diesel engine operators (for submarine assignments) and others, each month. Later courses for aviation metal smiths and aviation machinists' mates also are to be added.

"This," said Ford today, "is the best thing I know of that I could do to help the national defense. My interest in the navy is based on the conviction that it is the most vital arm of our national defense. Our protection is the navy's job."

"We have two oceans. What we need now is a good navy in each of them, including plenty of air-planes carriers."

Ford recalled that during the World War he had built eagle boat sub-chasers at the River Rouge plant, sliding the craft from the way directly in the Rouge river that flows through the Ford factory grounds.

"Now," he said, "we are building four barracks buildings on the shores of the river to house the young men the navy wants for mechanical and technical work."

DIES COMMITTEE REVEALS HANDBOOK ON REDS' ACTIVITY

revised its position later, and finally accused the United States—and President Roosevelt—of attempting to get into the European conflict.

Pamphlets of individual communist units bore headings such as these: "Roosevelt Apes Wilson," and "The Yanks Are Not Coming."

The committee report was intended, aides of chairman Dies (D-Tex) said, to be a compilation of authentic communist records which would be useful to state officials who might want to bar the communist party from their ballots or proceed against the party in any manner.

The bulky report, originally intended for publication next Sunday, was made available tonight by Robert Stripling, committee clerk, after the government printing office, through a mixup, sold several dozen copies and sent still others to libraries.

It followed by less than one week a similar, but shorter, "white paper" which contained documents intended to show a closely-integrated Nazi plan of propaganda and possible espionage in the United States.

The report on communism outlined a long series of general instructions prepared for communist party members in this country and indicated that most of them were adaptations of ideas of communist leaders in Moscow.

The documents spoke of the necessity for the communists to gain a foothold in basic industries if the party were to succeed in advancing the cause of the workers. They spoke frequently of the necessity for strikes to defeat the capitalists.

NAVAL BOARD TO INSPECT STATION SITES HERE SOON

mouth, Washington, Belhaven and Wilmington. It was said that the navy was not much interested in congested areas and this might rule out the Wilmington section because of the new anti-aircraft base at Hollyridge and Fort Bragg, the dispatch stated.

Army air corps officials disclosed at the same time that several sites in North and South Carolina were being considered for bombing ranges. One was near Raleigh, they said, one on the coast northeast of Wilmington, and one in the coastal section of South Carolina, just south of the North Carolina border. The two latter, with water boundaries, could be used for "tow targets" also, they said.

Officials would not disclose more definite locations, but noted that no construction or troop assignments would be involved, since any site selected would be largely waste land to be used for bombing practice.

Captain Rosendahl, the navy's foremost expert on dirigibles, who will head the naval board on its inspection trip, is now adviser to the secretary of the navy on lighter-than-air craft. He was aboard the dirigible Shenandoah when it crashed in 1925, later commanded other U. S. dirigibles, and was in charge of the Lakehurst, N. J., naval air station.

Secretary of Navy Knox yesterday told a press conference he had learned that construction of the dirigible base would be postponed at least until 1942. Last week he had indicated that plans were under way for construction of a base in Florida.

ANTI-PARKING LAW REPEALED BY CITY

the past few weeks of enforcing the statute.

Over 100 persons have been arrested on charges of violating the night parking law in the past two weeks.

The repealer was put in the minutes yesterday morning after a large delegation appeared to request that the ordinance either be repealed or forgotten as far as enforcement is concerned.

The board made the following notation on the records: "After conducting today lengthy hearings on the subject of the enforcement of the ordinance prohibiting parking of automobiles on the streets from 1 a. m. to 6 a. m. and finding that all of the large delegation present opposed the ordinance and also having heard and considered many complaints from citizens of the city, it appears that the ordinance does not have the support of the general public, who believe that the enforcement of the ordinance detracts to the best business interests of the city and particularly to the traveling public, and the tourist trade."

"Therefore, upon motion of the Commissioner of Public Safety, seconded and unanimously adopted, it is hereby ordered that the ordinance adopted Aug. 7, 1940 and the ordinance adopted Oct. 21, 1925, and above referred to, and they are hereby repealed."

"If the public will cooperate with the commissioners in preventing undue congestion by night parking of cars, so as to enable the city to keep the streets properly cleaned and maintained, it will not be necessary to re-enact the ordinance in the future."

GREEKS SAY ITALY'S SOUTH LINE BROKEN

A government spokesman, more communicative, declared that Italian reinforcements had failed to brace the Italians' sagging line of battle and that the fresh troops themselves were giving ground.

(The Italian high command said Fascist planes had bombed Greek troops and preparations and communication lines, hitting highway junctions at Ferati, Delvino and Doljana, the centers of Eresko and Minima, and bridges over the Kalamas river at Perati and Minima and flying field at Ioannina, as well as a fort, wharves and the heights of Corfu on the Island of Corfu.)
