PROBATION LAW TEST IS LIKELY

Recorder Refuses Woman's Appeal From Violation Of Probation

The question of whether a defendant, having pleaded guilty and had sentence suspended on probation and having violated the probation can appeal from the judgment of the court entered at the time probation was ordered arose in recorder's court yesterday morning.

The question arose in the case of Margaret Wilkinson, 702 South 15th street, who had been sentenced to serve two one year terms for maintaining a common nuisance.

Judge Lennon refused her motion for appeal to superior court and ordered her to begin serving her sentence, saying at the same time he hopes her counsel will test the case by securing a writ of habeas corpus and taking the case to superior court over his ruling.

Preliminary hearing for Millard Jackson, who lives at the Y.M.C.A., charged with carnal knowledge of a female under the age of 16 years was continued until Aug. 19 under bond of $750.

George Moore, negro, charged with larceny, receiving and forgery after he allegedly stole the bank deposit book of McKinley Watters, forged his name to a withdrawal slip and received $100 from the bank, was bound over to superior court under the bond of $500.

"SUSAN AND GOD" MARKS CAROLINA THEATRE BILL

Joan Crawford, queen of fashion innovations, goes to the "King of the Road" for help. That is, the hobo and his bundle on a stick, is the inspiration for her newest handbag.

In "Susan and God," now screening at the Carolina theatre for the last times today, in which Miss Crawford co-stars with Fredric March, she wears some eighteen Adrian designed gowns, and her newest pocketbook is carried on an over-the-shoulder stick.

Attired in white flannel tailored suit, the star has her handbag made of blue and white checked taffeta. It is tied to simulate a small bundle, is hooked onto the end of an ebony stick, and nonchalantly carried over the shoulder.

If the fad catches on as much as the other Crawford styles, Adrian declares the women of America will resemble "men of the open road" on parade.

"TAMING OF THE WEST" IS FEATURED AT BIJOU

Swing "jive," the language of the musicians, and "double-talk," the lingo of the vaudevilian, have burst upon the United States and captured the tongues of the nation. But, according to Bill Elliott, the popular cowboy star, the men of the range have a language that is every bit as colorful as the slang of the more urban parts of the country.

Elliott, who glories in Western lore, brought up the subject during the filming of Columbia's "Taming of the West," a Wild Bill Saunders adventure, now at the Bijou theatre, in which he plays the stellar role. The script called for him to refuse an invitation to settle down with the answer; "Can't do it, I've got jackrabbits in my boots."

The current chapter of "Drums of Fu Manchu" and an Edgar Kennedy comedy "Act Your Age" are included on the program.

"LUCKY CISCO KID" TO OPEN AT ROYAL TODAY

O. Henry's colorful caballero is at his fightin'est in "Lucky Cisco Kid," the adventure film opening today at the Royal theatre. Handsome Cesar Romero has the featured role in the picture as the smiling, romantic and most daring figure of the Old Southwest.

Heralded as the best of the series, "Lucky Cisco Kid" boasts a strong supporting cast including: Mary Beth Hughes, Dana Andrews, Evelyn Venable and Chris-Pin Martin.

The thrilling action begins at the start of the picture when Cisco and his amusing pal, Gordito, ride into an Arizona town which is being terrorized by raiders and "bad men." Framed by a crooked judge, adored by two jealous women and hunted by a hundred enemies—what a spot Cisco finds himself in! But how he works out of all these difficulties and lives to laugh at his enemies, promises exciting entertainment for all.

The Royal Varieties includes a Walter Catlett comedy and an issue of realism called "Stray Tomb."

REVIEW OF LABOR DECISION SOUGHT

Dixie Mill Owners Say They Will Have To Close If Ruling Upheld

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—A group of southern cotton mills told the supreme court today that they would be compelled to close if an order of the federal wage-hour administration fixing a minimum wage of 32 1-2 cents an hour for textile workers is upheld.

They sought a review of a decision by the federal circuit court at New Orleans sustaining the order. The supreme court's action will be announced in October.

Constitutionality of the wage-hour law was challenged by the mills, but the circuit court passed only on the legislation as it affected the textile wages.

The supreme court already has agreed to review other litigation involving constitutionality of the wage-hour law, which provides for minimum pay and a maximum work week. Arguments will be heard in the fall.

Today's petition contended that "small cotton mills of the deep south" can not operate under the wage order. The petitioners asserted that the south should be given a lower wage than other sections because of lower living costs and a "large difference in the prevailing wage rate."

The petition said the order affected more than 1,000 establishments producing more than $1,000,000,000 worth of merchandise and consuming more than 5,000,000 bales of cotton annually.

William Green, AFL president, conferred with the committee today at the first of a series of executive sessions arranged to consider the house-approved amendments.

Members said he told them that he acquiesced in the amendments while they were in the house with
