Good Training Puts Men in Best Condition for Gong on Next Friday Night

When Clyde Jones and Sailor John Lewis enter the ring on Friday night at the Academy of Music they will be the best conditioned men who have ever fought before a Wilmington audience Neither has had a bout for more than thirty days and both men are training hard for the fray.

Lewis is in wonderful shape since he worked regularly with Ken Burris when his recent bout with Chick Branch and Jones, who has been fighting regularly in Jersey is in the finest kind of shape. The Sailor is working out regularly in Burris' training quarters in the old city auditorium while Jones, always popular with the fighters of the city, is finding plenty of men to work with.

Lewis is the first representative Zrooklyn has had in the squared circle, Dry Pond having, thus far, claimed all honors in this respect, and he expects to uphold the fighting traditions of the North side. Jones comes from the uptown section and will endeavor to show that his ward can give and take with the best of them.

Negotiations were closed on Satur-day afternoon with the only and Original Willyum Hennery and he will be matched with a good man in the mifinals. "Get me a fighter, not a dub." That was Hennery's request when he agreed to step six rounds in the coming bout. He claims to be no longer a preliminary and does no more clowning, having graduated, he says, into a real fighter. He meant to challenge the winner of the recent Burris-Branch bout, he said, but was obliged to be out of the city on business on that Ringside tickets for the card have been placed on sale at Starkey and Kerr's billiard parlor. More than twenty rounds of fighting will be in-cluded on the bill with a battle royal between five hitters.
