Historical Data Catalogued By National Society of DAR

After nearly three years of painstaking effort, the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution has completed an impressive catalogue of the genealogical and historical works in its famous library.

For the first time in its history, the D. A. R. has catalogued all of the 35,600 books and thousands of pamphlets and manuscripts in the genealogical library in Constitution Hall in Washington, Mrs. Henry M. Robert, Jr., announced today.

The catalogue, comprising nearly 600 pages will be ready for distribution the latter part of January. It will greatly facilitate the search for authentic material on American genealogy and records of the services of the patriots of 176 upon which eligibility to membership in the National Society is based.

Compiled under the direction of Mrs. Vinton Earl Sisson of Chicago, Illinois, Librarian General, N. S. D. A. R., the Jubilee Edition has been dedicated to the President General Mrs. Robert.

Nothing so comprehensive has ever been attempted heretofore by the National Society. In 1920 a pamphlet was issued covering part of the library's books and manuscripts. With the great growth of the library since then, making it today the foremost genealogical library in the country, the stupendous task of publishing a catalogue finally became vitally necessary. Mrs. Sisson, proud of the fact that the regular library staff did all of the work in connection with the catalogue, declared:

"Just as the Constitution records the thoughts and convictions of the Founders of this Nation, so our Library in Constitution Hall records the lives, the family relationships, the community activities and the migrations of those early Americans.

"It, too, is a memorial to the Founders of this republic.

"The books on its shelves weave a romance of the building of this nation that cannot be duplicated anywhere else, for in many instances our library contains the only known record of certain important data.

"The tender care of some family that was justly proud of this long out of print record and prized it as an heirloom, with no thought of attaching publicity to it, has
