The mother was Mrs. T. D. Sanford, of 214 Castle street, and her son, Tebe D. Sanford, Jr., a native Wilmingtonian and now a Navy pharmacist's mate serving "somewhere in the Pacific.

Mrs. Sanford found her son's picture in the center of a news service phone photo in Wednesday's Morning Star. The picture was described as a group American sailors loading Philippine securities at Manila for delivery to the United States It was made before the fall of Corregidor.

Young Sanford joined the Navy immediately after graduation from New Hanover high school here in 1939 and went to the Philippines last August. His last permanent station, so far as his family knows, was at the Cancaco Naval hospital. His father, a veteran of World War 1, is now at the Fayetteville Veteran's hospital.
