fear and gazes upward with unswerving faith in the Maker of Destinies. A truer proof of the inevitable hold environment has upon the plastic and malleable ingredients of character, and that buries itself wholesale within the confines of childhood, never to be upstirred or forgotten, whether it be for good or evil, is in the choice of professors Dr. George A. Graham made. His father, Dr. Neill Graham, set the heroic example of a country physician; like some George patterns, he who sat early and late, suffering could be alleviated and perhaps lives spared a little longer lease on their tenements of clay. In fact, he picked up the battle line where his dear old father fell, and from that point of discomfiture and ignorance with a Trojan's arm and a martyr's zeal, not many elderly mothers in Bladen, not many middle-aged ones in Hoke, not many grown-ups in the former, nor many in their teens in the latter, will realize the story of their old friend without a tiny tear of sorrow or a hot pain in the heart. Not many but will ask themselves, "Who is my friend, anyway? The man I see every day and pass and re-pass without knowing? Or the man whose name I see in the paper, and whose sleepless nights, risked his health through cold and inclement weather, and who denied himself the dollar to relieve me of my misery, the country physician, the man whose gradual crucifixion on a cross of unselfish service was in part executed by me in my hour of sore need?" And when he answers this question it will not be in the blinking of an eye. It will be answered by an imaginary picture of a worn-out, gray-haired, anxious-eyed, country physician leaning over a sick bab in a weeping mother's arms.

Having attended the local schools and the Clinton high school, and having taken his first year in medicine at Louisville, Ky., he completed his medical education at the medical college of the University of New York, graduating there in 1875, and thereafter began his practice at Cedar Creek in Cumberland county, where he remained three years. After this he returned to Whitehall, in Bladen, and practiced until 1900, at which time he came to Raeford, in Hoke county.

Dr. Graham's father was a cousin of the late Edward Kilder Graham, president of the state university, and Prof. Alex. Graham, of Charlotte, and of Miss Mary Graham, also a distinguished instructor. With a line of noble ancestry dating back to James Graham, Marquis of Montrose, Dr. George A. Graham could scarcely escape the field of promise that welcomed his talent, nor divorce himself from the hereditary leanings toward a faithful devotion to an exacting and exhaustive profession. He had no time to devote to outside activities, but his ardent admirers in Bladen county, as if to ride his willingness to serve to excess, made him serve several terms as member of the county board of commissioners, and those in Hoke county put him in the front line when they fought for the new county. He and Hon. J. Worthing Johnson and the late Judge Womack gave the new county the championed name of Hoke, which it now bears.

In the passing of this distinguished man his nearest relatives do not mourn alone. In their loss the entire state shares, for no worthy individual can come and serve the world and leave it without making his absence felt. A life-long Presbyterian, a staunch advocate of slightly modified Puritan code of morals, and a liberal giver to all charitable causes, will be born to the grave, will return to the dust from whence it came, in the last funeral rites conducted at his church in Raeford today.

Teachers Here Set Approval on Proposals

Improvement Work Planned Is Commended.

Rural teachers of New Hanover county yesterday almost unanimously endorsed the question contained in the questionnaire recently sent out for referendum by the North Educational society. The questions deal mainly with cooperative and improvement work along educational lines. City teachers will pass on the same questions Monday.

Every sufferer from Rheumatism, Neuritis, Sciatica, Lumbago and associated disorders should read it. A limited edition is now being distributed free by the author and fortunately anyone sending name and address to H. P. Clearwater, Ph. D., 1188-J, Water St., Hallowell, Maine, U. S. Rub Gently and Upward Toward the Heart as Blood in Veins Flows That Way.

If you or any relative or friend is worried because of varicose veins, or bunions, the best advice that anyone in this world can give is to get a prescription that many physicians are now prescribing.

Ask your druggist for the original two-ounce bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil (full strength) and apply night and morning to the swollen, enlarged veins. Soon you will notice that they are growing smaller and the treatment should be continued until the veins are of normal size. So penetrating and powerful is Emerald Oil that it dissolves goitre and wens and causes them to disappear. It can be secured at any pharmacy.—adv.
