Highway At Lake Lure Is Blocked By Flood

RUTHERFORDTON, Aug. 13.-Highway No. 74 at Lake Lure was blocked today by flood waters of the Broad river and by landslides resulting from heavy rains in this area.

Two flood gates were raised before noon today to reduce pressure on the Lake Lure dam. The water was reported nearly as high as in 1916, when streams in this area flooded the countryside, and still rising.

High waters also were reported threatening some buildings in the town of Chimney Rock. Many streams in the county are near flood stage.

All persons indebted to said Estate will please make immediate settlement.

This 10th day of July, 1940. THE WILMINGTON SAVINGS & TRUST COMPANY, Executor under Will of George W. Bailey.

Held In Theft Of Royal Car

Mrs. Ruth Conway, 27, mother of three children, stumbles as she and Marie Espierre (left), 18, are led into felony court, New York, where they and four men were charged with theft of an automobile owned by Archduke Folk of Austria. They were captured after a wild chase, during which police fired five shots.

ever so much more valuable in people's estimation, and the effort to get invitations to "The Wit to Woo" soon became a clamor.

Bill Bailey played a shrewd game. He bluffed considerably for the first three days, then allowed the word to get around that practically anybody who was socially presentable and who would get some friend or acquaintance of Bill's to telephone a recommendation, could get the privilege of buying it. It was remarkable, too, Bill noted, how many "friends" he suddenly developed. Names that he never heard of telephoned him, mentioned having been in college with him or having met him somewhere, and put on the touch. He kept up a little act of reticence, but usually succumbed for a $10 fee. Ten days before "The Wit to Woo" was scheduled for presentation, every one of the 1,600 tickets was sold. Bill and Gayle had to force in a few dozen more, in fact, to accommodate last-minute customers who, for one reason or another, just couldn't be turned down.

He and Gayle got Cholly Farington out to the Oaks that last week to watch rehearsals and generally "get acquainted." Cholly had four free passes to the big doings. He was impressed out there, and said so. Hardly more than 30 himself, he was definitely sympathetic with "the Merrifield gang," and so they practically, hogged his column that week.

"Not since Shakespeare," quoth he loftily, one morning in print, "hath the stage so stirred a town, my dear. Three stages, really, in this new show. An evening of peripatetic drama on the greenward, with the audience, not the cast, doing most of the moving around. See you thank!"
