Social Security Starts Radio Programs Here

Mrs. Lurline D. Lewis, acting manager of the Wilmington office of the Social Security Board, Monday called attention to a new dramatic series of radio programs entitled "Pleasantdale Folks," which presents important facts regarding the payments which insured workers and their families receive under Old-Age and Survivors Insurance provisions of the Social Security Act.

The first episode in the new series was broadcast Thursday night at 7 o'clock over station WMFD, and the next will be heard Tuesday at the same time, and on each Tuesday and Thursday thereafter until February 17.

The manner in which cash payments are made to retired workers, their wives, and to the widows and children of insured workers, who die, is explained in the conversation heard in "Pleasantdale Folks."

The eight episodes of the series include the following narratives in dramatic form: The Fairchild's Orphan Children, A Saleswoman Retires, The Family of a Spendthrift, The Mine Disaster, Mother Was a Breadwinner, The Retired Patternmaker, The Widow of Martin Jordan, and The Walkers at Age of 65.

WIGGAM TO SPEAK HERE FEBRUARY 3

Noted Lecturer and Author To Appear Under Community Forum Auspices

The Community Forum will present the distinguished author and lecturer, Dr. Albert Edward Wiggam, on Tuesday night February third, at eight o'clock at Thalian Hall, when he will speak on "Mobilizing Our Nation's Human Abilities."

Dr. Wiggam was born on a southern Indiana farm, and attended an actual "little red school house." At the age of 14 he commenced his college education, but due to ill health he did not graduate until he was 21. During his stay in college, he shunned every school and college requirement for public speaking owing to extreme timidity.

Upon his graduation, he was given up to die from tuberculosis, and he went to Denver, Colo., where he started a greenhouse company. To his company goes the credit of instituting the now nation-wide practice of telegraphing flowers. Aroused against the "free-silver" in 1896, he overcame his aversion to public speaking and campaigned as a "gold Democrat." His speaking ability amazed him, and he sold his greenhouse business, and got a job as a police reporter on the Minneapolis Journal. A lecture manager heard him speak, and his career as a lecturer was begun. To use Dr. Wiggam's own words, "I was the most surprised man on earth to find myself on the platform, the last thing I ever dreamed of."

As a hobby, Dr. Wiggam is a leading authority on the relation of beauty and intelligence and is on the Board of Judges of the Annual National Beauty Show at Atlantic City.

Individual tickets may be secured at the door of Thalian Hall, and the public is assured that the hall will be adequately heated.
