

CHAMPION TAR HEEL QUINT DEFEATED BY MISSISSIPPI FIVE

Favorites Go Down by 34 to 32
Score—Other Predictions Upset

ATLANTA, Ga., Feb. 28.—The old dope bucket turned topsy and out of it was spilled late tonight at the end of the second round of the southern inter-collegiate basketball tournament the crack North Carolina, Vanderbilt Centre, Furman, South Carolina and Newberry.

The rugged little University of Mississippi five was the conqueror of the 1922, 35 to 32; Virginia Polytechnic Tar Heels, all southern champion team institute defeated Vanderbilt 29 to 23; Mississippi Aggies ended Furman's championship aspirations, 47 to 21; Alabama gave South Carolina a dubbing, 49 to 24; Georgia Tech eliminated the fast Centre five, 34 to 26, while the Baptist quintet from Mercer university played with Newberry college and ended the scoring at 34 to 22.

The University of Mississippi-University of North Carolina was the feature game. The Tar Heels led the first half 15 to 11, and the dope had it that the champions would have it easy in the last half. But Mississippi fought hard and Johnson, a brilliant little substitute, who came in during the last few minutes of play, led the rally which meant Carolina's undoing.

Vanderbilt University five was eliminated from the tourney by their Virginia rivals, better known as V. P. I. However, it was a hard fight, a nip and tuck affair from the very beginning. Neither team led the other more than three points during the game. Rhodes, V. P. I. guard and captain, was the star of the game, tallying 14 of his team's points. Bell, of Vandy, was credited with 11.

Georgia Tech earned the right to meet its ancient rival, the University of Georgia, tomorrow night by its winning over the fast Centre college team. A little fellow named Dannicke, who the spectators called "skinny," jumped into the game tonight for Tech, and he and "Flash" Covington, Centre's star, played a game of lightning all around the court. Dannicke was backed up by two good goal shooters in Rekdorf and Roan. Covington was the star for Centre, tallying five field goals.

A little fellow by the name of Harmon having an underslung body and a lanky youth by the name of Smith, who is as tall as Harmon is short, aided by three other players hailing from Mercer university played with Newberry college of South Carolina. Newberry had a good team and before it started on its first lap of its return trip to South Carolina tonight played hard to stop Harmon, Smith and others.

Wolfhounds Win Dog Derby

In the frozen wilds of Quebec, intense interest is aroused each winter by the dog-sled derbies. This year, tradition was overturned when a team of three powerful wolfhounds defeated entries of six and eight huskies. Photo shows Hector Chevrete and his wolfhound team.

It was an impossible job and the Baptists took the game easily. Furman university, of South Carolina, in the initial game this afternoon bumped into the Mississippi Aggies. The South Carolinians who sent the boys from Millsaps college home yesterday, were completely bewildered by the offense and defense of the Aggies, the score being 47 to 21 with Mississippians on top. The Aggies scored 37 to Furman's 10 points in the first half. Furman was off considerably and unable to sink her shots.

The University of South Carolina made its debut in the tournament in the second game. Pitted against the fast quintet from the University of Alabama, the second Carolina team of the afternoon could not find the basket and Alabama won 49 to 24. Stabler, Carter and McCauley, who yesterday were high scorers in the game against Wofford, were again the Alabamian stars. The Carolina gamecocks played hard and have stars in Casque and Wright, who rolled up the most points for their team.

The big surprise came in the third contest. The University of Mississippi trimmed the champions from the University of North Carolina and one hour afterwards the fans were still yelling with excitement. The score was 34 to 32. With the score tied 25-all and five minutes to play, Green, for the Tar Heels, found the basket for a field goal. He was followed by Mahler, adding four more points. The Mississippi battery rallied and Norris got back two points and Schwarz followed with a foul goal.

Carmichael with four for North Carolina and his fellow mate, McDonald, shot a beautiful field goal, keeping North Carolina in the lead 32 to 30. One minute to play and Mississippi proved it had a star in Flowers who racked up a tally for two points and Cooley clinched the game a moment later with a field goal.

Tomorrow's program calls for: Chattanooga vs. Virginia Polytechnic Institute; Alabama vs. Mercer; Mississippi Aggies vs. University of Mississippi; Georgia Tech vs. University of Georgia.

Great Welcome Awaits American Legion Head

Wilmington Makes Elaborate Plans for March 7.

When National Commander Alvin Owsley of the American Legion and Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, national chief of the legion's auxiliary, with their party, which will include the state commanders of both bodies, reach Wilmington March 7 they will find a city overflowing with hospitality and every preparation made for their comfort.

For most elaborate plans are in process of completion by the local units of the legion and auxiliary. The entertainment features are being handled by Vice Commander Lawrence Sprunt of local post No. 10. The first event on the arrival of the party will be a dinner at Hotel Wilmington, who will go direct from the station to that hotel.

That evening Commander Owsley, said to be one of the finest orators in the country, and referred to as the "Chauncey Depew of the south," will deliver an address on the subject of "Americanism," either in the Victoria theater or at the Academy of Music, most likely, however, at the Victoria. It is said, it is taken as a matter of fact that the place will be packed with Wilmington people.

Invitations have been sent out to legion posts and auxiliary units in other treasurer and the bonds voted by that general assembly. Speeding up all possible in order that the final day of the session, members predicted morning, afternoon and night sessions after today when all committees were expected to wind up their business.

In a four-hour sitting the house today passed on third reading, a senate bill which would require the fumigation of materials used in the manufacture of mattresses or beddings were made from, and the omnibus justices of the peace bill.

The Varsar bill from the senate which proposes a constitutional amendment to provide that any sinking fund bill passed by this session of the general assembly should be irrevocable was blocked in passage upon objection and was held over until tomorrow when a motion was made to provide printed copies for the further consideration of the house members.

W. B. Savage Is Very Ill at Home in City

Early this morning the condition of W. B. Savage, familiarly and affectionately known by thousands of people in the city as "Tuck" Savage, was reported as extremely grave and fears were entertained for his recovery. It was said that he might not live through the night. Mr. Savage is at his home, 720 South Sixth street. His condition was regarded as critical throughout yesterday, when physicians held a consultation at the home. He developed pneumonia Friday of last week and has been very ill ever since then.

IN THE LEGISLATURE

(By the Associated Press.) The tax exempt feature in the general revenue bill as applied to stocks owned in foreign corporations precipitated a storm of debate in the senate when the bill came up there for second reading.

In the house the Varsar constitutional amendment which would make any sinking fund law for the state passed at this session irrevocable, was forced over until tomorrow upon objections.

An hour of debate was consumed in the lower branch over a local measure which would exempt certain parts of Currituck county from the operation of the state wide stock law, but the bill finally passed.

Four special orders, the Grist soldiers' aid bill, the omnibus school bill, the equalizing measure and the "age of consent" legislation faced the house in a long night session.

dollars inheritance tax. He expressed the theory that the "exemption" will be important in holding present investing citizens rather than "in bringing back those who have left the state."

Senator Long stated that he was in favor of the exempting provision of the bill because he thought it just and, as a policy, in keeping with the new position of industrial importance to state has won. At the present time $750,000,000 of the wealth of foreign corporations is invested in this state, he added, and wealthy operators of North Carolina industries can not afford to make their residence here, but must employ others to look after their property because of the taxation of "foreign" stocks.

Senator Varsar, in his concluding address, said that the constitution of the state and the platform of the Democratic party constrain the general assembly to adopt his amendment, and he declared that the exempting proposition is an effort to make North Carolina "an asylum" for the rich who would like to get the benefit of the state's constitutional limitation of income taxation, if they likewise could be relieved of tax on foreign stocks.

Only five states have the exemption that the bill provides, Senator Varsar stated, and he added that four of these are New York, and her neighboring states where commercial and industrial relations are so entwined, he stated, that the policy is justified to an extent. The fifth state, he said, is Kentucky, which "tried to entice rich Ohio residents across the river." He stated that Ohio does not make the exemption but "has grown great" while Kentucky has remained comparatively backward.

Senator Varsar predicted that the Democratic party will endorse the exemption.

prospect of a recess appointment of Mr. McNary after adjournment of congress as comptroller.

Two meetings were held today by the committee on the McNary case and although a majority was said to favor a recommendation of confirmation, action went over. The committee agreed however, to vote Saturday on Mr. McNary's name but members said that the delay made senate action in the event of a favorable report, dubious. It was pointed out that with only one day remaining for action, it would be within the power of a single senator to block a vote in the senate.

Obstacles Develop In Senate Fight Over the Nomination of McNary

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Further obstacles developed today in the senate fight on the nomination of James G. McNary, Texas—New Mexico banker, to be comptroller of currency and a vote by the banking committee went over until Saturday, only one day before the close of congress.

The companion case of D. R. Crissinger, present comptroller, nominated to be governor of the federal reserve board, was disposed of earlier in the day by the banking committee with a favorable report to the senate, indicating confirmation of Mr. Crissinger with
