

She Must Earn Her Own Living

Sometimes the sudden death of the bread-winner makes is necessary for girls and young married women to become selfsupporting.

The question then is: "What kind of work can I get?" Among the occupations open to girls, the most attractive and easily learned is that of Stenographer or Private Secretary. Other lines require many years of study and disagreeable ap-

Stenography and Typing, on the other hand, is pleasant, wellpaid work, with short hours and pleasant surroundings. Earnest students may learn shorthand in a surprisingly short time and thus be able quickly to earn their own way in the

Shorthand Is Valuable to Young Men

Shorthand is a particularly important study for young men. Many men, now prominent and successful in business, began their careers with the aid of shorthand.

Former President Wilson, you remember, found shorthand excecdingly useful.

The young private secretary, too, has unusual opportunities to study the broader phases of business and his work brings him in contact with big men and big opportunities.

To the young man with his business career before him, we recommend Shorthand and Typing, even though he may never be destined for the usual work of the stenographer.

War Department Expected to Make Recommendations as to Need of Local Terminal

When Governor Morrison's ship and ort commission meets in Raleigh next nonth, one matter that will be given serious consideration is the report by he chief of engineers, in Washington on the needs at the port of Wilmington relative to additional terminals, especially public terminals.

State Senator Emmett H. Bellamy, of this city, who is a member of the governor's commission, has stated that in his opinion this report would carry nuch force with it, and that it would little in the decision they are expected to make to the general assembly rela-'ve to the establishment of a state wned line of steamships, with necessary terminals at some North Carolina

Mai. Oscar O. Kuentz. United States district engineer officer, prepared some time ago, extensive statistics, which show what the port of Wilmington now has in the way of steamship terminals and other facilities for the unloading of cargoes. It is expected that the chief of engineers will, after thoroughly studying the report, file with the district engineer a report, tending to show what is needed at this port in the way of additional terminals and facilities for the quick dispatch of ships.
It is not unlikely that the future appropriations by the government foe the improvement of local waterways will be influenced on the port's ability to provide what may be considered ade-

In the seventh grade, the Willing Scale was followed up, March 14, 1923, by the Nassau County Supplement. Approximately the same amount of time was used in writing by the children.

These results were obtained:
Room 1 attained a median of 1.9, or the third rating on the scale. The Nassau scale, incidentally, is similar to the Willing Scale, except that story and form value are combined in a tenparagraph scale. Room 2 attained a median of 4.6. This is practically the sixth step on the scale.

Bicycle Concern to Move Quarters Soon

The Wilmington Cycle company, which started in business nine years ago, has for some time found its store at 215 Market street too small for its growing needs and about May 1 will move to 28 South Front street, J. W. H. Futchs' old place, where they will add to their line of bicycles and repair department a full stock goods, including fishing tackle, baseball goods, etc.

But when an accredited paper of the Audit Bureau is used you see and know what you are getting.

The Audit Bureau of Circulation is the barometer by which the rise and fall of a paper's circulation is measured. The circulation records of each member are audited annually, and every paper not going to a bona fide subscriber is clipped from the list. This record is official.
