An officer on duty with the Barrage Balloon Training center said he heard a swish of the air and saw the 75-foot long bag rapidly gaining altitude. It soon reachapproximately 10,000 feet and drifted with the wind, up the coastline. An officer was dispatched with a car and driver and started north on US Highway 17 in an effort to follow the bag. Low hanging clouds did not offer a clear field of vision, however. Official investigation disclosed that the cable snapped at the balloon and not at the ground winch, thus removing the hazard of a dragging steel cable, it was said. Camp officials notified Pope Field, Fort Bragg, and a warning was flashed to all airports and craft to be on the lookout for the
