Mrs. Alex Trask, Bride Of Summer, Is Complimented

Misses Marion Darden and Beth Highsmith Entertain at Bridge Party

Misses Marion Darden and Beth Highsmith entertained at a bridge party honoring Mrs. Alex Trask, the former Miss Virginia Council, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Knox Council of this city.

The party was given on Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Darden in Brookwood. High scorer of the evening was Miss Margaret Farmer. The Darden home was attractively arranged in white gladioli and during the evening an ice course was served.

Guests included Mrs. Trask, honoree. Miss Betty Blue Willis, Miss Helen Weathersbee, Miss Sara Thomas, Miss Helen Hall, Miss Ellen Gloor, Miss Marjorie Hogan, formerly of Columbia, S. C., Miss Bootie McAfee of Rocky Mount, Miss Margaret Farmer, Miss Lura Myers, Miss Hilda Cameron and Miss Mary Davis.

MIND YOUR MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Should a man say, "I'm going to have my wife ask you over for dinner sometime?"

2. Is it up to the house guest to be packed and dressed by traveling in plenty of time to catch his train?

3. Is it good manners for a house guest to talk about the Oriental rugs in the home of his last week's hostess when his present hostess lives in a small, unpretentious cottage?

4. Should a guest talk about what a terrible trip he had coming to visit, and how he dreads the trip home?

5. If your host runs down the local swimming pool after taking you there to swim should you agree with him or say how much you enjoyed your swim?

What would you do if—
It is an unusually warm day—
(a) Say to everyone you meet, "My, isn't it warm today?"
(b) Don't introduce the subject of the heat?

Answers
1. No. It infers that it is something only the host will enjoy. It would be better to say, "My wife and I want you to have dinner with us some night soon. You'll be hearing from her."

2. Yes. It would be disconcerting to almost any hostess to have a guest miss his train.

3. No.
4. The latter.
Best "What Would You Do" solution—(b) as most persons will mention the weather and it grows monotonous after a while.

Crocheted "Popcorn" Spread

By MRS. ANNE CABOT

You won't find a better looking popcorn spread in the county! Tailored, neat and compact it makes a bedspread that wears like iron. The block—3 1/2 by 6 1/2 inches has 48 nubby, fat little popcorns clustered together. The openwork border around the block adds an interesting contrast.

Blocks are set together diagonally to form a single or a double bedspread. Notice how the diagonal setting makes a very tailored-looking edge.

The individual block is the sort of pick-up work that is easiest to do. You'll have one done in 1/2 time! Made in natural colored crocheted cotton this spread will be suitable for any type bedroom.

For crocheting instructions for "Popcorn" spread (Pattern No. 5197), amounts of materials specified, illustrations of stitches used, send 10 cents in COIN, YOUR NAME and ADDRESS and the PATTERN NUMBER to Anne Cabot, Wilmington Morning Star, 106 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

Keep Yourself Attractive-- You Owe It To Your Public

By RUTH MILLETT
Every woman owes it to herself to be as attractive and gracious a human being as possible. But almost every woman owes it to someone else, too.

A wife owes it to her husband to appear at her best even in her most casual contacts with others. The wife about whom people wonder "Why did he marry HER?" is letting her husband down, no matter how good a job she does of making a home.

HARD ON CHILDREN
A mother owes it to her children to look as well as she can and to get on with others to the best of her ability. It's hard on children to have a mother that they aren't eager for others to know, no matter how understanding and self-sacrificing she may be.

A daughter owes it to her parents to make the most of her looks and her personality. They've done their best to give her the things that will make an attractive, socially well-adjusted person of her, and they can't help but be worried and troubled if she turns into a grown-up woman who is careless of her looks and awkward in her dealings with other people.

And any woman owes it to her friends to appear to the best advantage. A friend of long standing may know all of Agatha's fine qualities, may love her for her generosity, sincerity and loyalty.

A STRAIN ON FRIENDSHIP
But it puts a strain on the friendship to have to warn strangers before they are introduced to Agatha with such phrases as, "She isn't especially attractive looking. She just doesn't care about clothes, and never seems to know whether her nose is powdered or not. But she's really a wonderful person, and I know you'll like her."

Almost every woman owes it to someone besides herself to look and act her best, instead of being self-satisfied enough to adopt a "take-me-or-leave-me" attitude.
