

MODEL POINTED OUT AS 'LURE'

Slain Woman's Aunt Names Madeline Webb As Girl Inviting Deceased To Party

NEW YORK, May 13.—(AP)—Slim, pale Madeline Webb, 28-year-old model, was dramatically pointed out today by the elderly aunt of Mrs. Susan Flora Reich as the person who had invited Mrs. Reich by telephone to visit her at the Hotel Sutton to meet "my new husband" a few days before Mrs. Reich was found slain.

The Oklahoma-born girl, on trial with Eli Shonbrun, her alleged lover, and John D. Cullen, under charges of first degree murder, seemed about to rise from her chair when Mrs. Reich's aunt, Miss Eliza Evalina Klarmann, stood in front of her and said: "This is the lady here."

Miss Webb fidgeted in her chair, slumped back, and drank from a glass of water. A court attendant, who had assisted stand to give her a close view of Miss Webb after she had said apologetically "I don't see very far," aided the elderly woman back to the stand.

Jacques Buitenkant, chief defense counsel, protested throughout the procedure and moved for a mistrial. Judge Jonah J. Goldstein promptly denied the motion.

Motorists Are Complying With 'Dim-Out' On Coast

Speaking of compliance of motorists with the newly established "dim-out" zones along the highways to beaches in this vicinity, state highway patrolmen said Wednesday no arrests had been made for failure to dim lights or fast driving.

No accidents of any kind have been reported, they said, and cooperation is splendid. The people seem to realize that safe and careful driving is necessary, a patrolman said, and motorists are following the instructions to the letter.

The newly established zones were placed into effect Monday night. The regulation requires all motorists to drive with parking lights only and not faster than 15 miles an hour.

The zones are: On highway 74-76 to Wrightsville Beach at the curve ahead of the entrance to Airlee, continuing to Wrightsville Beach. On highway 421 to Carolina Beach at the inland waterway canal bridge, continuing to Fort Fisher. From the inland waterway canal bridge on the road to Fort Caswell, continuing to Fort Caswell and Long beach.

CURFEW IS ASKED FOR BEER PARLORS

Would Be Enforced On Those Having Less Than Grade 'B' Ratings

Institution of an ordinance, if such is not in existence, requiring all beer parlors, piccolos and other establishments within the city and county rated less than grade "B" to close every midnight until 6 o'clock the following morning and from Saturday midnight until 6 o'clock Monday morning was recommended Wednesday by the grand jury in its report to Judge C. E. Thompson at the present term of criminal court.

The grand jury further recommended that "due to greatly increased work in the Bureau of Identification conducted by Mr. Harry E. Fales, such added help as necessary to carry on the work adequately be given him."

The report said "it is the information of the grand jury that minors are known to be loitering around and entering pool rooms, which, we understand, is in violation of the law. We suggest that this be investigated and proper steps be taken to discontinue the practice."

The grand jury said reports from justices of the peace had been examined and that all of them had rendered reports except F. G. Fowler.

Appreciation to Addison Hewlett, chairman of the board of county commissioners and the commission for providing comfortable cushions for chairs in the grand jury room and to officers of the court, and all city and county agencies who assisted in the work was expressed by the grand jury.

Mayor Fergus Opposes Dimming Of Lights Only Along Atlantic Seaboard

32 DIVORCE CASES ARE SET FOR TRIAL

May Civil Term Of Court Will Be Convened Here Monday, May 25

After reading a report of Army, Navy and Civilian Defense officials on inspection of the dimming-out situation along the coast, Mayor R. C. Fergus of Carolina Beach declared he objected to "the lights along the shore lines of the Atlantic Seaboard being the only section penalized."

The inspection covered an area from Corncake Inlet to a point about five miles north of Wrightsville Beach.

Mayor Fergus' statement Wednesday follows: "I feel as a public official that the dim-out of coastal resort lights along the Atlantic seaboard is an important thing, and that we must cooperate with the armed forces in the matter.

"However, we cannot complete the program successfully as long as the lights from the shippards provide a beacon that is much brighter than the beach lights. There has been no indication from the War department that the shipyard lights will be dimmed.

"I strenuously object to the lights along the shore lines of the Atlantic seaboard being the only section penalized. We are in a war, and I think that everyone should do his part.

"If dimming the lights along the coastal resorts will aid the government in its efforts, we stand ready to do our part. I do think that the other sources of illumination should be dimmed out, however."

Mayor Fergus' remarks were made following the receipt of a letter from W. F. Nufer, assistant director of civilian defense, to Governor Broughton, a copy being forwarded to Mr. Fergus.

The text of the letter follows: "I beg to report as follows on the dimming-out situation along the coast, Col. D. C. France, Captain Thresher of the Corps at Wilmington, the chiefs of police of Wrightsville Beach and Carolina Beach, and I made an inspection trip from Corncake Inlet, south of Carolina Beach to a point along the coast five miles north of Wrightsville Beach.

"As a result of this inspection we were in agreement that further dimming of lights at Kure's Beach and Carolina Beach, particularly in the business section, were essential. Also the above applies to Wrightsville Beach, particularly street lights which were partially dimmed out but appeared unsatisfactory from the sea.

"The worst lights were observed from the shippards at Wilmington and from Camp Davis. It would seem essential that some measures be taken to shade flood lights and to reduce the total amount of illumination at both these points as ships can be very readily silhouetted from both these points.

"The local authorities were very cooperative and I feel sure that they will attend to street lighting as well as business and home lighting in their respective communities. However, the State Highway Commission has not passed its ordinance in regard to dimming lights and reduction of speed on roads near the coast, and it was agreed among the members of our inspection party that this should be done immediately, as highway lighting provides the worst glow that we noticed. This is particularly true of roads pointed toward the ocean, although roads paralleling the ocean are also very noticeable."

The letter was dated May 9, and on May 10, the state highway commission began enforcement of the dim-out and slow zones along the coast.
