It's a Bad Mistake for Family To 'Sympathize' With Draftee

BY RUTH MILLETT

Once again thousands of young men have stood in line all over the country to register for Uncle Sam's selective service.

The weeks or months following their registration will be unsettled, and for some, unhappy. If they pass the physical requirements they will wonder how soon they will be called, and if they go into the army, where they will be stationed, and how long their service will last.

Friends and relatives of the young men who registered on July 1 can either make them feel better or worse about their situation—depending on the attitude they take.

If all that a young man hears from family and friends is "what-a-pity" talk, his face will get longer and longer and his lot will seem worse and worse.

But if his family and friends seem to accept the fact of his possible induction into the army as no personal injustice or personal hardship, but a necessary part of a young man's life in the world today he will feel more philosophical about it himself.

Something He Has To Face
There's no point at all in a family's encouraging a draftee son to feel sorry for himself by bemoaning the fact that he will have to leave his job, that he won't be earning any money to speak of, and that he doesn't know how far away from home he'll be in the coming year.

The draft is a fact a young man has to face—and pity doesn't help him to face it with the determination to make the best of whatever comes to him.

So when you talk to the young man who may soon be a draftee, treat his future in a matter-of-fact manner, and if you dwell on any aspects of army life pick on some of the good ones.

No parent or no friend are being fair to a draftee if they encourage him to feel that life is giving him a poor deal.

MIND YOUR MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Is it good manners for a confident bridge player to say, "All the rest of the tricks are mine" and throw down his hand?
2. Should a guest at a bridge party who wins a prize act enthusiastic about it?
3. Is it gracious for a departing guest to say to her hostess, "It was a nice party, even if I did hold terrible hands all afternoon?"
4. When playing cards for money, should the stakes be agreed upon before play begins?
5. If you do not believe in playing cards for money or if you feel you cannot afford it, is it all right to say that you don't play for money when someone suggests it? What would you do if—
(a) Let them decide when they feel they know how to play well enough to play for stakes?
(b) Expect them to play for stakes when they are still learning the game?

Answers

1. No.
2. Yes. As about any other gift.
3. No. It sounds as though she means, "It was a nice party, but I couldn't enjoy myself because I held such poor cards."
4. Yes.
5. Yes.

Historic Quilting Motifs

By MRS. ANNE CABOT

Hand quilting on the plain blocks of your pieced or appliqued quilt will give it additional beauty! It is a form of traditional handwork that lends itself to many beautiful objects for your home.

These lovely quilting motifs—the Princess Feather circle (8 inches across), the Spider Web (5 1/2 inches), Water Lily motif (6 1/2 inches) and an extra quilting border in the Tulip design—can be used on the plain color blocks of a quilt, on an all-white quilt, or for the boudoir. They are so lovely, so fascinating to do that you will want to make quilted lingerie cases, handkerchief cases, quilted baby pillows and many other beautiful gifts!

To obtain all four Quilting Motifs (Pattern No. 5183), exact methods of using on quilts, pillows, lingerie cases, sewing instructions, send 10 cents in COIN, YOUR NAME, and ADDRESS and the PATTERN NUMBER to Anne Cabot, Wilmington Morning Star, 106 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

BAPTIST GROUP TO HOLD MEETING AT WHITEVILLE

The Divisional meeting of the W. M. U. of the Wilmington division will be held in the Baptist church of Whiteville, Thursday, July 17, and the associations in the division are expected to be well represented by women, young people and pastors. Laymen are welcome and every Baptist church should send representatives.

OCEAN HIGHWAY CONVENTION SET

W. Louis Fisher of Wilmington, president of the association, said last night that he did not yet know how many Wilmington representatives will attend the meeting. Summing up the work of the association, Mr. Fisher said that its advertising program had increased traffic on the "sealevel" route "from almost nothing to more than 1,000 cars a day."

The convention is made up of men interested in increasing tourist trade in the coastal cities. Five other Wilmington men are members of the board of the association. They are Bruce B. Cameron, James E. L. Wade, Thomas E. Cooper, J. M. Snow, and Sidney J. Rivenbark.

Social Security Payments Total $1,710 Monthly Here

Monthly old-age and survivors insurance benefits totalling $1,710 are being paid to persons in Wilmington and New Hanover county, George W. Jeffrey, manager of the Wilmington office of the Social Security board, said yesterday.

Among the beneficiaries are 52 retired workers who were insured under the provisions of the social security act, seven aged wives of retired workers, 14 widows and 31 dependent children.

For the Wilmington area, including Bladen, Brunswick, Carteret, Columbus, Craven, Jones, New Hanover, Onslow, Pamlico and Pender counties, 272 persons are receiving monthly payments of old-age and survivors' insurance.

The figures were the latest available, said Mr. Jeffrey.

Of the 272 persons in the area receiving payments of old-age or survivors' insurance, 113 are insured workers who have reached the age of 65 and who have retired from regular employment in business or industry. Nineteen of the annuitants have wives who are 65 or over, and they, too, are receiving monthly payments of old-age insurance.

Explains System
Mr. Jeffrey explained that a man who has worked in a factory or a store or in some other industrial or business concern since the old-age insurance system went into operation and has qualified for benefits may claim payment upon reaching 65. When an insured worker reaches 65 and begins receiving old-age insurance payments, additional benefits may go to his wife if she is 65 or when she reaches 65. Each of his children also may receive monthly payments if they are still under 16 or are still in school and not over 19.

The monthly payment to the wife of an annuitant amounts to one-half of his monthly benefit. The monthly payment to each of his minor children is also one-half of his own monthly benefit. The amount of monthly insurance payments which any member of the worker's family may receive depends upon the amount of the worker's own monthly insurance benefit.

An insured worker's widow who has reached age 65, whether or not she has a child in her care, may also claim monthly benefits, provided her husband died since this provision went into effect (January 1, 1940). Her monthly payment amounts to three-fourths of her husband's primary benefit.

Benefits to Widows
Widows with minor children—survivors of insured workers who died since January 1, 1940—also receive monthly old-age and survivors insurance benefits. In the Wilmington service area there are 33 widows now receiving monthly payments, with 102 children receiving monthly benefits. Most of the boys and girls are the children of widows who are also receiving monthly benefits provided by the Social Security Act for survivors of insured wage earners.

Some of the young recipients are orphans who are receiving survivors insurance payments because their fathers or mothers who died in 1941 were fully insured under the Social Security Act. Some are the children, step-children, or adopted children of retired workers who have claimed benefits for themselves and their dependents.

In addition to these monthly payments, lump-sum death payments have been made in this area in cases where insured workers died since January 1, 1940, leaving no survivors entitled to monthly benefits.

Regarding survivors insurance, Mr. Jeffrey said that when an insured worker dies, leaving a widow and minor children, monthly payments of survivors insurance are made to his widow and to his children who are under age 16 (18 if in school). The widow who has children under age 18 in her care receives three-fourths of the amount of her husband's primary insurance benefit, and each of these minor children receives one-half of his primary insurance benefit.

Navy Recruiting Party Will Be Here Friday

Lieut. Comdr. D. B. Peters of the U. S. Navy recruiting service, accompanied by a chief pharmacist's mate, will be in Wilmington on Friday, July 11, to examine applicants for the navy and naval reserve.

Any men between the ages of 18 and 50 who desire an interview should present Friday at the Navy recruiting station on the second floor of the postoffice building.

Commander Peters will also interview physicians or surgeons who may be interested in obtaining commissions in the medical branch of the Naval reserve. Hours for interviews will be from 8 to 10 a. m., at which time the recruiting party will leave for New Bern.
