Crocheted, Fringed Rug 5348 By MRS. ANNE CABOT It's unbelievably good looking—a rug that will see years of service in your bedroom, in the children's room or as a bedside rug in your own room. Made in shell stitch in a big rug yarn, it is quickly crocheted on a large sized croch hook. This one is made of 3 balls of electric blue, 2 balls of old blue, 1 ball of pale blue. The edges are done in brilliant cherry red—and three rows of this same cherry color enliven the center of the rug.

Brides-To-Be Demand 'Angel Gowns' As Short-Notice Marriages Boom

By MARGUERITE YOUNG NEW YORK, May 14. Girls who plan to wed in the marrying month of June, this year seem to want to look even more like angels than peacetime June brides did. Maybe the reason is just that they know they'll have to keep their feet on the ground and be self-reliant wives, in wartime. Whatever it is, the traditional wedding gown is what they're wearing. "White wedding gowns, too," the bride's consultant in a Fifth Avenue's store told me. "A far greater proportion of them insist on the symbolic color. That's the news—that and their haste."

MIND YOUR MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below: 1. Now that everyone is trying to save tires, is it necessary to drive clear around a block in order to let someone off on the right side of the street? 2. If you visit overnight a person who has room for but one car in his garage, should you permit him to let his car sit out while you put yours in the garage? 3. When a husband and wife are together in a car and one of them has to get out to mail a letter, should it be the husband or the wife who runs the errand? 4. If a man and woman are walking in the rain and the woman has an umbrella should the man carry it? 5. Is it good manners to insist on a person's doing something he seems reluctant to do, such as making a speech or being chairman of a committee? What would you do if— A person writes you a letter wanting information which you cannot give him and he encloses an addressed, stamped envelope for a reply— (a) Answer his letter, telling him that you cannot give him the information he requests? (b) Don't bother to answer the letter since you can't give him the information he requests?

Aunt Minnie Regrets: Her House Is No Country Boarding House

By RUTH MILLETT NEW YORK, May 12. Are you half-way planning on sending the kids to visit Aunt Minnie for a couple of weeks this summer because you think all children should have the experience of living on a farm? Well, maybe you had better wait for Aunt Minnie to ask them, instead of just taking it for granted she would like to have your small fry pushed off on her. Before you write Aunt Minnie saying that you'll put the children on the train next Tuesday and for her to be sure and meet them, it might be a good idea for you to read a letter one "Aunt Minnie" wrote me the other day. Here it is in part: "I have been praying that you would hit on the subject of the city woman who moves to the country, having to get accustomed to doing without most modern conveniences, etc.—and the inevitable result. "All the kinfolks from one end of the U.S.A. to the other just can't seem to keep from dropping in at any time for a visit—short or long. "I get a telegram at nine a.m. to meet the noon train—six relatives are arriving. "Sister Bertha from Boston writes: 'If we are bombed can I ship the kids out to you?' (There are five of them.) "Cousin Pauline, who did not know me very well in town, tells Mother she wants to 'run down some day and have a good old gabfest with Minnie.' "I'm sure I don't know what we'd gab about. I hardly know her, but her two youngsters no doubt would make a wreck of me, keeping them from drowning in the run and away from the stock, etc. "Grandmas and uncles and aunts, well meaning and kind, but how they love to drop everything and drop in on me. The round of a country woman is a nightmare if she has a bunch of relatives. "It's a round of meals. Kill a couple of chickens, fire up the range, change the beds for ever night. Forget about the garden to be hoed, the limas you want to pick and cold pack—you have company. "It is not that my husband and I are not hospitable. But we moved onto this place that needed so much repair and we have had to work day and night to make it go. And now that my husband is working in a distant defense plant, I am desperate. So please don't spare any punches and give the country women a break in your column—or we shall be swamped again this summer."
