Miss Cedargreen Sings At Tileston School's Music Memory Contest

Mrs. Guy Cardwell's Room Selected As Winner By Judges; Splendid Program.

A feature of unusual interest was added to the Music Memory contest now being held at the Tileston school when Miss Elvina Cedargreen, of the First Presbyterian church choir, sang two of the numbers of the program for the children at their chapel exercises yesterday morning. Miss Cedargreen chose Massenet's "Elegie" and "Marie Laurie" for the occasion and rendered them in a manner that proved most delightful to her youthful audience. Roland Friday's "Night Wind" and Grant-Scheffer's "Little Cuckoo Clock" with which she concluded her performance were also greeted with enthusiasm, as the children were quite fascinated by the music of the last song which was "almost as good as the real cuckoo."

The excellence of the performance yesterday also owed much to the playing of Miss Julia Post who acted as Miss Cedargreen's accompanist. The whole affair proved to be, as J. C. Seegers, the principal, expressed it, "a delightful contrast to the canned music with which the contest has of necessity been conducted in the past."

The contest, which will start on its third week next Monday, has been designed with the motive of familiarizing the children with certain standard musical selections. All of the numbers available in Victor records and have been selected with a discrimination that has taken cognizance of the limited ability of the audience to which they will be presented.

Following Miss Cedargreen's songs the fourth grades held a singing match with each grade singing one verse of the "Wild Geese," a favorite song among the children of the grammar school. Mrs. Guy Cardwell's room was selected as the winner by the teachers who acted as judges. Alice Myers, Rose Kosch, and Ed. Hawkins acted as tellers.

Similar matches have been held in the past, between the different sections of the same grade. Miss Maude Kingsbury's, Miss Helen Dunn Cressy's, Mrs. J. C. Outlaw's and Mrs. W. P. Monroe's rooms have all been awarded the school singing pennant for their prowess on such occasions. It is planned, now, that when all of the grades have had a second opportunity to compete the winners will hold a final contest, in order that the best singers in the school may be chosen.

Both the Music Memory contest and the singing contests are important steps in the program this year for increasing the natural love and appreciation that the children have for good music. Last year contests of the same kind were held and excellent results. It is said were obtained and it is hoped by the faculty of Tileston that this year, with familiarity and added interest, even greater progress will be made. The enthusiasm of the children thus far the teachers say, would make it seem that the hope will be realized.

Children's Spring Styles

Children's shops are showing spring styles!

A huge patch pocket across the front of a new play apron for a small girl makes it a most desirable garment. Straps, from the shoulders and a big bow tied in back.

A new bloomer dress is made of two materials and has very pretty butterfly sleeves set in raglan fashion.

Still another bloomer dress is made into a red and white gingham flowered with scalloped petals around neck, sleeves, hem and bloomer legs.

These and the many other spring clothes for children use all of the standard fabrics as well as new Indian prints and hand-woven madras.
